Sunday Selling Ban Endorsed by Council

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria city council is going ahead with its long-discussed never-on-Sunday ban prohibiting the Sunday retailing of a wide range of commodities which aren't considered basic necessities.

An amendment to the city's trades licence bylaw, to be introduced at the regular council meeting on Thursday next week, would prohibit the sale on Sundays and statutory public holidays of the following items:

The draft bylaw, endorsed by council in caucus Tuesday, will become effective when it is given final reading at the Oct. 23 council meeting.

There was no immediate reaction from Victoria's business community today, but Victoria Chamber of Commerce called a meeting for this afternoon to discuss the bylaw charges.

President Jack Hutchins said he could not speak for the chamber until after the meeting but he believes hours of sale should be decided by merchants and not by city council.

He said most large stores elect to close on Sundays and holidays but it should remain a voluntary policy.

Andrew Glecoff, manager of Zeller's department store in the Hillside shopping centre, which for some years has opened on statutory holidays with the exception of Good Friday, Christmas Day and New Year's Day, said holiday opening is a public service and customers have shown that they like shopping on those days.

The store's hardware and home improvement sections are the busiest of all departments on holidays, he said, indicating that "the breadwinner wants to get jobs done around the house" and needs tools and materials.

As for staff, "no one is ever forced to work on holidays — it's strictly voluntary," Glecoff said.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said he is opposed to the principle of councils ordering business closures on Sundays and holidays, and he has no plans to initiate such restrictions in Saanich.

Beer Flow Cut Off

Victoria's already-dwindling supply of beer was cut back to only a trickle today as a picket line around Labatt's brewery halted delivery of kegs to local pubs.

Empress Hotel manager Ted Balderson said at opening time today the hotel's Beaver pub had only one and a half kegs of beer left, which will probably last to about 5 p.m. "depending on how thirsty everybody is."

Labatt's normally delivers beer kegs to the Empress once a week and Wednesday is the regular delivery day.

The picket line, supposedly only for informational purposes, was set up Tuesday morning by about 40 up-island hotelmen and hospitality industry workers who were protesting the cut-off of beer supplies to the Nanaimo area.

Labatt's manager Ken McNamara said today delivery truck drivers were not crossing the picket line and beer parlors which have their beer delivered directly from the brewery "should feel the effect of it today."

McNamara said he had been out early today to talk to the hotelmen on the picket line and said he understood that the line would stay up until "they achieve their objective and that's to get back to work."

A strike in late August by employees of the beer distributing company in Nanaimo has closed down all beer parlors in that area.

The only beer parlors left open in the city, until now, were the ones which got their beer supplies directly from Labatt's, but those will be closed soon too if the picket line continues

TLR OFFER ON PROPANE REJECTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The union negotiating committee rejected Tuesday the latest offer in the propane distributors dispute while a company representative said he will not accept appointment of an industrial inquiry commission.

Carl Anshelm, Transport Labor Relations spokesman, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he would not consider a non-binding industrial inquiry commission because it would take two or three weeks for such a commission to report.

Doug MacLeod, union spokesman, said that the negotiating committee will not present the offer to its members but wants to meet with TLR to discuss a counter-offer made Tuesday. He said TLR has refused to discuss the counter-offer.

Details of neither offer were released.

OIL TAX UP

OTTAWA (CP) — The export tax on oil shipped to the United States will go up Nov. 1 as a result of the 10-per-cent rise in world oil prices, a spokesman for the National Energy Board said Tuesday.

The amount of the increase will be determined later in the month when the board has a clear picture of what new prices will be in the United States market, the spokesman said.

Air Crash In Interior Kills Seven

The plane, owned by Northern Thunderbird Air of Prince George, was on a scheduled flight to Dease Lake, about 450 miles northwest and about 160 miles south of the B.C.-Yukon border.

It crashed and burned about 360 miles northwest of Prince George in the Klua Tan Tan area. Aboard were two crew members and five passengers.

Jack Sellfox, a spokesman for Northern Thunderbird, said the company flies a five-times-a-week service out of Prince George, which goes as far as Dease Lake Tuesday and Thursdays.

It mainly carries construction workers and railway officials who are employed on British Columbia Railway's Dease Lake extension.

Killed were Ed Dyck, the pilot, Dick Iverson, the co-pilot, Ken McRae and Donald Long, provincial highways department employees, Mr. and Mrs. Robbert McColl and an as-yet unnamed man.

Consumers To Pay —Beryl

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board, citing the B.C. supermarket dispute as a potential inflation factor, said in its third quarterly report Tuesday that "in the end, it will be the consumer who will pay."

The board reiterated its belief that the demands of both the food industry unions and the offer by B.C. supermarkets exceed what it would regard as a responsible increase.

The board, which has appealed for restraint on income demands in every quarterly report in the last 12 months, said that "in spite of this, B.C., which is already faced with the highest urban-area food prices in the country, is on the verge of yet another rise in food industry labor costs. It may well be that this could have an inflationary impact on the food industry and other labor settlements in the country."

"It is evident . . . that labor costs are now an important factor influencing the rise in food prices."

Board Chairman Beryl Plumptre has pursued this theme in several recent speeches.

The board said that substantial increases in oil and gas prices should have only a slight impact on food prices.

"The share of total food costs made up by the direct cost of energy is not likely to exceed five per cent, even in 1975. As a result, it would appear that an increase in the prices of fuel and power by 20 per cent would result in a direct increase in food prices of no more than one per cent."

Terrorists Kill Police As Million Cheer Franco

MADRID (UPI) — Bands of terrorists armed with sawed-off shotguns killed three Madrid policemen and critically wounded a fourth today while an emotional crowd of a million persons celebrated the 39th anniversary of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's rise to power.

Franco, angered by widespread European and world reaction to Spain's execution of five terrorists Saturday for the slaying of other policemen, said the violent anti-Spanish reaction was a foreign plot against Spain by Free Masons and Communists.

The almost simultaneous attacks on policemen in different parts of Madrid was the largest guerrilla operation of a wave of political violence that has hit Spain in recent months. It brought angry roars from the crowd of 500,000 persons jammed into 25-acre Plaza de Oriente square who shouted, "the army to power!" and "terrorists to the wall!"

Many western diplomats earlier boycotted a reception marking the 39th anniversary of Franco's proclamation as Spain's caudillo (leader) during the civil war. At least 15 nations have recalled their ambassadors from Spain in protest.

Labor unions across western Europe today called a series of trade, transport and communication boycotts against Spain to protest the executions.

The European Common Market, in one of its strongest political actions in recent years, said it was suspending trade talks with Spain. The talks, which have been going on for two years, were to have resumed this month and there had been hope that the agreement would be completed by the end of the year.

The European Trade Union Confederation designated Thursday as a day of solidarity with opponents of Franco's regime and urged unions to take measures to isolate Spain economically and politically.

The European Co-Operative Association with 45,000 member stores in 10 European countries said they were suspending purchases of fruits and vegetables in Spain.

Belgium's two largest unions, the Socialist and the Christian, said all travel and communications between Belgium and Spain would stop for 36 hours beginning at 1 p.m. EDT today.

Responding to an appeal by the International Transport Workers' Federation, Austria's transport union called a two-day halt in road, rail and air traffic with Spain beginning today.

In Britian, workers at London's Heathrow airport said they would begin a boycott on all flights by the Spanish airline Iberia today and Thursday.

Dockers in Hull, England, refused to handle cargo going to or from Spain and Belgian union officials said dockers in Antwerp would boycott Spanish ships.

In Ottawa members of the International Association of Machinists (IAM) have been asked to participate in a 48-hour boycott of Spanish goods and transport companies to be held Thursday and Friday.

SHORT-MEASURE DRINK ANGERED WEE MICHAEL

GLASGOW (Reuter) — A German Shepherd named Michael lapped up three pints of beer in a Glasgow tavern, then jumped on the bar and frightened customers and staff, a court was told.

However, Michael's owner, 50-year-old Gilbert Toner, told the court Tuesday that the dog wasn't drunk, just angry because he had been served a short-measure scotch.

Toner said he started a row with barman Eugene McBride over the whisky and remarked that the dog had not been drunk as it was used to downing 11 pints in a session.

Toner was fined $45 for refusing to leave the pub, assault, and causing a breach of the peace.

He told the Bahian health ministry that nearby fruit growers had sprayed their trees with insecticide. He said the custom of the children was to eat the ants that fell from the trees.

Mining Revenues Make Up For Losses in Woods Tax

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Premier David Barrett insists that revenues in the present fiscal year will be high enough to balance his budget — and the latest government figures indicate he just might do it.

The numbers, for the fiscal year ended March 31, show the expected drop in revenues from the forest industry.

But they also show revenue gains on a number of fronts.

Total revenue in the fiscal year hit $2.6 billion, up from $2.1 billion the previous year.

Forest revenues were down $96 million but this was offset by $92.6 million in revenue from the British Columbia Petroleum Corporation, which markets natural gas in B.C. and Washington State.

Total revenue from minerals hit $168.8 million, up from $65 million a year ago. Despite the total collapse of the copper industry, the revenue from natural gas and crude oil is keeping B.C. on an even keel.

The numbers vividly reflect a comment made in Victoria by William Pickett, president of American Motors of Canada Ltd., who said Canadians do not realize how wealthy they are as an oil producing nation. B.C. is not a major oil producing region but even minor oil and natural gas producers are making big money at this time.

Other major gains by the province in the fiscal year ended March 31 were in corporation and personal income taxes.

Taxes from corporations increased $130 million to $257 million while personal income taxes were up $111 million to $522 million. The increase in personal income taxes reflects the beneficial effects of inflation upon the provincial treasury.

The increase in the five per cent sales tax revenue was only $60 million for a total of $400 million. Premier Barrett has complained that the sales tax hits the poor man more than the wealthy — but he has not yet made any move to reduce the burden.

Motor fuel taxes rose $13.5 million in the year to be an added source of revenues.

O'Grady Opens Lawsuit Against ICBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Terence P. O'Grady, who until Aug. 31, 1974, was secretary and general counsel of the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia, said Tuesday he was not permitted to attend ICBC board meetings.

O'Grady was testifying at the opening day of his civil action against ICBC which is being heard by Mr. Justice Richard Anderson of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

He is suing the corporation, which operates the province's compulsory automobile insurance plan, for alleged breach of contract and wrongful dismissal.

He said the executive structure of the Crown corporation was closely controlled by its vice-president and general manager, Norman Bortnick.

O'Grady said that being barred from board meetings created a problem because he received expurgated minutes and was unable to verify their accuracy before affixing the required corporate seal to legal documents.

He testified that until joining ICBC he had been solicitor for the City of Victoria — a contract which was worth an estimated annual gross revenue of $60,000 to his practice. He also handled legal work for other clients.

O'Grady told the court he accepted the $35,000 per year job with the corporation primarily because of the challenge the new job offered and because of the fringe benefits such as use of an automobile and pension plan.

His lawyer told Mr. Justice Anderson:

"It was a gradual erosion of the position of secretary. By August, 1974, he had lost half of his staff, both of his titles and was off in thin air. The only thing that remained constant was his salary."

ICBC's lawyer said O'Grady had been offered — and refused — the most senior legal position in the corporation and that only nominal damage could have been possibly been done to him.

O'Grady has since returned to private practice in Victoria. The case continues.

Sunday Selling Ban

charter, the Victoria City Act of 1919, which allows council by bylaw to "regulate, govern and control the conduct of all or any of the trades, businesses, professions, occupations, callings, employments or purposes therein mentioned."

The preamble to the draft bylaw amendment states that "it is in the interests of the residents of Victoria that certain days be set aside for their rest and relaxation from the cares of business."

Mayor Peter Pollen, the prime mover behind the limiting of Sunday commercialism, received little backing from council when he first mooted the idea. But at the Tuesday meeting there were only minor objections to some of the suggested prohibitions.

Pollen noted: "Basically we are trying to name one day in seven to de-emphasize the commercial bombardment of our citizens, and to allow as much as possible the laboring man one day of rest."

Another objective, the mayor said, is to provide a measure of "retail viability" for the smaller businessman, who "obviously can't run his store seven days a week."

At Ald. Mike Young's suggestion, council deleted hardware and tools from the list of items which would not be available on a Sunday.

He pointed out that they tend to be needed on a day-to-day basis, and are sold in smaller outlets such as corner grocery stores which sell necessities.

Council ignored the observation by city solicitor Jakob de Villiers that it was "illogical" to delete tools and hardware unless council also removed from the list building materials.

The draft bylaw's wording says: "No one shall sell, expose or offer for sale or purchase or offer to purchase" any of the banned goods.

De Villiers noted today that their simple exposure on a shelf in a store which remained open for business on a Sunday would be a violation of the bylaw, although a remedy would be to screen the items in question.

For practical purposes, he said, there's hardly a store left in Victoria where the customers buy goods over the counter. "If the forbidden merchandise can be picked up and carried to the cash checkout, the businessman will be committing an offence."

Young admitted today that the new bylaw amendment may prove difficult to enforce where there is "a mixed bag" of items sold, as in corner grocery stores, but said council's main intention is to restrict major retailers whose sole reason for opening on Sundays is the profit motive.

"It isn't intended to pick nits but it's really there to eliminate heavy merchandising on a seven-day-a-week basis," he said.

It could well happen that some items now on the proscribed list will be deleted before the bylaw receives final approval in three weeks, Young believes.

He is worried, for example, about the inclusion of clothing on the list: what about a packet of pantyhose sold in a grocery store?

"I don't want to see some stores half-open and unlawfully half-open," he added.

Young expects no major criticism from the business world, although he thinks "we will have one or two outraged cries of crushing private enterprise."

He conceded the bylaw changes will have "limited impact" unless neighboring municipalities initiate similar action.

Lum said legislation relating to the Lord's Day Act ignores the growing trend in North America to regard the feelings of minority religious groups who may have their Lord's day on Thursday, Friday or Saturday.

"To many people, Sunday is just another working day."

Lum said, however, the issue has not come before Saanich council because there are few stores in the municipality selling the type of goods which would be banned by the Victoria bylaw.

Infractions of the Victoria bylaw could result in a maximum fine of $1,000 or 30 days' imprisonment, or both.

Several years ago when prosecutions were permitted under the Lord's Day Observance Act, some Victoria firms were given meaningless fines. Empress Paints, for example, was fined $10 on one occasion.

Under this new approach by city council, however, there is a greater deterrent, for any businessman found to have committed an offence under the bylaw can lose his trades licence by a two-thirds vote of council.

As the city solicitor drily noted: "Any businessman who defies the bylaw and thinks the worst that can happen to him is a nominal fine would be unwise in my opinion."

Mel Gerling, franchise owner of the Color Your World paint stores in Victoria, which bought out Empress Paints two and a half years ago, said today he had never followed the Empress practice of opening on a Sunday and he had no intention of doing so.

Expressing strong support for council's action, he said customers should be able to find opportunity during the week to obtain their purchases, and to "leave Sunday alone as a day of rest with the family and kids."

Gerling said one of his competitors enjoys brisk Sunday business and he could do the same, "but I don't believe in it. I would like to see all businesses closed on a Sunday."

Police Stand Firm

LONDON (UPI) — Three gunmen holding six hostages in a London restaurant are adamant — the siege goes on until police give them a getaway plane.

Scotland Yard detectives are just as determined — there won't be any deal, no matter how long it takes.

The standoff went into the fourth day today with gunmen and hostages barricaded in the basement of the Spaghetti House restaurant in London's fashionable Knightsbridge section.

"They are going nowhere," London police commissioner Sir Robert Mark said of the gunmen. "Our patience is limitless. Our objective is to get the hostages out unharmed, and to bring these gunmen out under arrest."

BUDGET MAY BALANCE

For the present fiscal year, the outlines are fairly clear. The premier has conceded that the revenues from the forest industry will drop from the 1974-75 total of $191 million but is making no other admission of revenue declines.

In fact, mineral revenues will again be up sharply — because of natural gas price increases — and income tax revenues will again be up as a result of pay increases averaging almost 19 per cent this year.

The five per cent sales tax will also produce added revenues.

Weak spots in the revenue picture, besides the forest industry, could include corporation taxes — a side effect of the continuing recession. There are no other problem areas in the revenue outlook.

One continuing strong point is the profits from liquor sales, which rose $12 million to $120 million in the fiscal year ended March 31. In 1972, the last year of a Social Credit administration, the liquor profit was only $85 million.

Premier Barrett denies opposition charges that the government is driving British Columbians to drink. Rather he repeats a quote from Attorney-General Alex Macdonald that British Columbians are drinking heavily for political reasons — half are celebrating the victory of the NDP and the other half are trying to forget it.

TIGHT SECURITY FOR FORD TRIP

CHICAGO (UPI — The heavy security force around President Ford made its second arrest within 24 hours today. Officials said neither person was a threat to the president.

But the incidents emphasized the tightened security protecting Ford following two attempts on his life in California last month.

Police seized a man loitering outside Ford's motel in suburban Skokie this morning, searched him and whisked him away in a police car. But it was later determined that he was not armed and presented no threat to Ford, said White House news secretary Ron Nessen.

On Tuesday, a woman carrying a gun in her purse was taken into custody outside a hotel where Ford was to speak, but authorities later said she was armed because she worked in a currency exchange and they did not consider her a threat.

Ford said Tuesday night at the beginning of a brief midwest visit which ends tonight that he hopes to visit all of the 50 states before the end of the year but will not be "foolhardy" about security.

LISBON TROOPS REBEL

LISBON (UPI) — Mutinous troops sealed off the streets leading to a Communist-controlled radio station in downtown Lisbon today and set up a mortar on the balcony to battle any attempt by the police to occupy the facilities.

A small group of leftists gathered outside the studios of Radio Club in support of the soldiers armed with automatic rifles and teargas. The troops and workers inside the building began setting up their defences after the soldiers refused to obey an order by Prime Minister Adm. Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo to turn the facilities over to police.

The rebellious troops were later reinforced by three jeeploads of military policemen who added their vehicles to the barricades sealing off the streets.

A loudspeaker blared revolutionary songs at the crowd outside the building, but the station itself continued to broadcast its normal program of light music without making any effort to broadcast propaganda.

No policemen were in sight.

The move plunged Portugal into yet another political crisis and there were reports other troops had met secretly ti discuss ways of countering Azevedo's efforts to avert anarchy. Two Communist newspapers accused him of trying to restore fascism 17 months after the right-wing dictatorship was overthrown.

Military sources said soldiers claiming to represent other leftist-controlled military units in the Lisbon military district held an anti-government conference to discuss ways of opposing the prime minister's programs.

BOTH THINGS A SUIT SHOULD BE THIS YEAR: VESTED AND FLANNEL

The way you cut a suit, and the cloth you cut it from, determine the character of the suit.

For example, an air of elegance in a business suit can be achieved by choosing a soft, luxurious, pure virgin wool flannel cloth.

It would be in solid shades. Blues and greys and browns from light to dark. But nothing bright.

By way of tailoring, nothing flashy. Simply classic touches like finely stitched lapels, flapped pocket treatments, a nice trim shape at the waist, handsomely cut trousers. And of course, a vest.

Styling touches you would expect to find in designer clothing that can cost as much as $300.

But because we're the biggest chain in the country, we can present all this suit for just $164.95.

And, as if that's not value enough, for the next 4 days it's $139.96.

FOR 4 DAYS ONLY $139.96

I Panicked, Escaper Tells Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vincent Michael Fitzgerald told a provincial court Tuesday that he panicked and fled from a police elevator with three other prisoners last Nov. 29 because he feared a beating from officers if he remained.

He denied taking any part in an incident during the escape that left a city police officer with a razor slash to his throat and a deputy sheriff with cuts to his hand and arm.

The trial of Fitzgerald, Gordon Andrews and Larry Stanley Marshall, who have pleaded guilty to escaping lawful custody, stealing a car and to a charge of wounding Const. R. H. Robinson, opened Monday.

Andrews and Marshall have pleaded guilty to wounding deputy sheriff Alan Druskin, while Fitzgerald has pleaded not guilty. Five other charges against the three have since been stayed by the Crown.

Robert Hume, the fourth prisoner involved in the escape, has since died of natural causes. A fifth prisoner in the elevator did not take part in the escape.

Fitzgerald said he was handcuffed to Marshall and he first knew of any trouble when Marshall pulled the elevator operator off his chair and took control of the elevator.

He said he did not see a gun being used and saw a razor only when it was on the blood-covered floor of the elevator.

"The (elevator) door finally opened and when the others went out, I panicked," Fitzgerald said.

Patty Won't Co-operate

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — As Patricia Hearst left her cell for more psychiatric tests Tuesday, lawyers disclosed for the first time that she is not co-operating in her defence.

Lawyers Terence Hallinan and John Knutson said Patty is "vacillating in her attitude toward her parents and lawyers," and impatient with discussions of her legal case, which F. Lee Bailey, head of the six-man defence team said Tuesday, will not come to trail until 1976.

She breaks into tears if asked about her adventures with the Symbionesse Liberation Army and refuses to discuss her underground life, the lawyers said in a statement filed with Judge Oliver Carter.

In the document, the lawyers also said they believe Miss Hearst may be on the verge of "a nervous breakdown."

"She seemed to have no idea of the gravity of her position and listened with obvious impatience to any discussion of the proceedings to be taken in it," they said.

Hallinan had said earlier that a "really heavy afternoon" of testing during the weekend "took a terrible toll" on Hearst and made doctors fear she might attempt suicide if left in jail.

He asked Carter to let her be moved to a hospital.

Legal psychiatrist Dr. Michael Coburn said the presence of such a camera during psychological testing might be very destructive.

"You don't undress when the door's open," he said. "A psychological interview is like being undressed."

The tests Patty is taking, he added, "expose one to his or her own feelings, more or less, and could be productive of a lot of discomfort or potential decomposition."

The lawyers said in the statement dated Sept. 26 that in their opinion to press Patty further "might result in a permanent and irreversible psychosis."

No defence lawyer was present for the earlier tests, but one of Patty's lawyers was with her Tuesday "to tell her it is OK to go ahead with the physical, because she had some apprehension yesterday," a federal marshal said.

Park and Ride Service Soon

A park-and-ride service for civil servants and the general public should be operating in Victoria in two months.

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said a bus service into the centre of downtown should be in operation as soon as a parking lot is completed on the Island Highway.

Work will begin shortly on the lot which is on highway right-of-way near Cuthbert Holmes Park. Government officials were unable to say, however, how big the property is or how many cars could be accommodated.

Parking will be free and the bus fare into town will be 25 cents.

The service will run all day during the week but likely will not run late at night or on weekends.

Lorimer said the program is geared for civil servants in hopes of cutting down on parking space in the legislative precinct, but the bus will likely make other stops in town for the general public.

The Cuthbert Holmes Park site is only the first of several lots the government hopes to establish but Lorimer said it has run into problems acquiring other property for the system.

A service to a lot on the Pat Bay Highway to serve the Saanich Peninsula is eventually planned but Lorimer said the need is not as great in that area.

Buses now in use in Vancouver will be brought over for the service as soon as new replacement vehicles on order arrive from Flyer Industries Ltd. factories.

Lorimer said he expects three or four buses will be put on at the start with more added later.

"I expect a lot of people will want to use it and I'm sure there will be more people than we can handle almost immediately but we'll add more buses as they become available," said the minister.

The park-and-ride service is to be part of a comprehensive transit scheme being worked out by the government for presentation to the city.

It is hoped it will relieve traffic congestion in the downtown area during the rush hours and Public Works Minister Bill Hartley hinted there may be some reverse incentives established eventually to encourage civil servants to give up their downtown parking spots.

Lorimer said the first parking lot is perhaps not as far out of town as hoped for but other lots will probably be further out.

Flood Kills 6 Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — Six Israelis drowned in a flood that swept through the Judean desert east of Jerusalem, police said today.

Thirteen other persons escaped.

The victims were among 19 hikers from the Haftez Haim kibbutz who got caught in a ravine near the Dead Sea when the flood hit Tuesday. Some of them scrambled to safety and called for help from a nearby army station.

An Optimistic Interpretation

"The fiscal year 1974-75 has been an excellent one for the people and province of British Columbia. Our economy has continued its outstanding performance, which is reflected in the production of another year of provincial government revenues exceeding expenditures."

That was Premier and Finance Minister Dave Barrett, fastest draw in Victoria with a superlative, introducing the government's mid-year economic review on Tuesday.

The premier is not a man to dwell amid doom and gloom. He is a blithe spirit when it comes to B.C.'s finances. Like his ebullient predecessor, Barrett trumpets loud the claim that every year is a fine one for the people and the province. Revenues are always expanding, more services are provided, cattle grow fat and sleek and the trees grow taller. And heading into an election year, who's going to queer things by injecting a justified doubt or two about the health of the economy?

Pardon us for nagging, but it seems to invite comparison with the old joke about the Titanic. The cruise was wonderful, food and wine were sublime, the service supreme — until the ship ran into that annoying iceberg.

The premier has certainly put his best foot forward, made out the best possible case for his stewardship of the provincial economy, but can he justify the extravagant claims of his opening remarks?

An important thing to remember is that his mid-year economic review has nothing to do with the present fiscal year, which began on April 1. The review just closes out the 1974-75 fiscal year, which ended on March 31. Economically speaking, at the rate things change nowadays the figures interred in the review's 86 pages are history.

As in most books, the interesting stuff is in the back. Some key indicators would appear to color the premier's rosy picture with at least a few grey areas. Take capital investment for example, which gives some idea of what businessmen feel is going to happen. For the period ended March 31 this year, capital and repair investment in housing was off 5.1 per cent on the year before. In primary industries and construction it was down 2.9 per cent.

In the forest industry, which is generally considered to generate half of every dollar spent in the province, the total of timber cut was down 14.3 per cent over 1973. Lumber and plywood production were below 1970 levels (although pulp and paper production were the highest ever). Lands and forests revenue was down 33 per cent.

Just as worrying, too, is the fact that provincial government spending was up a whopping 38.1 per cent, while revenues rose "only" 24.5 per cent. The mid-year review's figures also show just what a joke and a sham is the spring budget speech. In February, 1974, Barrett estimated spending for the 1974-75 fiscal year would be $2,172,796,526. In fact, it turned out to be $2,639,271,176.

Since the fiscal year ended, he quietly imposed strict spending and hiring controls — in fact, has never actually acknowledged them — which may be taken as an indicator of the true state of affairs, as opposed to the false optimism of the mid-year review.

The indicators of current economic activity are not any more hopeful. The forest industry is mired in a shutdown that could go on for months and the B.C. unemployment rate is rising to levels not reached in years. Reports said the premier was "reluctant" on Tuesday to discuss the present state of B.C.'s economy. No wonder.

Weighing the Risks

Two assassination attempts in 17 days on U.S. President Ford has fueled discussion on security measures surrounding Canadian leaders. Ottawa newsmen have noticed stricter precautions with Prime Minister Trudeau in recent days. When the prime minister emerges from his East Block office he usually talks or shakes hands with the inevitable gaggle of tourists waiting to see him. Following attempts on Ford's life Trudeau's $80,000 bullet proof limousine has been drawn up tight against the East Block doors and the tourists moved further away.

It is not enough, of course to ensure total security. Trudeau often shows annoyance with his constant RCMP companions, sometimes telling them to "get lost" when he feels they are underfoot. Nor can the RCMP draw on the vast reservoirs of manpower available to the U.S. secret service. Under such circumstances the Canadian force does the best job possible, but it is no secret it would like to see the prime minister limit his exposure. The only sure way of limiting lunatic attacks is to completely isolate political leaders. That is also impossible. A politician without people is an insecure person.

Still, the question arises how many chances can we allow our elected leaders to take? National or provincial leaders are beholden to society as well as themselves. An assassination can put government in dissarray and cause a bitter psychological reaction in society as a whole. Canadians have been lucky to date. The only political murders in Canada's history were D'Arcy McGee in 1868, and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte a century later. That doesn't mean we should be complacent. Our leaders often receive threats, usually from cranks, but none can be ignored, given the temper of times. Are our leaders to become remote personages, seen or heard but never touched? Not entirely. But the days of main streeting, handshaking or general chumminess with the electorate seem to be as old fashioned as honesty.

VICTOR MACKIE

Is Macdonald a Future PM?

OTTAWA — Donald Macdonald, 43-year-old MP for the Toronto riding of Rosedale, is taking the biggest gamble of his political career in allowing himself to be talked into assuming the finance portfolio.

He steps into that post at a time when the economy is in deep trouble. Unemployment is on the rise and inflationary pressures are mounting while the Bank of Canada has raised its interest rate to nine per cent to try and curb the money demand.

Reluctant Minister

Macdonald succeeds his friend John Turner who on Sept. 10 told Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that he had reluctantly come to the conclusion that he would have to resign from the cabinet and was ready to return to private life and resume his law practice. Earlier, Macdonald had told his staff that he was thinking seriously of also quitting public life to return to private life.

When Turner's surprise announcement of his resignation from the cabinet became known Macdonald repeated to reporters on his way into the first cabinet meeting to consider the Turner resignation that he too was considering returning to private life.

It is known that he was very reluctant to take on the tough job of finance which has buried many an ambitious politician because of its numerous pitfalls. Being finance minister at a time of economic recession and inflation coupled with massive unemployment is not conducive to a successful political career.

However when Turner told Trudeau that he had come to the conclusion that he must resign, the prime minister warned him that this meant the end of his ambitions to become Liberal leader and eventually prime minister.

This does not follow beause Trudeau is not necessarily a "king-maker." The party chooses its leader, not the prime minister although naturally he can play a role in the selection of his successor. Since resigning Turner has been deluged with mail urging him to return to active politics either as leader of the Progressive Conservatives or to enter the race for Liberal leader when Trudeau retires. Turner has made it clear he has no intent leaving the Liberal party.

His close associates expect he will be very much in the running come the next Liberal leadership convention. He is just 46 and should be still in his prime come the next leadership convention.

Macdonald's decision to take on the difficult job of finance minister came as a surprise to his friends and associates. They knew of his desire to return to private life to have more time to spend with his family. His wife has been ill and this prompted his desire to get out of the hectic world of being a senior cabinet minister which is so time consuming.

But Prime Minister Trudeau can be very persuasive. Undoubtedly he pointed out to Energy Minister Macdonald that by assuming the post of finance minister he was moving up the ladder and would be in an excellent position to realize his long time ambition to eventually become Liberal leader and possibly prime minister of Canada.

Other members of the cabinet also pressured Macdonald to take the job.

Thought Ideal

Most thought he was the ideal man to succeed Turner, and most members of the cabinet wanted to have no part of the finance portfolio. Others who had been mentioned as possible candidates were Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien, Regional Economic Expansion Minister Don Jamieson and Justice Minister Otto Lang. Out of that group Macdonald was Trudeau's first choice. The prime minister wanted an English-Canadian (preferably from Ontario) to replace Turner and retain the confidence of the business community, which is a part of the job of being finance minister.

Taxing Paradox

Some things are very hard for little old ladies to understand, such as why some municipalities levy taxes on housing for senior citizens and others don't. And why all churches in their various forms, including church halls, are totally exempt from taxes, in these times when municipalities are finding themselves in financial difficulties.

At the time of the B.N.A. Act these exemptions made sense, since most of the churches had very little money. But today, when some denominations can be compared to multinational corporations, with their vast financial reserves and real estate holdings, it seems completely unjust that they should be granted freedom from taxes, while senior citizens on low and dwindling incomes have to pay higher rent because full taxes must be paid to the municipality.

It seems particularly unfair in the case of one of these senior citizens' housing projects that was organized by the Canadian Legion. Many of the tenants are disabled war veterans, who could never be adequately compensated for giving the best they had, including their once healthy bodies, for their country.

Some of their funds, they might argue, go to foreign missions. But far more urgent today than gathering in converts to any particular religious sect (out of the many hundreds) is the need for food, technical aid and medical care, as some of the more enlightened church groups have come to realize. I see no justification whatever for the loss of revenue to the municipalities caused by these exemptions to all churches, and the denial of such benefits to senior citizens and war veterans.

But then I am just a—Little Old Lady.

Monarchy Defended

I think that the article by Paul Moss, The Monarchists, Sept. 22, was unworthy as the writer covered a subject which is basically of the greatest import to our country in a superficial and flippant way.

I do not belong to the Monarchist League of Canada although after living some 30 years in five republics I know from experience that our form of government is far superior to the republican. One only has to look south of our border to see that our system has not and could not produce a man like Nixon and I might add other presidents in this century such as Harding.

I know countless Canadians without English accents who are staunch supporters of the constitutional monarchy. In fact the head of the Monarchist League is Canadian-born.

I would suggest that it is very easy to pull something down but your writer may not find it so easy to erect a better structure in its place.

I hail from southern Ireland and so my loyalty is not based on the personal factor but on hard facts after living in five republics and watching the political arena south of the border. No Mr. Moss I was most disappointed that you would cover a subject of such importance to our country in such a light and flippant manner. Even our Prime Minister Trudeau, who was by no means a monarchist at one time, has changed his tune and commented "why change something which works so well" and Winston Churchill stated on many occasions that in spite of certain defects the constitutional monarchy form of government is by far superior to any other devised by man. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Roman Gauge

On Sept. 27, 1825, the first passenger train drawn by a steam locomotive made its initial run from Shildon via Darlington to Stockton-on-Tees, England. The engine, named Locomotion, hauled 21 wagons containing passengers and 12 carrying coal and flour (with more passengers clinging in precarious positions). Altogether some 650 passengers travelled the 12 miles from Darlington to Stockton aboard that steam train.

On the last mile or two of the approach to Stockton the road and rail ran parallel and on this straight stretch crowds of onlookers, in gala mood, watched an unscheduled incident which brought past and present means of transportation face to face with a vision of the future. On this last lap, for a few minutes, the train on its iron rails, and a stage coach drawn by four horses on the highway (and carrying 16 passengers), ran side by side. Locomotion soon drew ahead leaving the 16 in the stage coach to contemplate faster travel on the S. & D. R.

For several months there have been numerous railway celebrations in the north of England. These were climaxed by a train and locomotive, duplicating that of 150 years ago, running from Stockton to Darlington on Sept. 27. H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh was the principal guest at the Commemorative Banquet held at Stockton on the return of the train.

One name was certainly mentioned with honor at the banquet — that of George Stephenson, the engineer of the S. & D. R. and designer of Locomotion which was built in his works at Newcastle-on-Tyne. George Stephenson was born in the village of Wylam, near Newcastle, in 1781, the son of a miner. Much might be written of his humble beginning and rise to fame — in later years he was made a Fellow of the Royal Society and was the Founder and first president of the Institute of Civil Engineers. His tomb is in Westminster Abbey.

A few miles north of the cottage in which Stephenson was born are portions of the Roman Wall, built across England by the orders of the Emperor Hadrian 1850 years ago. Of the original 15 forts, situated at intervals along the Wall, one or two exist to this day in a fair state of preservation. An inspection of the grooves worn in the stone slabs which formed the tracks leading out through the four gateways of the forts reveals the fact that the gauge of the chariot wheels of the Roman legions was 4 feet 8½ inches.

George Stephenson built the S. & D. R., with a rail gauge of 4 feet 8½ inches. The thousands of miles of railway tracks in Britain, Canada and the U.S. are all laid to this same gauge; a remarkable fact. — Alfred L. C. Atkinson, 10651 Blue Heron Road.

Empty Promises

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. have been treating my wife and I like we were criminals.

A year and a half ago, a man who the police said was very drunk drove into the rear end of our car while we were stopped at a stop light.

We both went to hospital and I haven't been able to go back to the sawmill to work ever since. The man at ICBC kept promising us money week after week but we never received any. He kept saying next week, always next week. I had to go on unemployment insurance. We couldn't pay our bills so we sold our little house and moved in with my son's family. The ICBC adjuster offered us a very small amount when he found out we were becoming very poor. We went to a solicitor. He said he would take ICBC to court but that would take a year or so because ICBC made people wait for a long time so they can save money.

We did nothing wrong. We were stopped at a stop sign. Why should my wife and I have to suffer because ICBC doesn't want to pay money to people? We are not beggars. — Disillusioned.

Dishonest Politics

I most sincerely congratulate you on your editorial of Sept. 25, Dishonest Politics. I do hope that elderly people on Mincome (I am not one of them) will appreciate the truth of your comments.

As for other hastily mentioned benefits such as Pharmacare and the rent "supplement" may I add that both Ontario and Alberta have very generous legislation concerning these matters as well as excellent programs of moderate rental accommodation for those retired persons who do not qualify for supplementary income handouts because they have provided for their own retirement.

In other words, socialism and social legislation are not one and the same thing. Social legislation, e.g. legislation that provides assistance to the poor, the ill, the handicapped and many other citizens whose fixed income no longer relates to the cost of living, exists and it is carried out, basically, by our federal government as well as by free enterprise and provinces such as Alberta and Ontario. The only difference is that both in Alberta and Ontario this legislation is carried on quietly and efficiently without drum beatings and self-applause. — E. J. Lattes, 503-548 Dallas Road.

Skate Boards

Herewith a picture (of a child on a skateboard) I have clipped out of another Victoria daily.

I feel that printing this picture is advertising for a horrible accident to happen. I do not know Walker Street, but can you picture yourself coming around the corner with your car and having an encounter with a youngster on a skate board under your front wheels?

Why advertise to youngsters such dangerous practices? Life is dangerous enough as it is. I believe that newspapers have a mission to promote responsible behaviour. — K. Drost, Sidney.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of October 1, 1915

The dining room of the legislative buildings was crowded this morning when the royal commission inquiring into war contracts began its investigation of the purchase by British Columbia premier Sir Richard McBride of two submarines at the outset of the war more than a year ago for $1,150,000. The submarines had been built in Seattle for the government of Chile, which rejected them on account of lack of buoyancy. Lt.-Cmdr. Bertram Jones, a submarineman for five years in the Royal Navy, who inspected the submarines for the provincial government on the morning of their purchase, said there was nothing seriously wrong with the boats.

Brainwashing: Who's Guilty?

By JAMES EAYRS

During the 1950s, strange experiments were conducted at McGill University in Montreal. Students recruited by the Department of Psychology were paid $20 a day to lie on a bed in a lighted, semi-soundproofed cubicle about the size of a Pullman berth, wearing translucent goggles, cotton gloves and cardboard cylinders from elbow beyond fingertips.

In this condition of reduced perception and induced boredom they were told to stay as long as they could stand it.

Despite the handsome hardship pay, few subjects of this experiment stuck it out for long, most quit after three days. All were dazed upon its termination. Confusion, headache, nausea, fatigue (despite protracted sleep) were common symptons. Most could not think systematically in isolation. Many minds went blank. Hallucinations were experienced. "My mind seemed to be a ball of cotton wool floating above my body," was a frequent observation afterwards.

From tests administered during the isolation period, the experimenters concluded that the subjects "become more susceptible to propaganda." They had isolated "brainwashing" in the laboratory.

But brainwashing had already been discovered — not in the laboratory but in the prison camp and prison cell.

Techniques indistinguishable from mental torture and variously described as "psychic coercion" or "coercive persuasion" had been used by Soviet and Eastern European communist agents to extract confessions from political prisoners during the 1930s and 1940s.

But confessions are not enough. As Aldous Huxley points out in his remarks on brainwashing in Brave New World Revisited: "A hopeless neurotic is no use to anyone. What the intelligent and practical dictator needs is not a patient to be institutionalized, or a victim to be shot, but a convert who will work for the Cause."

The regime which has mastered the technique of brainwashing for the purpose of re-indoctrination is that of the People's Republic of China.

The differences between Soviet and Chinese communist techniques of thought control have been clearly set out by the American psychologist Edgar H. Schein: "Where the Soviets have put emphasis on confession extraction to justify public trials (prior to eliminating the victim), the Chinese have from the beginning emphasized the role of confession as a step in rehabilitation and reform, and have relied more heavily on persuasion than coercion. Where the Soviets have traditionally isolated the prisoner and undermined his resistance by depriving him of any social contract, the crux of the Chinese approach has been to immerse the prisoner in a small group of others who are more advanced in their reform than he and who operate as the key agents of influence. Where the Soviet methods have supported an image of 'scientific' interrogation and confession extraction, the Chinese have stimulated the image of a zealous, enthusiastic, almost evangelical mass movment sweeping converts into its ranks by virtue of the intrinsic merit of its message."

An opportunity to study the way the Chinese communists went about brainwashing their subjects — be these U.S. prisoners-of-war, foreign missionaries, Chinese intellectuals or other recalcitrants who would not at once place their minds at the disposal of the new regime, was provided by the repatriation, beginning in 1953, in Hong Kong of a group of American, European and Chinese aries after a period of imprisonment in China students, doctors, businessmen and mission- of from three to five years.

How far-reaching and complete a change in the thoughts of many of these individuals their captors had succeeded in achieving was indicated by their comments on repatriation. They spoke of having spied for the United States — when in fact they had not spied. They stressed that their arrests were justified — when they were in no way justifiable. They claimed to have been treated generously and leniently by their captors — when their treatment was often harsh by any standard. "When I was arrested," they would say, "I was absolutely guilty of the crime of espionage ... The People's Republic took care of us so well ... We had no pressure put on us."

About 50 of these individuals, during their period of rehabilitation in Hong Kong, submitted to in-depth interviews on their experiences by Western psychologists and psychiatrists. At least two major studies have emerged from this research.

One of these studies — Schein's Coercive Persuasion: A Socio-Psychological Analysis of the "Brainwashing" of American Civilian Prisoners by the Chinese Communists — emphasizes the special role which guilt plays in the process of reindoctrination, particularly what is termed "social guilt." This is "the recognition on the part of the prisoner that much of what he has had in life has not been earned but has been given to him by accident of birth." Upon that recognition their American middle-class captives the Chinese communists played — with evidently devastating effect.

The other major work based upon these interviews — Robert Jay Lifton's Thought Reform and the Psychology of Totalism: A Study of "Brainwashing" in China — emphasizes the special role which filial piety plays in the process of reindoctrination. The Chinese communists made a special effort to break down the sense of obligation which the child feels to its parents and to replace it by

HEARST

HUXLEY

One of Dr. Lifton's interviewees was Grace Wu — a Western-educated student of music at Yenching University, whose president, Lu Chih-wei, was an American-trained psychologist. "The president of our university," Grace Wu recalled, "had three children, two sons and one daughter. The Communists went to them and asked them to help against their father. The sons refused. The daughter was a graduate of the physics department doing research work. They went to her and told her that her father, Dr. Lu, was a traitor . . . They persuaded the daughter to accuse him during a small meeting. It was very dramatic. She cried and shouted, called him by his first name. He sat there with his head lowered and was very ashamed of her. Her mother was there and cried . . . The daughter was so successful that they put her in a large meeting of the whole student body and she repeated her accusations. 'Everyone began to listen to her and her father's reputation now began to fail...'"

What has all of this — clinical psychology's demonstration of extreme susceptibility of individuals under conditions of isolation, our knowledge of Soviet techniques of interrogating political prisoners for the extraction of confessions, Chinese refinements of the techniques of brainwashing with special attention to the role of guilt and the manipulation of the filial relationship — to do with Patty Hearst's defence?

Everything.

And what has all of this to do with the ethics of responsibility of the "I am the master of my fate: — I am the captain of my soul" variety in which we were brought up?

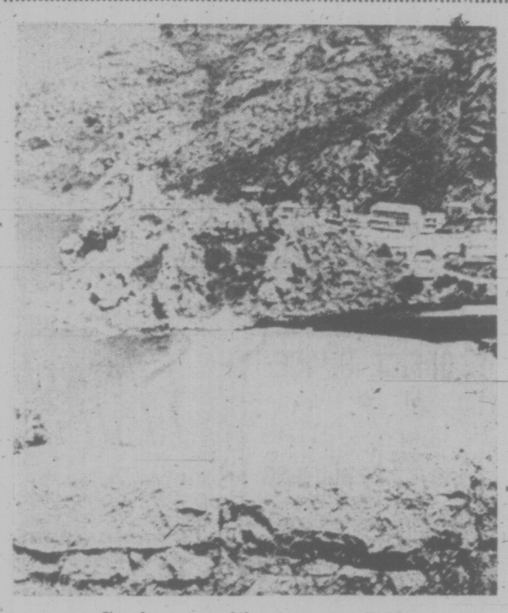
A lot — more than most self-styled rugged individualists will be ready to admit.

Finally, all of this may help in understanding that tangled young life in which the questions that the ethics of responsibility require to be asked are now so perplexing to respond to:

Who am I? and:

What shall I do to be saved?

Bonaparte's Island Buffeted by Separatism



Corsica . . . ultimatums for Paris

By PAUL BETTS

BASTIA, Corsica — Corsica's summer of violence may erupt into an even more explosive autumn unless the French government acts swiftly to meet demands by islanders for greater autonomy.

The Comite Antirepression de la Corse representing separatist sympathisers, who account for 31 per cent of the island's 220,000 inhabitants according to a survey just published here, has issued an ultimatum to the government.

It demands the immediate release of all Corsican "patriots" imprisoned after the siege of a wine warehouse in Aleria on the island's west coast in which two policemen were killed last month. It also wants the removal of special riot police forces sent over here, including the Foreign Legion which, it claims, was involved in two separate shooting incidents last week.

Despite a conciliatory gesture by President Giscard d'Estaing in appointing a Corsican as the island's Prefect for the first time since 1870, his nominee, Jean Riolacci, had a rough baptism of fire on Sunday (September 14) when Corsicans from all over the island marched on the capital, Ajaccio, for a massive anti-government rally. Clashes with the police developed into a full-scale riot and several people were seriously hurt.

Dr. Max Simeoni, who emerged last week as a new separatist leader, has accused the government of playing for time in an attempt to maintain the status quo on the island. Dr. Simeoni has succeeded his brother Edmond, who was imprisoned after leading the commando raid on the Aleria warehouse.

Speaking in Bastia from the dingy headquarters of the recently-outlawed Action for the Renaissance of Corsica (ARC) — the militant populist group that has spearheaded this summer's unrest — he said it was clear that Paris had little intention of giving Corsicans a greater say in their local affairs.

"They are waiting for the end of the summer holidays when the schools start again, when people go back to work, when the colder weather might cool the burning passions on the island. But what they don't seem to realize is that we are a desperate community trying to save our traditions, culture and language. The central government has always treated us as a colony. It has cashed in on the island's resources without giving anything to the local people. It is a classic case of colonial exploitation."

Nearly 90 per cent of the island's main economic activity — viticulture — was controlled by small groups of non-Corsicans, predominantly repatriated Algerian pieds noirs who had received generous grants from the government. The other major sector — tourism — had also fallen into the hands of foreign or mainland promoters.

"Economic exploitation doesn't end here," he went on. "Big industries like Italy's Montedison have built plants on our island that pollute the sea and bring little profit to our people." Meanwhile the cost of living had rocketed and was currently about 20 per cent higher than on the mainland; nearly all basic commodities had to be imported; and the lack of job opportunities and higher education meant that an average of 6,000 young Corsicans left for the mainland each year.

"In 1914 there were 320,000 Corsicans on the island. Today there are only 120,000 out of a population of 220,000. Soon we will become a minority," Dr. Simeoni said.

Economic neglect is perhaps most visible in the island's mountain hinterland and maquis. Even the most insensitive traveller is struck by the desolation of these rugged regions.

Most islanders, Dr. Simeoni stressed, regarded themselves as Frenchmen as well as Corsicans. Only two per cent in fact wanted independence. "For years we have asked for a better deal. Even when the first bombs exploded back in the mid-60s, no one took us seriously. Then this summer when ARC launched its attack on the warehouse, exasperated by the increasing industrial and electoral frauds — in one local election one region registered 9,000 votes cast when there were only 5,000 voters — the central government reacted in a harsh and hysterical way, as if we were a colony in revolt."

The government's overreaction, which is now seen in Paris as a serious error of judgment, outraged the Corsicans, who expressed their solidarity against the government by a general strike on September 1 that turned Corsica into an insula morta (a dead island).

What the autonomists want, explained Dr. Simeoni, is some form of regional self-government. "This way we could achieve a better education system for our needs, including the teaching of our language; a fairer redistribution of land; and economic incentives to keep our young people here."

Corsica is not alone in wanting more regional autonomy. A recent opinion poll has shown that 53 per cent of Frenchmen believe that what is happening in Corsica is brewing in many other parts of the country. One political commentator remarked last week that the French state still believes that central government (L'Etat National) alone can guarantee freedom, progress, justice and security. And ironically, it was a Corsican, Napoleon Bonaparte, who did more than anyone else to establish this concept.

Domestic Playgrounds for Rich

By CHRISTOPHER DAFOE
The Sun

One thing Vancouver doesn't need — along with an earthquake, an epidemic of halitosis and a plastic statue of former major Tom Campbell at the corner of Georgia and Granville — is yet another fabulous apartment and townhouse complex "for adult living."

Many of us were underwhelmed to learn the other day that plans are already afoot to locate a $35 million "luxury housing development" on a portion of the University of B.C. endowment lands. The "luxury housing development," featuring one and two-bedroom accommodation, would replace a number of two-storey row-houses that now rent to middle and low-income families.

The one or two-bedroom apartment seems to have become increasingly attractive to the ambitious developer. For one thing, I suppose, you can squeeze more of them into a given space. For another, your apartment or townhouse development isn't likely to be cluttered up with children. After all, who can or would want to raise a family in a one-bedroom apartment, even if he did have the use of a sauna bath in the basement?

With one or two-bedroom apartments, developers hope to attract the "ideal tenant." The "ideal tenant" comes in many shapes, but he always comes with money in his hand.

One or two-bedroom townhouses and apartments attract a wide variety of people: rich widows who play a lot of bridge, young marrieds on the pill, divorced men seeking a bit of action, kept women, the wealthy retired, swinging bachelors, swinging spinsters and, quite possibly, bank robbers on the lam. Various local paradises have been established for this worthy type of citizen in styles ranging from tarted-up Spanish to improved Elizabethan, but, with space running out, the time seems to have come to turn reluctantly to the needs of the more mundane section of the population.

People on modest incomes who have made the twin mistakes of having children and staying married find it increasingly difficult to live in this city with any degree of dignity. Private ownership of a house is, in most cases, out of the question. When even a modest house sells for about $60,000, the family that makes less than $20,000 per annum is likely to make the real estate agent cough with impatience.

Rental accommodation is difficult to find, and many apartment blocks and townhouses include among such luxuries as the sauna bath and the heated pool the promise that the shrill voices of children will be totally absent.

The brilliantly subtle term, "designed for adult living," has replaced the more ham-fisted "no children od pets," but the effect is exactly the same. Many parents who desire a decent roof over their heads are forced to seriously consider the possibility of putting the baby, the cat and a large stone in a sack and dropping the lot into Burrard Inlet.

The majority of pensioners are in the same cleft stick. In their case, one or two-bedroom apartments are ideal, but only the few can afford them.

An enlightened society would insist that a number of units in every apartment development be set aside and subsidized for families and old people on fixed incomes, but it seems to be more convenient to simply wait until they have the decency to go away or die off.

With things in their present wretched state, anyone who has the cheek to suggest that it might be a wonderful idea to convert another piece of valuable residential land into a domestic playground for the rich should be wise enough to keep his bags packed for instant flight.

I'm not suggesting that he should be strung up to the next lamp post, but certainly any public official who takes him seriously should be cautioned to beware. We don't need any more "super homes" or "super-deluxe bedrooms" for those who can pay through the nose. Forget the caviar and start thinking about bread and cheese.

Downtrend Continues At Toronto

Volume by 2 p.m. was 702,000 shares, down slightly from 766,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Losses outnumbered gains 174 to 89 with 221 issues unchanged.

Among industrials, Interpool fell ⅞ to $10½, Noranda Mines A ⅞ to $33, George Weston ½ to $177⅛, Bad Boy Appliances 40 cents to $4 and Moore Corp. ⅜ to $44⅞.

Gains were posted by National Trust, up 1 to $15, Logistec Corp. B 30 cents to $1.80 and Husky Oil ¼ to $19.

Dome Mines lost 1 to $37½, Camflo ⅛ to $10⅞ and Falconbridge Copper ⅛ to $6⅜.

Cassiar Asbestos rose ¼ to $6¾ and Pamour Porcupine 15 cents to $4.50.

Alberta Eastern slipped ¼ to $7⅛ while Sunningdale gained ¼ to $7½, Ranger ¼ to $14¾ and Paloma Pete 15 cents to $1.75.

New York

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 3-to-2 margin in light trading.

The Dow edged up about two points late in the morning in an attempt at a technical rally. But the buying failed to develop any significant momentum.

Analysts said the market still seemed preoccupied with concern that heavy U.S. government borrowing this month to finance the federal budget deficit would put new upward pressure on interest rates.

Investors also appeared to be looking ahead uneasily to the government's monthly wholesale-price reports Thursday.

International Minerals and Chemicals fell 2⅜ to $41⅜. The company said per-share earnings for the current fiscal year might show a five to 10-per-cent decline because of a larger number of shares outstanding.

Bausch and Lomb, which reported that losses from translation of currencies would cut its quarterly earnings by 39 cents a share, dropped 3⅜ to $28½.

American Airlines, the most-active issue on the NYSE, was unchanged at $7⅜. A 157,800-share block traded at $7¼. The NYSE's composite index was down .17 to 44.32.

Montreal

Prices were generally lower in light trading today at Montreal.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. was 129,100 shares compared with 294,600 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

Cominco fell ½ to $33, Noranda Mines A ½ to $33, Canadian Tire A ½ to $45½, Placer Developments ¼ to $19⅞ and Canadian Pacific Ltd. ⅛ to $13⅜. Pan Ocean Oil rose ¼ to $8½ and Husky Oil ⅛ to $19.

London

The Financial Times index was off 3.8 points to 325.8 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were down in light trading.

Crestwood

Crestwood Kitchens Ltd. reports a decline in net earnings during the first six months of this year from the same 1974 period.

Net earnings dropped $91,496 or 9.1 cents a share to $163,942 or 15.7 cents a share. Sales for the first six months of the year declined 33.8 per cent to $2,307,193 from the same period in 1974.

The manufacturing company's interim report to shareholders says the decline in earnings and sales was caused by a decrease in housing starts and a strike which closed the Crestwood plant here for two months.

The report says the outlook for the second half of the year shows little prospect of improvement.

Koffler

Koffler Stores Ltd. reports profits for the six months ended July 31 of $1.9 million or 23.8 cents per share, compared with profits of $1.7 million or 21 cents per share for the similar period last year.

Koffler, which operates Shoppers Drug Mart stores, said its drug division sales increased 32.4 per cent to $114 million.

Philip Goldman, company president, said plans for the opening of eight new drug stores and the enlargement of another five.

Grouse Mtn.

Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., reports that net earnings dropped by $41,160 to $151,270 from $192,430 to the year ending May 31, 1975.

The company, which operates a ski resort just north of Vancouver, cited an inflation-induced rise in operating expenses and the availability of only one transportation system during the last ski season as contributing factors to its year-end position.

Net earnings per common share was .05 at year end compared to .12 for 1974.

Gross revenue was up by $559,516 at $4,166,952 from $3,607,436 in 1974 while passenger traffic increased by 41,822 to 489,935 from 448,112 in 1974.

The company spent $850,511 in additions to its plant and equipment compared to $1,921,587 in 1974.

CUBAN TRADE PACT SIGNED

OTTAWA (CP) — Loan agreements totalling about $20 million and a previously announced air pact to provide scheduled service to Cuba, have been signed by Canadian and Cuban trade officials.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said at a signing ceremony that the loan agreement is to support sales by four Canadian companies of equipment and services.

The agreements activate the first part of a $100-million line of credit extended to Cuba in March. Trade officials said the credits can be renewed each year to support up to about $500 million of potential sales to Cuba.

Cuban Vice-Premier Carlos Rafael Rodriguez said there is an opportunity for Canadian companies to participate in supplying turn-key, or complete, projects worth between $400 million and $500 million during Cuba's forthcoming five-year development plan.

The air agreement, signed for Canada by Transport Minister Jean Marchand, authorizes Air Canada to operate from any point in Canada to Havana and Varadero. The Cuban national airline will be able to operate between any point in Cuba and Ottawa or Montreal.

Police 'Brutal' with Young Suspects

VANCOUVER (CP) — Backed by 45 signed statements from alleged victims, a North Vancouver man charged Tuesday that younger RCMP officers in his area are using "harrassment and brutality" in handling young suspects.

Frank Kennedy, uncle of the late William Myles Hamilton, 22, shot to death July 25 in an altercation with a North Vancouver RCMP constable, said he is seeking an investigation by the attorney-general's department of police tactics.

But Insp. Norman Fuchs, in charge of the North Vancouver detachment, said Kennedy is not following legal procedures laid down for such complaints and should "get on with it . . . or shut up."

Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian area of the longshoremen's union, claimed that after Hamilton's death he began hearing reports of violent actions by members of the detachment.

(An inquest jury concluded last week that the officer involved in the shooting, Const. Garry Mydlak, had acted properly during the incident.)

"I told some of these young people that they were making serious accusations that could cause a lot of trouble and bitterness in the community," Kennedy said.

"I said they should either have the guts to put their words in writing or keep quiet. The result was 45 statements telling police harassment and brutality.

"They are signed and some name the officers involved. They were given to me, however, on the basis that I would not let them be processed by North Shore police. At the same time, I'm prepared to turn them over to the attorney-general."

The young people's documents include claims of being struck by clubs and flashlights and being kneed in the groin, of police dogs being set upon groups of youths, and of officers seizing suspects by the hair and punching them.

One young man said he was arrested and jailed on 35 occasions during July and August and bothered by police on many other occasions but never charged with any offence.

There was one complaint of youths being forced to remove most of their clothes during a police "search" on a public street.

"I've lived on the North Shore for nearly 19 years, and I know the kind of trouble young people can get into," Kennedy said. "Still, police don't have to react so violently."

Foreigners Invested $54.57B In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign investors held long-term investments worth $54.57 billion at the end of 1973, a nine per cent increase from the $49.93 billion they held at the end of 1972, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Direct investment by foreigners in productive operations accounted for 60 per cent of the 1973 total, while holdings of government bonds accounted for 18 per cent.

U.S. investors, corporate and individual, held $42.05 billion, which was 77 per cent of the 1973 total, the same as in 1972.

British investors held $4.96 billion or nine per cent of the 1973 total and all other countries 14 per cent, each the same proportion as a year earlier.

Direct investment by foreigners, which includes stocks and bonds, was up 11 per cent in 1973 to $32.84 billion from $29.52 billion a year earlier.

By comparison, foreigners' holdings of government bonds rose five per cent to $9.91 billion at the end of 1973; other portfolio investments were up nine per cent to $8.55 billion, and miscellaneous investments increased four per cent to $3.27 billion.

Of total U.S. direct investments, manufacturing industries accounted for 30 per cent of their holdings. The greatest concentrations were in iron and iron products and in wood and paper products industries.

Airlines Flying $21.2M in Red

OTTAWA (CP) — The seven major domestic airlines built up a financial deficit of $21.2 million in the first six months of the year, compared with a $10.3-million loss in the same period last year, Statistics Canada reports.

A Statistics Canada survey shows that while operating revenues rose almost 20 per cent to $710.2 million from $592.3 million, operating expenses climbed 22 per cent to $712.8 million from $583.9 million. The six-month operating loss of $2.6 million is a pre-tax figure.

Fuel costs for Air Canada, CP Air and the five regional air carriers rose 35 per cent to $133.9 million for turbojet fuel and 48 per cent to $411,000 for gasoline. Wages amounted to $251.2 million, up 21 per cent from $207.4 million.

The five regional air carriers are Eastern Provincial Airways, Quebecair, Nordair, Transair and Pacific Western Airlines.

The national and regional airlines carried 527,000 passengers in the first six months this year, a 20 per cent increase from 438,000 last year.

CP Air and Air Canada have raised domestic passenger fares about 30 per cent in three separate increases in the the last two years. Reginal airlines also have had fare increases.

The Consumers' Association of Canada suggested during Canadian transport commission hearings on the most recent increases in May that the airlines can cut costs in certain areas.

FIGHTING FLARES

Police report at least 16 more persons killed and 60 abducted.

There were mortar and machine-gun battles in the neighboring suburbs of Ein Rummaneh, a Christian district, and Moslem Chiyah.

Snipers have closed all eastern and northern approaches to the city.

Bond Markets in Panic After Court Ruling

NEW YORK — U.S. municipal bond markets were thrown into disarray Tuesday in the wake of a New York State Court of Appeals ruling that significantly jeopardizes the latest effort to rescue New York City from default in early December.

New York state, city and agency obligations as well as bonds issued by the state's Municipal Assistance Corp. were pounded down in price on successive sales as few if any buyers could be found.

"Anything that says New York in front of it is under constant, constant pressure," one bond dealer commented.

The situation spilled over irrationally to the obligations of neighboring states like Connecticut which found its bonds reduced in price despite the fact they bear the highest available credit rating.

"We have buyers that will not buy anything in the Northeast, period," one dealer from a major municipal bond firm said. Another called the situation in the municipal markets "as bad as I've seen it, and that's going back a pretty good way."

A number of governmental entities, including a State of Virginia public schools authority, came to the bond markets Tuesday to raise money but rejected bids because the interest rates they would have to pay were considered excessive.

State Controller Arthur Levitt, after a two-hour meeting with Gov. Hugh Carey, refused a request that he voluntarily invest another $125 million of state employee pension funds in MAC bonds.

The state's highest court ruled late Monday that recent legislation mandating investment of the pension funds in MAC bonds was unconstitutional. Teh court said the legislature could not require the controller to "mindlessly invest in whatever securities they direct, good, indifferent or bad," but that he could still do so on his own.

Jet Crashes

BOGOTA (Reuter) — Four persons were killed Tuesday when a Boeing 727 cargo jet owned by the Colombian airline Avianca crashed while trying to land at Barranquilla airport on the Caribbean coast north of here, Avianca sources said.

24 FACING DRUG CHARGES

PENTICTON (CP) — A seven-week RCMP undercover investigation has resulted in 24 people being charged with drug trafficking a police spokesman said Tuesday.

The 24 face a total of 29 charges involving dealing in marijuana, hashish, mescaline and MDA. The quantity of drugs involved in the charges was relatively small, police raid.

ALI KEEPS TITLE AFTER WANTING TO QUIT IN BRUTAL BATTLE

Could've Whupped Anybody—Except Me

MANILA (AP) — Muhammad Ali sent Joe Frazier reeling around the ring in the 14th round before a howling crowd here today, and when the bell sounded ending the round the fight was all over and Ali was still heavyweight champion of the world.

JOE FRAZIER
. . . a battered loser

It was a great fight, one of the greatest, brutally physical and gutty. The combatants—the stand-up matador with lightning reflexes and the charging, pursuing bull, his attack unrelenting—gave no quarter.

And at the end of it—after 42 incredible minutes of warfare, of intense battle among two bitter and familiar rivals—there stood Ali, undisputed king in boxing's heavyweight ranks.

The record books will record it simply: Ali over Joe Frazier, TKO, 14th round. But the cold statistics don't pay proper tribute to the durability and refusal to fold on the part of a great champion and the raw courage of the challenger.

"He could have whupped any fighter in the world, except me," a weary Ali said afterward. "He is great—he is greater than I thought. He is one hell of a fighter and it was one hell of a fight."

It was the third meeting between these two—the champion out of Louisville, Ky., 33, a man who has been at centre stage for 15 years now, and the challenger, 31, out of the Jim Crow South and a one-time slaughterhouse butcher in a Philadelphia ghetto.

Both of the early battles were slugging matches which went the limit—Frazier taking the first in 15 and Ali the second in 12—and this one went through 14 rounds with little to choose between them.

But in the 14th, drawing upon some mysterious source of strength after appearing on his last legs in the fight's middle rounds, Ali jarred Frazier's rock-like head with a sledgehammer right and sent the challenger's knees crumbling with a series of one-two punches to the head.

A loud roar of "Ali, Ali, Ali" went up from the crowd or 25,000 in the indoor Philippine Coliseum.

Frazier stood in his corner, a sad sight with a purple bruise under his right eye, a knot on his forehead and blood oozing between his teeth.

"Joe was taking some hard shots to the head and, in his condition, I thought he had no way to win the fight," Futch said afterward. "I didn't want him to get hurt."

Angelo Dundee, who has guided Ali's fortunes through 51 fights, all but two of them victories, said he thought Futch took wise and humane action. "I would have done the same thing," he said.

"I am tired," Ali said after the victory. "My arms are sore, my legs are sore, my side is sore. I want to rest."

Addressing himself to the beaten challenger, who never touched a knee to the floor although he absorbed appalling punishment, the champion said: "I couldn't have taken the punches he took. He is really tough. He shook me a couple of times, shook me good."

One of the times was in the 10th round when the stubby, stoop-shouldered Frazier lashed out with a left hook that caught Ali flush on the jaw. Ali's legs wobbled momentarily, but he quickly recovered.

"I felt like quitting," he said. "But I said to myself, 'I cannot quit, I am a champion.'"

When the fight ended, The Associated Press scorecard showed the fighters tied in points 66 to 66. The Filipino officials had Ali ahead. Judge Larry Nadayag had Ali ahead 66-62. Col. Alfredo Quiazon scored it 67-62 and referee Padilla had it 66-60, both for Ali.

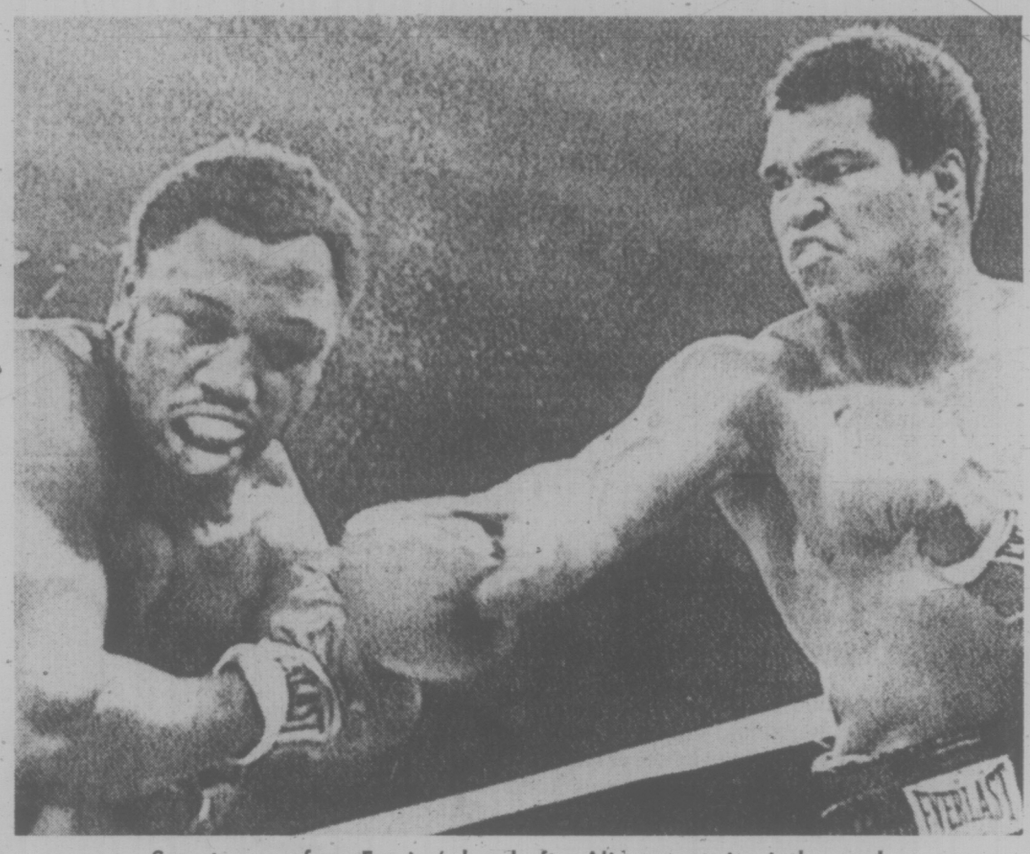
It was a vicious slugfest for all 14 rounds, with Ali, the matador, stabbing his man with lightning shots to the head. He delivered his one-two punches with such quickness that sometimes six and eight were sent to Frazier's head in succession before there was response.

Frazier, a buzz-saw always moving forward and often taking a half-dozen blows to land one, was the aggressor throughout, moving in close to punish Ali in the mid-section but frequently scoring with his shattering left hook.

Many observers believed Frazier would now retire but he refused to make a commitment.

"I am not thinking that way yet," he said. "I would like to kick it around a little first."

Ali was guaranteed $4.5 million against 43 per cent of the gross gate, which could reach $22 million, and bring him $9 million. Frazier's guarantee was $2 million against 23 per cent, which might gross him $5 million.



Sweat sprays from Frazier's head after Ali connects in ninth round

TO QUIT, OR NOT TO QUIT

MANILA (AP) — "There is a great possibility that was my last fight tonight."

Thus did Muhammad Ali again, at least briefly, say he might retire. But in the next breath, he said he might fight George Foreman or Ken Norton.

Retirement announcements are nothing new from Ali, who proclaimed that his fight this summer against Joe Bugner was his last. The latest thoughts come after today's defeat of Joe Frazier.

As usual, Ali reminded those around him that he had been right. "I predicted that I will emerge superior, right? So I still reign supreme, right?"

But Ali also admitted that Frazier, who went down on a TKO when his manager Eddie Futch prevented him from coming out for the 15th round, is the "toughest fighter I ever fought."

And Ali even had a mouse above the right eye—reddened but otherwise unbroken facial skin to show for the fight.

Ali said "it was close in the end."

His strategy was to tire Frazier and use his longer reach. "I quit dancing, stayed there and slugged it out and let him wear himself out."

The self-styled clown king of boxing admitted Frazier "shook me a couple of times" and sighed relief when he added: "I'll never have to fight him again."

Angelo Dundee, Ali's veteran trainer, said Frazier ran out of gas and added: "My man had that extra gas tank. He always has it."

On his plans, Ali was definite only about resting. "I am so tired I don't want to do nothing. I will rest for one week. My hips are sore, my arms are sore, my sides are sore. I'll take a rest. That's my fourth fight . . . 54 rounds in eight months of the year."

Who will he fight next?

"I don't know," he said. "I will rest for a while. Maybe I will make George Foreman fight Ken Norton, then I will fight one of them." And then, as an afterthought, he said, "There is a great possibility you probably saw the last of Ali."

Frazier, his left eye almost closed and the right side of his face puffed; attributed his loss to getting "a little careless in the last rounds."

"I thought it was a good fight" and "I thought I could go on. But Eddie's the boss, so when he said it's all over, that's it.

"I thought I had him in the ninth and 10th rounds," Frazier said. "I thought I was ahead on points in the fight."

How does he feel? Frazier said he will be as good as new tomorrow morning. Retirement? "I'll be kicking it around."

Fans Flocked to Watch The 'Thrilla from Manila'

By The Associated Press

In arenas and movie houses across Canada and the United States and around the world, people gathered to watch Muhammad Ali successfully defend his heavyweight title against Joe Frazier.

Reception was clear and true at New York's Madison Square Garden where 19,817 patrons paid from $20 to $30 for a five-fight undercard and the closed-circuit projection of the "Thrilla from Manilla."

The same was true at Philadelphia's Spectrum where all 19,500 seats and a number of standing-room tickets to the fight went for $15. At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., all 25,260 seats were sold at $10 and $15 and all enjoyed a clear picture.

A standing-room-only crowd of 15,000 was reported at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens where tickets went for $10 and $15 and another 4,000 turned out at Toronto's CNE Coliseum at $12.50 each.

Attendance at other Canadian centres included about 6,500 at the Pacific Coliseum in Vancouver, 3,000 at Edmonton Gardens and 1,591 at London, Ont.

There was a sizable crowd at the Superdome in New Orleans, where a man in the control room said: "It's just like sitting in your living room watching a big color television."

There was no such joy in Panama City, however, where members of the national guard were called out to make several arrests after chairs were broken at Revolution Stadium by disgruntled fight fans disappointed at not being able to see the fight.

Some 7,000 persons had paid $3.50 to see the match and the Roberta Duran-Edwin Viruet non-title bout from the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y., on a 12-foot screen. But the showing failed to materialize and the ruckus began when the equipment was unable to pick up the satellite signal.

A similar sorry tale was told at Worcester, Mass., where 2,000 people had paid $10 and $12.50 but were turned away at the doors when equipment was knocked out.

Maloney Appreciates Canuck Work Efforts

The pre-season progress of Vancouver Canucks has pleased coach Phil Maloney.

Maloney's satisfaction showed Tuesday when he reduced the player's work day. The National Hckey League team's training sessions were reduced from two to one a day.

"I thought I'd lengthen the morning workout so they can have the rest of the day off," said Maloney in Vancouver.

Maloney also indicated he plans no reduction of his overstaffed roster until after the Canucks' two exhibition games this week. Vancouver plays Los Angeles Kings in Memorial Arena on Thursday and the teams switch to Vancouver's Coliseum for a Friday meeting.

At least three players are expected to be reassigned to Tulsa in the Central League. Injuries to centre Gerry O'Flaherty and Garry Monahan have delayed Maloney's roster-trimming decision.

Monahan has been sidelined for about six weeks with a bad leg cut. O'Flaherty has been troubled by an elbow.

Game time Thursday is 8 p.m.

The big salaries New York Rangers paid Pat Hickey and Wayne Dillon to switch from the World Hockey Association looked like a good investment Tuesday night.

Hickey scored three goals and Dillon one for the National Hockey League team in a 9-4 win over New Haven Nighthawks of the American Hockey League.

The talented youngsters moved to the Rangers after the budget-trimming Toronto Toros failed to match offers from the NHL team.

Hickey, who had 34 goals and 34 assists last season, scored two of his goals in a 34-second span in the third period. Dillon was one of the WHA's best young players last year, leading the Toros with 29 goals and 66 assists.

In Tuesday's other NHL exhibition, Boston Bruins defeated Chicago Black Hawks 5-1 at Springfield, Mass. In a WHA exhibition, New England Whalers topped Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2.

Red Sox Escape Pampered Past

BOSTON (AP) — A funny thing happened to Boston Red Sox en route to the American League East championship this year: No one called them the Country Club set.

The old charge that they were pampered by owner Tom Yawkey was forgotten. The Red Sox proved themselves a team of dedicated, determined professionals.

Oh, there was plenty of laughing and joking, a little grumbling, a few heated disputes and bitter outbursts against some writers. However, that was in the clubhouse.

On the field, the Red Sox were all business.

Pitching ace Luis Tiant, who won 18 games despite back trouble, summed it up with the comment: "Everyone on the club did helpful things."

In many lean years, there was considerable sulking by players who thought they should be playing more. This season some players were unhappy but they were ready when needed.

'Deeper Implications' Seen in Roberts Case

Is there a mystery to the Gordie Roberts case, above and beyond the obvious "illegal" signing of an under-aged player by a professional team?

Bud Polle, executive director of the World Hockey Association, indicated there may be when he said Saturday "some underlying aspects" of Roberts signing by New England Whalers bothered the WHA executive.

And in Toronto, another WHA source said Tuesday that New England's signing of the Victoria Cougar defenceman may have "deeper implications" that the fact he is under age. Roberts will be 18 on Thursday.

The Toronto informant hinted that Roberts' Western Canada Hockey League contract with the Cougars is the heart of the problem. It was indicated the contract document was signed by Roberts' father but Victoria owner-coach Pat Ginnell denied the charge. Ginnell said Gordie signed the "standard WCHL contract" and a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association playing card in September of 1974.

"As of now, nothing is settled," said Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chief executive who called a Monday meeting to investigate the Roberts case. "There are things I have to look into before any announcement is made."

Under WHA bylaws, an amateur cannot be signed unless he is claimed in the draft.

Another WHA trustee in Toronto, not identified, was quoted by The Canadian Press as saying the WHA is "taking flak for something we had nothing to do with. The Whalers assumed the kid was free since he is a U.S. citizen. They assumed he never signed anything with the junior club; therefore there is no commitment to Canadian hockey."

Ginnell spoke to Roberts Tuesday and said the player "doesn't want to cause a hassle. He just wants to play hockey." Ginnell added that Roberts is ready to return to Victoria if he can't play for New England.

In another development Tuesday, Ginnell reported that right-winger Rick Martin, a 21-goal scorer for Cougars last season, will rejoin the team as its third over-age player and will be in the lineup for Victoria's opening game Saturday night at Memorial Arena against Calgary Centennials.

Martin, 20, tried out with Denver Spurs of the WHA. Cougars' other over-age players (each WCHL team is allowed four) are Jim Gustafson and Al Hill, both centres.

Ginnell also says he has received confirmation of an exhibition game against the Czechosovakian Olympic team. The Czechs will play in Memorial Arena Jan. 9.

The 1975-76 WCHL season officially opened Tuesday in Winnipeg when the hometown Clubs blanked Flin Flon Bombers 6-0.

The Bombers had to open without Morely Anderson, a former Cougar who drew a four-game suspension for a stick-swinging incident in an exhibition in Winnipeg Sept. 21.

Gord Blumenschein and Kevin McCarthy both scored twice while Gerry Pion and Jim Cruise added the single goals for Winnipeg. Pion also picked up four assists.

Even on Poor Day Reed Pads List

The Saskatchewan Roughriders running back managed only 59 yards rushing Sunday in his team's 33-6 Western Football Conference victory over British Columbia Lions, but set two all-pro records in the process.

Reed scored his record 135th touchdown — 132 of them by rushing — to add to his growing list of achievements.

Earlier this year, Reed broke the all-pro record of 58 100-yard rushing games, a figure he has since increased to 63. He also holds the all-pro records for number of rushes and rushing yards and has become pro football's first eight-mile rushing man.

The 59 yards also pushed Reed over the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the 1975 season — the 11th time he has reached that level.

New Look to Rider Line

HAMILTON (CP) — Gerry Keeling made a lot of friends in his three years with Ottawa Rough Riders, but he won't see many familiar faces tonight when he leads Hamilton Tiger-Cats into their Eastern Football Conference clash with the Riders at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

With injuries riddling both Ottawa lines in recent games, Keeling will have to rely on sweater numbers to know who is who across the line of scrimmage.

Rudy Sims at tackle and Jim Piaskoski at end will anchor the right side of the Ottawa line; Gerry Campbell will be at middle linebacker with Mark Kosmos at his right hand. But there Keeling will run out of recognizable faces.

At 6-foot-4 and 240 pounds, McCallum almost got away from the Riders after reporting last week for a five-day trial after being cut by Houston Oilers of the National Football League. He played two years at Houston.

But when Jim Coode was injured Saturday, general-manager Frank Clair signed McCallum to a contract.

Right behind these players at the left corner will be Kent Carter, another newcomer, who has been as impressive and hardnosed as anyone in that position for Ottawa in several years.

The Ottawa offensive line also will be something Hamilton has never seen before.

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Davis Cup committee of the Swedish Tennis Association settled Tuesday for Dec. 28-30 as the date for this year's Davis Cup final between Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

This was one of two alternative dates suggested by the International Lawn Tennis Federation, which rejected a Swedish proposal that the finals be postponed until early next year because Swedish star Bjorn Borg already had fixed his schedule for the autumn circuit.

According to Davis Cup rules, the finals should be concluded by Dec. 31.

Mountainside Activities Herald New Ski Season

While basking in this late-summer sunshine, a large number of Vancouver Islanders are looking forward to the time when snow blankets the high country.

Right now, all three ski areas on the Island are hives of activity as volunteers and paid help get things spruced up for the coming season.

Perhaps the biggest change will be at Forbidden Plateau, where a new T-Bar is being installed to Courtenay Lookout.

The new lift, scheduled to be completed in early November, will be 1,800 feet long with rise of 250 feet and a carrying capacity of 1,000 skiers per hour. It promises to open up several new long runs from the highest peak on Mt. Becher and will likely spread the congestion of skiers a little thinner over the mountain.

Forbidden now boasts three T-Bars in addition to the double chairlift and a number of rope tows for beginners.

Three snow packers, including a new machine expected to arrive in mid-October, will help keep the slopes and trails in prime skiing condition this winter.

Hill grooming has been in progress since June and many of the trails have been widened and improved in various ways.

Another new feature on the mountain this season will be 12 kilometres of packed and groomed cross-country trails in conjunction with a cross-country ski shop and school located at the privately operated Forbidden Plateau Lodge.

Mt. Arrowsmith is undergoing a bit of facelift for its second season of operation.

After nearly wiping out on one last season, I'm happy to learn most of the stumps have now been removed from the runs with the aid of a "cat" donated by MacMillan Bloedel. The bulldozer also came in handy for clearing a total of 10 new trails — and one more run is in the works.

A new rope tow will be in operation for beginners near the lodge this season but most skiers will still rely on the double chair, which was installed with an impressive amount of individual governmental and corporate co-operation prior to last season.

Arrowsmith was the only area on the Island offering the exotic thrill of helicopter skiing last year and the service is expected to continue this winter.

The cost is relatively high but so are the rewards, both from skiing and scenic viewpoints.

Green Mountain the only other developed area on the Island, is also undergoing some changes for the better. Trails are being widened and cleared and the beginners' area near the day lodge is being cut down and widened with the aid of a bulldozer from Crown Zellerbach.

Anyone who doesn't own a four-wheel-drive vehicle will likely cheer the news that a new access route is under construction, using part of the old route and a section of new road. It has to be better than the two routes used in the past seasons — nothing could be worse.

On the positive side, this move will probably increase the number of skiers in the area and help raise the revenue needed for further development. Regretfully, some of the small-area charm and friendliness will be eroded in the process — but I guess that's progress.

So, until the snow flies, spend some time getting both yourself and your equipment in shape.

SCHOOL SPORTS
jim crerar

Don Horwood, teacher and basketball coach at Oak Bay Senior High, has criticized the University of Victoria for not taking a more professional approach to coaching intercollegiate athletics.

In a widely-publicized letter, he charges that UVic is "capitalizing on the enthusiasm of dedicated coaches" by hiring part-timers from outside the school.

He points out that "not a single member" of the physical education department is involved in coaching a university athletic team, although he later states that the physical education staff may not be at fault.

He also says that athletes must pay out oof their own pockets for the right to represent UVic because the school has given a travel allowance of only $4 a day for the past five years.

Horwood's criticism is aimed primarily at the school's administrative policies regarding athletics. "The university administration seems uninterested in the athlete," he wrote. "Perhaps the universityy should begin to realize that this is the 20th century and athletics are a vital and necessary part of it."

He makes a valid point that deserves investigation but all we seem to have had so far is a maximum of opinion and a minimum of facts.

If anybody had bothered to check, they'd have learned that:

1. UVic's physical education staff two years ago asked to be allowed to divide its time between teaching and coaching;

2. No Canadian university has more than a handful of on-staff coaches. UBC, for example has four who draw two-thirds of their salaries for teaching and one-third for coaching. All other coaches of varsity teams are outsiders.

3. The daily travel allowance for UVic athletes this year has been increased to $6, a fact that nobody has seen fit to report;

4. UVic students must pay an athletic fee of $6.92 a year compared to a national average of $20. The administration contributes $2 for every $1 th students spend on athletics and recreation and, in addition, pays full-time athletic department salaries and maintenance costs. UVic sports and recreation manager Mike Elcock doubts there is a fairer formula anywhere in Canada.

There are other points that seem to have been overlooked.

Has it occurred to anyone that UVic pays more than any other Canadian university, with the possible exception of Memorial in Newfoundland, to send an athlete to conference games and competitions? Elcock estimates that UVics travel costs are at least twice that of Calgary's. The majority of Canadian universities can bus athletes to other league centres but UVic must fly to four of the five other cities in the Canada West University Athletic Association.

Has it also occurred to anyone that UVic is a new school that is not as well endowed financially as established universities like UBC, Alberta, Manitoba, Toronto, McGill, Queen's and Western? Still, growth has created financial problems in areas every bit as important as athletics. Student housing is one example.

Considering problems of geography and finances, UVic athletes don't appear to have been as badly treated as all that. They do, after all, have a new $2½ million complex in the McKinnon Building. If it was built for recreation, to the exclusion of varsity sports, why did they install bleachers in the new gym for 2,300 spectators.

Even so, Horwood is correct in his contention that athletics deserve more than passive recognition in today's educational system. Activities beyond the classroom and library are vital to a well-rounded university experience.

Few activities last year were more unifying at UVic than the efforts of the Viking basketball team, a factor that surely deserves recognitoin when considering the school's various financial needs.

Horwood's point is clear: If UVic expects to continue competing in athletics on a national scale, the best way to do it is with on-staff coaching in selected sports.

Since Gary Taylor does not expect to continue coaching the basketball team after this season, the time may be at hand for UVic to decide its future course in athletics.

Boxers Bury Molsons In McGavin Cup Final

Canadian-champion London Boxing Club added another trophy to its collection Tuesday night.

The Boxers captured the Vancouver Island Soccer League's McGavin Cup for the first time with a 6-1 victory over Gorge Molsons before a crowd of about 600 at Royal Athletic Park.

Bob Bolitho was the scoring hero for the Boxers. He scored twice and set up another goal in the second half as his team outscored Gorge 4-0 in the final 45 minutes to take the win.

The first half was more evenly contested. Dan Hood gave Boxing Club a 1-0 lead after four minutes but Bill Walker tied it 12 minutes later. Hood then connected on a pass from Garnett Moen to put his club one goal ahead at the half.

Bolitho then followed with goals at 68 and 73 minutes to put the game out of reach. George Pakos added the final goal for the Boxers at the 75-minute mark.

Boxing Club had B.C. juvenile team member Gord Reading in goal. He replaced regular Kjeld Brodsgaard, who was injured in a league game Sunday in Nanaimo. Graham Lee was the Gorge goaltender.

The Boxers outscored their opposition 16-2 in the three rounds of the single-knockout tournament for premier division teams.

They reached the final with a 5-1 win over the University of Victoria Vikings and a 5-0 triumph over Nanaimo.

MARTINA WINS FINAL

DENVER (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova defeated unseeded Carrie Meyer 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 in the final of a $50,000 women's tennis tournament.

Colwood Assured Of Spot in Final

Marches to the semi-final round were completed without nerve-wracking finishes at the Royal Colwood course Tuesday in the second round of match play in the annual Victoria and District women's foursomes golf tournament.

None of the quarter-final contests went beyond the 16th green as Marjorie Cameron and Jean Rimmington of Victoria Golf Club tripped Chris Byrne and Martha Patterson of Glen Meadows 4 and 3, and Thelma Bydal and Shirley DeBelleuille of Colwood advanced with the same winning margin over Audrey Kelly and Gert Pumfrey of Gorge Vale.

Two other squads from the host club also won quarter-final matches, assuring at least one finalist from Royal Colwood.

Joan Perks and Kathleen Craig topped Juanita Turner and Eileen Clairmonte of Gorge Vale 4 and 2 while Eileen Anderson and Edith McCormick downed Thelma Perks and Kathleen Strang of Uplands, 5 and 4.

Both championship and flight play continues Thursday at Gorge Vale with the finals scheduled for Friday at Victoria.

SCORPION COACH SEES 'ENTERTAINING SEASON'

Howard Tooby, coach of Victoria Scorpions, hasn't decided on a line-up but he has a pretty good idea of what's in store for the district's senior "A" men's basketball followers:

"A most entertaining season."

Tooby's greatest difficulty may be in deciding on a 12-man roster for the start of the Dogwood Senior Men's League. About 19 players are now working out.

Heading the list of candidates are three holdovers who were most-valuable-player choices in past British Columbia high school championship tournaments. They arde Bob Burrows, Dave Morgan and Brian MacKenzie.

Other holdovers include Gord Hoshal, an all-star performer in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Union two years ago, Mike Bishop, Walt Burrows, Don Burrows, Dave Mulachy and Barry Burch.

Another holdover, Chris Hall, will report for training. Hall is en route from Boston after playing with Boston Bolts in the National Lacrosse League.

Among newcomers are Green River graduate Gary Budd and Mike Zuwerkalow, a graduate of the University of Waterloo. Other hopefuls include Grant Boland, Harry Hunter, Mike Gains, Ollie Moilanen, Tom Childs, Jim Lapham, John Anderson and Bob Vanderford.

Scorpions plan exhibition series with Renton Road Runners and Tacoma Ruth Realty of Washington. Dates for the games will be announced as soon as they are finalized.

READY TO PLAY with Los Angeles Lakers "if necessary" is seven-foot-one Wilt Chamberlain. He failed to show up for Tuesday practice but says he still intends to report to National Basketball Association team. Chamberlain, 39, quit Lakers two years ago to coach San Diego in American Association. He's asking Lakers for $450,000 to play this season under so-called option clause. New York Knickerbockers also are interested in Wilt and are ready to deal for his playing rights.

Economy Forces Toros To Pull Purse Strings

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says it has learned spiralling costs have prompted Toronto Toros to revamp their financial structure for the forthcoming World Hockey League season.

Cost of the massive reorganization and refinancing amounted to $1.6 million, the newspaper says in Tuesday's edition.

The revamped club now will be operated by Toronto Hockey, an Ontario Ltd. Partnership which bought out Can Sports Inc., under which the Toros were previously operated.

The changeover brought in 26 new investors and includes only 11 of the previous investors who purchased the franchise in 1973 for $1.8 million and transferred the team to Toronto from Ottawa.

To refinance the operation, 80 units of stock were made available to the original shareholders at $20,000 a unit, the Star says, adding that those who opted out departed with no chance of recouping their investment.

Bassett and John Craig Eaton owned 30 per cent of the original company, Can Sports, and it is understood Bassett retained a similar percentage while Eaton opted to continue at a lesser figure.

Can Sports also operated a World Team Tennis franchise, which lost $500,000 in its year here, and Toronto Globals of the Ontario Fastball League which operated $25,000 in the red being being sold in 1974.

Signs of a much tighter financial policy surfaced during the summer when the Toros dispensed with the services of general manager Buck Houle and public relations director Rick Matthews.

The Toros' decision to hold their pre-season training camp in Sweden was said to be largely determined by finances. The Swedish Ice Hockey Federation bore the cost.

Beavers on Their Own

OTTAWA (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League QMJHL will represent Canada at the World Junior Hockey Tournament in Finland at Christmas, a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association CAHA official said Tuesday.

But the other teams in the Quebec league have turned down a CAHA request to strengthen the Beavers with extra players, he said. The Beavers, Memorial Cup finalists last year, are "considered just as good as last year" by the league.

Fast Start Helps U.S. In Win Over Canada

CALGARY (CP) — The United States national basketball team piled up 16 points in the opening minutes of the second half to seal a 75-67 victory over the Canadian team as the top-ranked Olympic contenders met here Tuesday.

Canada trailed by five points at the half, evened the score as play resumed, then watched as the U.S. team got down to work. The Canadians managed to pare the U.S. lead back to eight points as the game ended.

"It was rough but no rougher than what you would expect at this level," said coach Jack Donohue, who led the Canadians to an 86-84 upset victory over the number-one-ranked Soviet Union team in International Cup play last month.

The contest, played before a capacity crowd of 2,000 at the University of Calgary, was the third for the U.S. team since banding back together two weeks ago. The Canadians were playing their first game since regrouping three days ago after a one-month layoff.

Canada and the U.S. both finished with 4-4 records in International Cup competition and both are considered to be medal contenders at the Pan-American Games, which start Oct. 12 in Mexico City.

Bob Parish was the most effective U.S. player with 14 points. He dominated both offensive and defensive boards.

Waterfront Highrises Ruled Out

Mayor Ed Lum said today he will oppose any proposed high-rise waterfront development — no matter where it is in the municipality.

He was commenting on an announcement by Gordon Head Developments that it would wait until after the November election before resubmitting its plan for a 122-suite condominium development at 2282 Arbutus. It would include two 12-storey buildings and a 9-storey building.

Lum said he is totally opposed to the development. If re-elected in November, he said, he would give the company the courtesy of listening to its proposal but he would vote to have it rejected.

He said his opposition to the Arbutus plan applies to any high-rise development on Saanich waterfront.

He said that if developers have plans for high-rise projects they should be warned in advance they must be located elsewhere in the municipality than on the water.

"I will do everything in my power as mayor to prevent high-rise development along our shores. It really doesn't belong there."

He said the project was particularly out of place on Arbutus, an area of quality single family homes worth about $250,000.

The same principle would apply to protecting the interests of residents in other areas along the water in Saanich.

The proposal for the nine-acre former Ker property was first submitted to the Saanich planning department last January but council was not informed of the proposal until summer.

Saanich's planning committee (of aldermen) has refused to consider the project because it has not gone through the usual preliminary channels, including obtaining the informal endorsement of the mayor.

The property originally was up for sale at a price tag of $1.35 million but is no longer on the market because the owners wish to develop it themselves.

A spokesman for Gordon Head Developments said the company is optimistic it will receive council approval after the November elections.

Province May Buy Priory

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The Society of the Love of Jesus has offered to sell the 94-bed hospital it operates at St. Mary's Priory in Langford to the provincial government.

Gerald Sullivan, lawyer for the Roman Catholic religious community, said today a letter offering the hospital and grounds to the province went to Health Minister Dennis Cocke Tuesday.

The offer includes hospital buildings, the old priory and close to eight acres on the south side of Goldstream. It does not include St. Anthony's rest home and a new residence the society has on the other side of Goldstream.

If the sale can be negotiated, likely with regional participation, it will probably be the first step in renovating and expanding hospital facilities on the property.

Sullivan declined to say anything about the price being asked. But another source said it was rumoured to be about $200,000.

At present the priory hospital is providing long-term care for elderly women.

Sullivan said there are only three sisters remaining in the operation and the offer to sell results from the "attrition of time — the members are dwindling and they're getting older." The sale would not mean the society itself would be disbanded. Its future has yet to be decided, he said.

Control of the society, with assets estimated close to $2 million, has generated a bitter internal feud over the past decade which resulted in a Supreme Court action last year.

The court dismissed a claim by Mother Cecilia Mary and four other plaintiffs that they were the only legitimate members of the society and confirmed that control lay with the present prioress, Leonette Hoesing and the sisters asssociated with her.

Mother Cecilia founded the society and was prioress for 39 years before moving to Mill Bay to operate a shelter for animal waifs. In 1973 the Roman Catholic church dismissed her and the other plaintiffs as religious sisters.

John Clark, director of regional hospital planning, said today that earlier proposals for the priory hospital, if and when it became a regional hospital, called for removing the old buildings and putting up a new 150-bed extended-care hospital. Consideration was also to be given to expanding the operation, possibly adding intermediate and personal-care facilities for the elderly.

If the priory hospital is bought by the province and region in partnership, administration of it will likely be turned over to the Juan de Fuca Hospital Society.

Name Changes Irk Residents

The Chandlers, and the Heywoods

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Long-time residents of Heywood Way are grumbling this week — and so is the area postman.

For the most part, residents are annoyed because they have to take on the gigantic task of advising bureaucrats in a variety of government departments that their street address will be changed Oct. 6.

City council has notified them that the short block between Heywood Avenue and Vancouver Street near Beacon Hill Park will become an extension of Southgate, a logical extension; residents agree, but irksome.

"I've got a colossal job facing me," says W. H. Chandler, who retired from Ottawa to his apartment at 999 Heywood House, soon to become 999 Southgate.

Chandler is currently collecting change of address slips — "trying to beg, borrow and steal them from the postman" — and working his way through a long list of people who have to be notified of his new address.

There's the superannuation pension people, the Old Age Pension people, banks, insurance companies, Medicare, Pharmacare, a whole crowd of private friends and family to tell all of which "constitutes a lot of unnecessary work".

On top of that list, Chandler is a stamp collector with accounts in Edinburgh, Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea and a variety of other locations, which have to be informed of city council's decision.

His wife Kay feels it's unnecessary, as do Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hackney in the apartment above and a variety of other residents in the 32-suite block named Heywood House.

"Residents are quite upset about it," said Mrs. Chandler. "We were quite comfortable with the old way."

Residents in eight locations, will also be affected by council's "streets change of name" by-law:

—Southgate between Vancouver and Rupert will be known as Convent Place;

—Collinson between Rupert and Blanshard changed to Fairfield Road;

—McClure, between Blanshard and Penwell, to Fairfield Road;

—Superior Street, between Douglas and Rupert, to Southgate Street;

Perhaps the most succinct sentiments, however, were uttered by the Heywood Way postman during his morning rounds today.

Swamped by requests for change of address cards, the young man told Mrs. Chandler that the least city council could have done was wait until after Christmas to switch street names — as a present to mail deliverers.

BLOOD BLITZ OF APARTMENTS

A new effort to encourage enough blood donors to meet the needs of Victoria hospitals will be mounted for the next Red Cross clinics in this area Oct. 20-24.

Rick Stanger, of the Provincial Ambulance Service is coordinating a donor competition among 20 of the larger businesses and institutions and taking part in a blitz of apartment buildings to encourage individual donors.

"The hospitals need about 19,000 pints of blood a year, but the clinics here only provide about 8,500. The rest comes from Vancouver," Stanger said.

He thinks there are enough people in apartments and major business buildings to donate a full year's supply for the surgical requirements of Royal Jubilee and Victoria General hospitals.

The 60 Victoria employees of the ambulance service will blitz all Greater Victoria apartment buildings of 12 suites or more the nights of Oct. 18 and 19, inviting tenants to volunteer.

Empty House Catches Fire

Fire which broke out early today in an unoccupied house being demolished at 510 Dunedin was apparently deliberately set, Victoria deputy fire chief R. J. Coates said this morning.

The fire, reported at 2:15 a.m., originated in a second floor hallway and spread to the attic and roof.

WINDOW BARS were installed today at the operator's cabin on the Johnston Street Bridge to secure it during non-operating hours. Twenty-four hour service on the bridge was discontinued today as part of Victoria's cost-saving scheme. Mondays through to Fridays, the bridge can be raised from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to midnight; and on Saturdays and Sundays, it can be raised between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Anyone wishing to have the bridge raised at any other time must arrange this by giving 24-hour notice by personal application to the city engineer's department.

SEPTEMBER SUNSHINE A RECORD

Victoria enjoyed the sunniest September on record and October promises to be almost as warm and pleasant, the Victoria weather office reports.

But rain may come in deluges in November to make up for the dry and sunny weeks, according to the Pat Bay weather office.

Hours of sunshine in September numbered 286.8 — a record for the Victoria area. The previous record was in 1935 when 270.4 hours of sunshine was recorded.

The temperature reached 23.3 Tuesday — the highest for that date. The high for the month was 27.3 recorded Sept. 11.

Despite the sunny and warm weather, the average rainfall was heavier than for the same period last year. It was 4.9 millimeters compared to 3.1 mm. in 1974.

Patricias Show Rights

Freedom of the City of Victoria ceremonies will be conducted by the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry on Friday as battalion members prepare to depart for United Nations peacekeeping duties.

The ceremonies will be conducted at 2 p.m. on the front lawn of the Legislative Buildings where Mayor Peter Pollen will give a farewell address on behalf of the city. Lt.-Col. H. (Greg) Leitch, battalion commander, will reply on behalf of 3 PPCLI.

This freedom allows the battalion to march through the city with "drums beating, bayonets fixed, and colors flying.

Some 430 men stationed at Work Point Barracks will be airlifted to Cyprus from Canadian Forces Base Comox between November 7-11 by three Air Transport Group special flights.

The 3 PPCLI will replace the 2nd Battilion, Royal 22 Regiment ("Van Doos") of La Citadelle, Quebec City.

"UN peacekeeping in Cyprus is a long and often hazardous job requiring courage, patience and skill on the part of the soldiers involved," said Leitch. "Unlike most other peacekeeping operations, the battalion in Nicosia routinely places itself between the two armed factions in an area where they are only separated by the width of a single narrow street."

The "Green Line," as the demarcation line is called, is dotted by UN Observation Posts (OPs) and constantly patrolled by UN vehicles. Often it is a lone Canadian soldier manning an OP in no-man's land that prevents further outbreaks of violence, he said.

The 3rd Battalion was originally formed as part of the UN force in Korea where it added to the reputation of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, a regiment privately raised in August 1914 to fight for the allies.

The Patricia's, accompanied by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regimental Band from Calgary, will march along Government Street, turn right on Wharf to Douglas, and then along Douglas to Chatham and finish at Memorial Arena.

Dry Cleaner Robbery

Four youths were charged in Victoria provincial court today with breaking into the One-Hour Cleaners, 1939 Fort, early this morning and stealing a small amount of cash.

Gary Warren LeBrecque, 18, of 1754 Lee; Gavin Robert McMillan, 17, of 2628 Shelbourne; Paul Brecken Paine, 18, and Hartman Tillein, 17, were remanded in custody to Friday for election of trial and bail application.

An employee of the store said the break-in occurred at about 3 a.m. when a back door was rammed open. A cash drawer containing about $20 change was taken.

Police arrested the four accused a short time later as they walked along a nearby street.

Touch of Humor Passes from the Bar

ERIC WINCH . . . forced out

Humor, Aristotle once said, was the only test of gravity.

And gravity was the only test of humor. For a subject which would not bear good-natured ridicule was suspicious; and a jest which would not bear a serious examination was certainly a false wit.

Now, rather sadly, Vancouver Island has lost one of its most well-known judges — a man who not only had new and exciting ideas on sentencing, but who also helped bring a touch of humor into the gravity of the courtroom.

For Eric Winch has retired.

Not that he wanted to, mind you.

"I was retired — I'm not old enough to retire," Winch says openly in an interview in Parksville, where he has lived for the last 26 years.

"I was caught by this new Provincial Court Act, saying all part-time judges must retire."

Born in Vancouver and brought up in Burnaby, Eric Winch became a social worker for the provincial government after graduating from the University of British Columbia.

"It was a rugged deal in those days," he grins. "The government had a boat — a 42-foot converted tug — and we had to visit places like Port Hardy and Port Alice."

Then, after spending 10 years with his father-in-law's logging firm in Parksville, Winch became a magistrate in Nanaimo in 1963.

"I went to law school and first became a part-time magistrate because no one else would take it, if you want to know the truth," he insists.

When that well-known up-Island character Lionel Beaver Potts retired in 1965, Winch became district magistrate, with an area stretching from the Malahat to the north of the Island and also taking in the Sunshine Coast and the Pemberton Valley on the Mainland.

"There were far more lay judges than lawyer judges then and I was often called on to sit in places like Prince Rupert and North Vancouver," Eric says. "As the judges say, 'have gown, will travel.'"

A full-time judge until 1972 and since then a part-timer working on call, Winch at the age of 52 is finished with the extra. But he doesn't see the reasoning.

"The government is still going to have part-time judges; they will be called supernumary judges and will be chosen from those who have worked full-time for the last 10 years and have reached the age of 60. But they will be doing exactly what we were doing — so wherein lies the difference?"

Ex-judge Winch, who has three grown children, has no plans for the future. At least none for the next six months. But he does have a trailer and he and wife Bobby hope to do a little travelling around.

And the ex-judge is quite modest when it comes to talking about his famed sentencing techniques, saying "it's not necessarily one person who starts them" and adding that he got a lot of the ideas from Campbell River judge, author and naturalist Roderick Haig-Brown.

But Winch hit the headlines for his refusal to stick to what he calls the "buck" sentencing.

"You know," he smiles, "I once took a break from the courts for a few months and ran in a federal by-election and was beaten by Tommy Douglas. Then I came back and what appalled me was that when I looked at the court lists and saw who was appearing and what for, it was as though I'd never been away a day. It was the same people up on the same offences."

"I knew something had to be done. It's not a case of a small fine which dad pays or which they'll laugh at."

Winch made those who appeared in court DO something.

People caught littering were ordered to clean up both sides of the highway for a mile.

Minors caught in licensed premises were made to visit every licensed outlet in Nanaimo, show their ID cards, explain that they were not allowed to drink there, and get a form signed by the proprietor to show they'd called.

Car and motorbike offenders were similarly punished and Winch felt this had far more of a long-lasting effect than a straight fine.

"It didn't make them big timers to their friends, because it's no big deal washing police cars or raking parking lots," he explained.

"I can't take the credit for this," Winch says modestly, "but we (the other part of the "we" is Judge Stan Wardill of Nanaimo) have helped get it started."

Now, he says, others are starting to see the logic.

"The Alberta government, for one, has just begun a scheme where criminals must compensate their victims and that's a good step."

There is, says the former judge, always a certain amount of humor, "and a certain amount of humor — as long as it's not at the expense of anyone — has its place in court, for court is such a heavy thing."

Once, recalls Winch, a young man appeared in court charged with stealing a dozen donuts. When the case came up months later, he was told:

"Okay, you wanted them, you eat them!"

"And he did and they were as hard as hell," laughs Winch.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, Jane, was widowed after 45 years of marriage to Joe Smith. When Joe died, she bought a double plot with a big single grave stone with "SMITH" across it. She put his name on one side of it, plus the date of his birth and date of his death. The other side was for her when her time came.

Well, she ups and marries Chester Lind, who was never married before. Chester has expressed a wish to be buried side by side with my sister Jane, and he has two plots to accommodate them in his family gravesite.

My sister is no longer a Smith, so how can she be buried with Joe Smith in the Smith family plot even if she wanted to?

DEAR CONFUSED: It's up to your sister to make her wishes known soon. If she wants to be laid to rest beside her first husband, she should so advise her present husband. Her marker would then read, "JANE SMITH LIND." If she doesn't make her wishes known, my guess is that if she outlives Chester, she'll join the Smiths. If not, Chester will bury her with the Linds.

DEAR ABBY: I feel sorry for the Sunday school teacher who has a discipline problem with the pastor's 6-year-old son and doesn't know what to do. Being a pastor myself, I know that every Tom, Dick and Harry threaten to quit the church if they don't get their way.

I've heard everything from "If my daughter doesn't get to play the organ," to "If my grandfather doesn't get to preach his own funeral service, I am going to quit this church!"

When anyone tries to blackmail me in this manner, I simply get out my pen and note pad and ask them to put it in writing. And I hold them to it afterwards, too!

No church needs members like those I have lost. If it weren't for the bad language, I'd tell them all to go to hell. — PASTOR.

DEAR PASTOR: And if it weren't for your restraint, you'd be looking for a new pulpit.

DEAR ABBY :I am 22, but I look much younger. My husband is 30, but he looks older. (He's losing his hair fast.) The problem is that everybody thinks I am his daughter, and this irritates us. In fact, we almost hate to go any place where people don't know us because everybody makes that mistake.

Have you any suggestions on how I can look older without dressing like an old lady? — LOOKS LIKE A KID.

DEAR LOOKS: The solution to your problem could be to get your husband to look YOUNGER. Has he thought of a hairpiece? That would help. In the meantime, enjoy looking "like a kid." Too soon will come the day when time, the subtle thief of youth, will change all that.

A Haunting Headstone Hassle

By MARY MOORE

The flavor of Shirriff Bread is going to convert white bread eaters into Shirriff Bread makers. I cut off a crust and ate it five minutes after it came from the oven.

I have a notion that Bob, who is my son's friend, and Peter are competing slightly in their bread products. Each one is packing their dough with nutrients. Examine the ingredients below.

Bob Shirriff has introduced some innovations so please follow the recipe. I want you to enjoy Bob's creation as much as I do. I have four loaves stowed away in my freezer.

NOTE: To readers whose doctors advise them to eat foods containing iron: whole wheat flour is high in iron content.

SHIRRIFF BREAD
(courtesy of Bob; 3 loaves)

¼ cup honey
1 cup hot water (first amount)
2 tbsp. granular yeast
3½ cups hot water (second amount)
¼ cup molasses
2½ tsp. salt (preferably sea salt)
5 cups stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
5 cups whole wheat flour
¾ cup cracked wheat
1 cup wheat germ
1 cup bran
⅓ cup flax seed (health food store)
⅓ cup sesame seed (health food store)

Into a clean dishpan measure the honey and 1 cup hot water. Stir to mix until just above lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over and let stand 15 minutes.

Meanwhile in a bowl combine the 3½ cups hot water, molasses and salt. Stir. When cooled down to just above lukewarm add to risen yeast liquid.

In a very large bowl MIX TOGETHER the whole wheat flour, white flour, cracked wheat, wheat germ, bran, flax and sesame seeds.

Now scoop out and add 4 cups of the flours to the liquids in dishpan. Stir for 5 minutes. Add 2 more cups and mix very well.

Tip ALL remaining flours out on kneading board and pat to about ¾" thickness. (Bob called it a "flat bed.") Tip all of dough out on it. Pick up some loose flour from edges and sprinkle over top and begin kneading almost all of this flour in. It took me about 10 minutes but this is your major kneading step. Leave just a little flour on board for shaping loaves later.

Return to dishpan. Oil top. Cover with doubled big tea towel, place under light and let rise until doubled — about 1¼ hours. Turn dough out on kneading board again. Knead 25 times. Shape into roll. Cut into 3 pieces. Shape into loaves and put in well-oiled loaf pans. Oil tops. Cover with damp cloth and let rise under light until above rims of pans — about 1 hour. DO NOT PREHEAT OVEN. Put loaves in cold oven, turn on heat to 360 deg. Fahr. and bake 35 to 45 minutes. Test for doneness by tapping top with fingertips. It will sound hollow if done. Cool on racks. Slice and pass around to everybody handy while it is still warm. A great success and thanks Bob.

'Impulse' Buying Almost Extinct

The subject of food prices has become such an important issue in everybody's life that it is now a rare occasion for people to shop randomly — that is without a well thought out plan for the week or the month and not without a carefully planned shopping list. The day of "impulse" buying has almost disappeared.

Looked at from one angle the rising costs are almost a blessing — and before every reader has a fit — I should clarify that, by saying it has made everyone more aware and more careful of every cent they spend on food. It has cut down on the consumption of "empty calorie" foods, broadened the knowledge of nutrition and made the recognition and use of lower cost alternatives a day-to-day reality.

Seafoods fit well into these categories and are being discovered and used more by people who used to think of only meats as a good source of protein. Fish is categorically lower in cost — lower in percentage of waste — lower than most meats in percentage of shrinkage — and as high or higher in food values — so it becomes a "natural" when people are looking for value in their food alternatives.

CURRIED HADDOCK FLIP

Heat 3-4 tbsp. oil in skillet at 350 deg. F. or medium heat. Add 2 chopped green onions and 2 tsp. curry powder. Stir for 1 minute then add frozen haddock fillets and fry for 4 minutes each side. Move the fillets around gently to help pick up flavor of onions and curry. Serve with parslied long grain rice, peach chutney and frenched green beans with mushrooms.

TUNA CRANBERRY COCKTAIL

1 7-oz. can solid white albacore
1 cup grapefruit sections
¾ cup whole cranberry sauce
Salad greens
¼ cup whipped cream, whipped
1 tsp. prepared horseradish
1 tsp. lemon juice

Drain tuna and break into large chunks. Cut grapefruit sections into bite-size pieces. Lightly toss tuna, grapefruit and cranberry sauce together. Whip the cream, and blend in horseradish and lemon juice. Arrange salad greens in cocktail glass, place about ½ cup tuna mixture in each and top with a dollop of spiced cream. Garnish with a mint leaf. Serves 6.

Delay Seen For Patty

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — F. Lee Bailey, chief lawyer for Patricia hearst says his client will not be tried before 1976.

"It's impossible to put it (the case) together before the end of the year, he said Tuesday.

It is already clear that Hearst's mental condition will be a pivotal issue in any trial.

"Obviously the state of mind of the defendant will be a big factor," Bailey said.

Attorneys John Knutsen and Terence Hallinan, also on the six-man defence team, told judge Oliver Carter Tuesday their client is on the edge of a "nervous breakdown."

They filed their statement with Carter after his request for a personal assessment to be added to her affidavit of last week in which she asserted she was tortured, brutalized, and almost driven insane after her kidnapping 20 months ago.

Cheddar Origins Lost But Still the Champ

Cheese is without a doubt one of the oldest foods prepared by man and it is difficult to date its origin. French settlers were the first to bring the art of cheese making to Canada. Later the United Empire Loyalists introduced cheddar cheese, which was developed in the village of Cheddar in England.

Although there are many other types of cheese made in Canada today, cheddar is still the most popular—in fact consumption has doubled in the last 20 years.

Cheddar cheese is made form whole milk. It is ripened under controlled temperature and humidity. It is stored for different periods of time and at different temperatures to produce the desired flavor.

Cheddar is the only cheese that is graded, and practically all that is made is Canada First Grade quality. It is graded according to flavor, texture and color and must conform to standards for fat and moisture content.

Cheddar cheese is classed and sold according to the length of time it has been held to ripen or age. "Mild" cheddar is held for 2 to 3 months. "Medium" cheddar is moderately aged to develop a medium flavor at about four to five months. "Old" cheddar is aged to maturity and may be kept from nine months to two years.

The color of cheddar cheese varies from cream to deep orange but as a rule "old" cheddar cheese does not have coloring added.

Packages of cheese show the type, the net weight, and the address of the manufacurer, packer, wholesaler or retailer. Cheddar cheese is labelled Mild, Medium or Old and the grade may be given. Mild and medium cheddar may sell for several cents less per pound than old cheese, which is stored longer.

Cheddar will keep for several months in the refrigerator if stored in a covered container or wrapped in thick waxed paper or aluminum foil. When cut, it should be over-wrapped in foil or plastic. If a large piece is to be kept for a long period, the cut side should be protected with a coating of melted paraffin. Cheese that becomes dry and hard may be grated and stored in a tightly covered jar.

You may wish to freeze cheese that is left over. Cut it in small pieces, weighing no more than a pound and not more than an inch thick. Wrap in aluminum foil or plastic material, excluding as much air as possible, freeze and store 3 months or more at 0° F.

Always thaw cheese in the refrigerator. Thawed cheddar may become crumbly or mealy but it may be used in cooking where texture is not important.

Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada suggest a delicious "Mushroom and Cheese Pie". This could be your way of participating in the October cheese festival. Look for special cheese displays in the stores this month.

MUSHROOM AND CHEESE PIE

1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon fat
¾ cup milk
1 10 ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ teaspoon paprika (optional)
Dash pepper
¾ cup grated old cheddar cheese
3 beaten eggs
1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Saute onion and mushroms in fat until onion is transparent. Combine milk, soup and seasonings. Blend with onion and mushrooms over medium heat until heated through. Add cheese, stir until melted. Add a small amount hot sauce to eggs, blend well and return to cheese mixture. Pour into pie shell. Bake at 350 F until custard sets (about 30 minutes). 6 to 8 servings.

Chance to Find Out How Much You Know About 13 Vitamins

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition, Harvard University

Vitamins are perhaps the most popular of the nutrients. But that very popularity breeds misconceptions about their nature and function. In this and next week's columns, take this quiz and find out exactly how much you really know about the 13 vitamins humans need for continuing good health.

1) Essential nutrients, vitamins cannot be produced by the body and must be obtained from foods. True or false?

2) Vitamins A, D, K and E have something in common than sets them apart from other vitamins. What is their special relationship?

3) True or false: Vitamins A, D, K and E have more calories than other vitamins.

4) Since vitamins A, D, E and K are metabolized differently by the body, what problem does this pose regarding intake?

5) Severe deficiencies of A, D and K result in distinct symptoms. Can you match the symptom that goes with deficiency of vitamin A, D and K? a) hemorrhage b) blindness c) rickets.

6) Vitamin E is said to be effective against a great number of conditions. For which of the following four problems has it actually been proved effective for human beings? a) heart disease b) sterility c) muscular dystrophy d) destruction of vitamin A and the polyunsaturated fatty acids by oxygen.

Now for the answer:

1) True. However, vitamins A, D and K can be partially manufactured in the body under certain conditions. The provitamin A, carotene, which is found in certain plant foods (such as carrots or red palm oil), can be changed in the body to vitamin A, itself. Vitamin D can be manufactured by the action of ultraviolet light from the sun on the cholesterol in exposed skin. And vitamin K is produced from ingested foods by a population of friendly bacteria inhabiting our intestines. The bacteria share their product with us.

2) A, D, E and K are all fat-soluble. That is, they are found in the fatty parts of foods, even in fruits and vegetables.

3) False. Vitamins have absolutely no calories. Fats, proteins, and carbohydrates (and alcohol) are the only nutrients that have calories and thus provide energy.

4) Since these vitamins are fat-storable, the body can store an excess amount in its own fatty tissue, particularly in the liver. Prolonged daily intake of vitamin A at levels much over 10,000 I.U. can cause severe toxicity. (The recommended daily allowance for men is 5,000 I.U.; for women, 4,000 I.U.) Doses five times the recommended daily allowance of vitamin D, 400 I.U. over prolonged periods, can also result in undesirable effects on children or adults.

5) a) Hemorrhage is related to severe vitamin K deficiency. When Dr. Henrik Dam discovered this vitamin, he named it "koagulations vitamin" because it is necessary for blood to coagulate properly. (A deficiency is most unlikely in healthy adults, but infants are routinely given a protective dose of vitamin K.) b) Blindness is related to a deficiency of vitamin A, which is essential for proper vision. One of the first symptoms of vitamin A deficiency is an inability to see well in the dark. c) Rickets stems from a vitamin D deficiency. Vitamin D and calcium are essential for proper bone formation and maintenance.

6) The answer is (d). While the functions of vitamin E in the human body are as yet poorly understood, its major function appears to be to protect other substances, such as vitamin A and the polyunsaturated fatty acids, from premature destruction by oxygen. As a result, vitamin E is often used as an antioxidant in foods.

7) Group 1 is a source of vitamin D, with the best, particularly for children, being fortified milk. Group 2 is a source of vitamin A, and vegetables and liver are particularly good sources. Group 3 supplies vitamin K. Between the supply found in these foods and the bacteria, a deficiency rarely occurs. Group 4 provides vitamin E. Polyunsaturated vegetable oils and margarines made from these liquid oils are especially good sources, but vitamin E is also found in a wide variety of foods. And a deficiency is extremely rare.

(For readers who want to know more about vitamins, Dr. Mayer has written a "Commonsense Guide to Vitamins." For a copy of this comprehensive booklet, write to "Vitamins," Dr. Jean Mayer, in care of the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria. Cabbage Family Is Fall Fare

The most popular fall vegetables are those from the cabbage family: broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower and cabbage itself. To enjoy their falvor well into the cold season, freeze them while the supplies are abundant and the prices reasonable.

Broccoli: Select dark green, compact heads. Use only heads and tender parts of stalks. Trim and remove woody stems. Cut through stalks so that pieces are not more than one inch across. To remove insects that may be present, immerse broccoli for 15 minutes in brine made from about 1 tablespoon salt in one quart (five cups) water. Rinse thoroughly. Blanch medium pieces three minutes and large ones four minutes. Chill quckly in ice cold water and drain thoroughly. Pack dry.

Brussels sprouts: Select firm, compact heads of deep green color. Immerse in brine for 15 minutes. Rinse thoroughly. Blanch small sprouts three minutes, medium sprouts four minutes and large ones five minutes. Chill quickly in cold water and drain thoroughly. Pack dry.

Cauliflower: Select compact white tender heads. Break heads into small flowerets about one inch in diameter. Wash thoroughly. Blanch three minutes. Chill quickly in ice cold water and drain thoroughly.

Cabbage: Select firm heads. Wash, remove coarse, wilted or spotted leaves and core. Cut in serving-size wedges or shred coarsely. Blaenh wedges two minutes and shredded cabbage one minute. Chill quickly in ice water and drain thoroughly. Pack dry.

ABUNDANCE OF APPLES, FINE FOR PRESERVING

Again this fall apples lead the parade of fall fruit. Red, yellow or green, they are more abundant this year since a record crop is expected. With Mother Nature on our side, we should make the most of this glorious fruit and preserve it for later use. It may be canned or frozen.

To can apples, prepare a thin syrup using 1 cup sugar to two cups water. Wash, peel, core and slice or quarter apples. Drop into a brine bath made by dissolving one teaspoon salt in one quart (five cups) cold water. Dip only enough fruit at one time to fill two or three containers and do not leave it more than a few minutes or the apples will taste salty. Drain fruit thoroughly, bring to a boil in syrup and simmer three minutes. Pack hot, leaving a ½-inch headspace. Process 15 minutes in a boiling water bath. Canned apples may be used in the preparation of pies, puddings and cakes.

Applesauce lends itself equally well to canning. Make the applesauce and sweeten if desired. Pack hot, leaving a ½-inch headspace. Process 15 minutes in a hot water bath. Canned applesauce may be eaten as is, or used in the preparation of desserts, or simply served with pork.

Apples may be frozen quite successfully. Choose firm, mature apples. For use in pies and puddings, wash, peel core and slice.

To prevent discoloration; use ⅛ teaspoon powdered or crystalline ascorbic acid, or 400 milligrams in tablet form, for 2 cups prepared fruit. Dissolve ascorbic acid in 2 tablespoons cold water, sprinkle over fruit and mix gently. To 2 cups apples add 2 tablespoons sugar and mix lightly to coat pieces. Pack in freezer containers or bags. If desired, make into applesauce, with or without sugar, pack cold and freeze.

Jams, Butters and Marmalades Ideal Ways to Preserve Apples

With apples so plentiful this year, homemakers can satisfy their creative instincts and economize as well by making jars of apple butters, preserves, conserves or marmalades.

Apple jam is made from the fruit which has been left whole, cut into pieces or crushed and then cooked with sugar until the mixture is thick. If the fruit is not very juicy it is precooked with water before the sugar is added. A conserve is slightly thinner than jam and contains a mixture of two or three fruits and often nuts.

An apple preserve may consist of whole crabapples or pieces of larger apples cooked in a syrup until clear and somewhat translucent. Similar to an apple preserve is an apple butter. This is prepared by cooking apple pulp, sugar and spices until the mixture is thick.

A marmalade is usually made from a citrus fruit or a combinaiton of two or more fruits one of which should be a citrus fruit.

When using commercial pectin for jams or jellies, the amount of sugar recommended may seem large but this is necessary in order that the right proportion of sugar to pectin be used to produce a good product.

Apple jams, butters and marmalades add special interest to everyday meals and party fare by furnishing flavorful spreads and toppings. Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, suggest these favorites: "Apple Butter", "Aple Marmalade" and "Fall Fruit Jam".

APPLE BUTTER

5 pounds apples
2 cups apple juice
Sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon cloves
2 teaspoon nutmeg

Wash apples. Cut in quarters, core and slice. Add apple juice and cook, uncovered until apples are soft. Press mixture through sieve and measure pulp. To each cup of apple pulp add ½ cup sugar. Add spices and cook, uncovered, stirring constantly until thick, 20 to 30 minutes. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal with melted paraffin wax. Makes about 8 jelly glasses (6-ounces each).

NOTE: Thickening time of butter will depend on variety of apples used. Very juicy varieties may require longer than 30 minutes to thicken.

If using very sweet varieties of apples reduce sugar to 1-3 cup to each cup of pulp.

If desired, butter may be tinted with a few drops of red or yellow food coloring.

APPLE MARMALADE

1 lemon
8 cups peeled, thinly sliced tart apples (about 3 pounds)
2 cups water
5 cups sugar

Cut orange and lemon in quarters. Remove peel and slice very thinly. Slice pulp and add to apples. Simmer peel covered, in ¾ cup of the water until tender, about 15 minutes. Combine remaining 1¼ cups water with sugar and heat slowly until sugar is dissolved. Add fruit, bring to boil and boil rapidly, stirring constantly, until thickened, about 20 minutes (220 degrees on candy thermometer). Add cooked peel, bring to boil and remove from heat. Skim, ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately with melted paraffin wax. Makes about 4½ pints.

NOTE: This recipe was prepared with Northern Spy apples and the apple slices did not break down during cooking. Less firm varieties may break down in cooking and the finished preserve may not look as attractive.

FALL FRUIT JAM

4 cups chopped peeled peaches (about 1 quart)
4 cups chopped peeled pears (about 2 pounds)
1 cup chopped green gage plums (about 1 pound)
1 cup chopped peeled apples
2 tablespoons lemon juice
5 cups sugar

Combine fruits and cook slowly until tender (about 15 minutes). Add lemon juice and sugar, bring to boil and cook until thick (about 35 minutes) stirring frequently. Skim, stir for five minutes, pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about six cups.

HEARTY DISH SEASON NEARS

The season of cold soups and cool sandwiches is slowly leaving us. Fall brings back the longing for hearty soups, casseroles, hot bread from the oven and nourishing desserts.

Lunch becomes a more elaborate meal, the main course often a hot one. Eggs, cheese, fall vegetables and cereals can be the basic ingredients to nutritious and hearty casseroles. Try "Rice Carrot Loaf" from Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada next Saturday for lunch.

RICE CARROT LOAF

2 cups cooked rice (¾ cup uncooked)
4 beaten eggs
2½ cups grated carrot
2 cups (8 ounces) grated cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoons dry mustard
Dash pepper

Combine ingredients and pour into 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 325° F. until set about 1 hour). Serve with catsup if desired. 8 servings.

Sommelier: Just a Job

NEW YORK (NYT) — A sommelier is a man who has spent a lifetime learning wines. The vineyards of the world, the thousands of labels, the good vintage years, the proper wine for every occasion at the best price: these are stuff of which good sommeliers are made. Right?

Not according to Jeffrey Pogash.

Who is Jeffery Pogash? He is a 23-year-old graduate student at Rutgers University: He is also a former sommelier.

And not at some pretentious steak joint in Westchester County that tried wine when the go-go dancers bombed. He was a full-fledged wine steward at Fouquet's on the Champs Elysees in Paris. And if what he says is true, the sommelier business, like so many other things, just is not what it's cracked up to be.

"Anybody can be a sommelier at Fouquet's," he said. A fact, by the way, of which he is living proof. "An opening comes up," Pogash said, "and one of the waiters calls his cousin who is out of work or tired of clerking in a drugstore. The fellow comes around and is hired.

"Most of the fellows knew nothing about wine and weren't interested in learning. It was just another job."

Reached in Paris, Fouquet's chief sommelier, Pierre Laferriere, said Pogash worked as a "commis," that is a boy who runs to the cellar to fetch bottles for the sommeliers. He insisted that Pogash was not a sommelier.

The young American worked at Fouquet's through June, July and half of August. "I had gone to France after college to study and to learn the language," he said. "I took a course in wine tasting while I was studying at the University of Paris and a whole new world opened up to me."

An American friend who was learning the wine business in a Paris retail shop told him of the opening at Fouquet's. He quit his classes at the university, applied for the job and was hired.

"I started as the caviste," he said. The caviste is the man who works in the cave, which is cellar in French. He wrestles the cases of wine, fills the bins from which sommeliers select bottles and sweeps up.

Had Jeffrey Pogash been a caviste at Fouquet's a few years ago, he would have bottled wine, too. Fouquet's has its Beaujolais and Aligote bottled privately, but used to buy the casks and bottle under its own label in its own cellar. The Pre Catalan, which is owned by the same family as Fourquet's, still does.

VODKA TAKES SHOT AT THE TOP SPOT

The vice-chairman of the California Retail Liquor Dealers' Association said Tuesday that drinkers were also consuming more gin and tequilla.

Althoff attributed the change in consumption habits to two consumer groups — women and young adults.

Leaders to Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt will meet President Ford at the White House Friday, it was announced Tuesday. Schmidt will be in the United States for a speech Thursday to the U.S. Council of the International Chamber of Commerce in New York.

You want good gas mileage? How about great gas mileage!

Introducing ACADIAN

Just arrived—the newest, smallest car at your Pontiac dealer's. A new kind of North American car. New where it really matters today.

48 Highway mpg, 33 City mpg*

Fuel economy. A space-efficient, international small size. Generous room for four. Acadian offers all this in a North American car that is quick, quiet, comfortable and solidly built, with hatchback convenience and a wide choice of options and decor packages. In short, Pontiac's new Acadian offers you the best of all worlds in a new car you can afford—and afford to run.

*Based on U.S. EPA tests for the 1.4 litre engine with one-barrel carburetor, four-speed manual transmission and 3.70:1 rear axle ratio.

EPA's independent tests demonstrate an Acadian quality you can bank on: fuel efficiency.

1.4 litres or 1.6 litres?

Acadian is a "metric" car with a 1.4 litre (85 cu. in.) lightweight, overhead cam 4-cylinder engine. For extra pep, there's an optional overhead cam engine of 1.6 litres (97.6 cu. in.). Both feature hydraulic valve lifters for quiet operation.

Floor-mounted transmissions are a 4-speed manual and an optional 3-speed automatic. An available console includes a handy package tray.

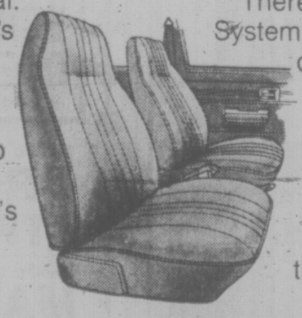
Compact rack and pinion steering for responsive, accurate handling with plenty of feel. A short 30.2 feet turning circle, curb to curb. You get excellent manoeuvrability in a small car built to hold the road. It's a quiet car, with unitized body construction. Brakes are front discs, rear drums and power assist is optional.

A feature that's likely new to you is a "smart switch" on the steering column combining turn signal, headlamp dimmer, windshield wipers and washer controls. There's also a "flash to pass" headlamp control.



Acadian is a "convenient" car.

A hatch in the back is mighty handy when loading and with the rear seat folded down, there's 26 cubic feet for cargo—about double the trunk capacity of an average mid-size car.

Electronic High-Energy Ignition simplifies tune-ups (no points or condenser to replace or wear out) and delivers a high voltage spark for quick, sure starts.

There's an electrical Diagnostic System that allows faster more accurate diagnosis of ignition problems.

You can have a 1 + 1 version that adds cargo capacity by removing the rear seat.

A Custom Interior for added luxury inside.

There are separate Sport Decor and Rally packages offering youthful, sporty appeals in trim and special equipment.

He'll tell you about anti-corrosion measures that help make Acadian a long-term investment, a 50,000 mile air cleaner, full-foam seats, a choice of 14 exterior colors...

A family utility car. Your first new car. Go take a test drive.

No End to the Uses Of Fresh Tomatoes

By HILDA BEASTALL

Most of us had to wait until early September before picking ripe tomatoes from our plants. Now, whether on balcony, home garden or allotment plants the crop has caught up with our demands.

At last we have enough of these lovely healthful fruits. There is literaly no end to their uses in cooking or in uncooked dishes. The more we eat the merrier shall we be.

The bright red and deep orange varieties, the large or the small pear-shaped or little round globes, all are equally attractive. Slices of the two colors look beautiful on large platters with salad greens down the centre topped with white fat-free yogurt.

The smaller ones are easily packed into lunch boxes for they are not messy to eat; the whole thing goes into the mouth before the juice has a chance to be squirted over the environment.

For those unfamiliar with the golden tomatoes, the flavor is best described as mellow. There is no sharpness, nor is there sweetness as some people imagine before tasting. They are enjoyed even by those who have not "dared" to eat tomatoes for years.

The last of the green beans from bush varieties or the later Scarlet Runners go together surprisingly well in a simple Bean and Tomato Salad.

Slice the beans diagonally and cook in rapidly boling slightly salted water for about 10 minutes. They should still have some crispness remaining. Tiny bean pods are used uncooked.

Quick Dressing: Two parts sunflower or soy oil to one part lemon juice, a few grains of salt and sugar — shake together in a glass jar with tightly screwed on lid. This is all that is needed to make fall salads a delight to eat.

Make larger quantities of this dressing as may be needed; it will store for a week or so in refrigerator, in glass only.

As the weather gets cooler we want warmer foods even though something raw and fresh must be on every day's menu. Either at lunch or supper time, see that a plate of washed tomatoes is on the table; or if your family is lazy about preparing food for themselves you will have to slice them ready to eat.

To remove skins easily from tomatoes without losing the vitamins just below the skin — scald the fruit in a bowl with hot water for 1 minute; then with a sharp pointed knife lift out the top core piece. This exposes the skin edges to be easily lifted with the knife and peeled downwards.

Not all recipes need tomatoes to be peeled, especially those you bring in fresh from your plants. The skins are not toughened with storage; they add their quota of needed roughage to the day's food intake. Especially when eating in chunks or slices, leave the skins on.

A cold tomato soup is the next best thing to eating these fruits uncooked: the same soup can be heated if the day is chilly enough to warrant it.

As a splendid way to take uncooked tomatoes on a trip or a fall picnic (what better time of year?), use a suitably large, cooled thermos, bowls and spoons, to do away with dripping juice.

Tomato stains on fall clothing which cannot be easily washed can be difficult and expensive to deal with.

Try this recipe at home once; adjust seasonings, then plan a picnic around it, carrying homemade buns and cheese to go with it. Thirst quenching, energy giving.

TOMATO SOUP
(Uncooked)

8 medium tomatoes
2 Tbsp sweet onion, grated
OR
1 Tbsp chopped chives
½ tsp salt
1 cup homemade yogurt
Few grains curry, if liked

Slip the skins from the tomatoes after scalding them. Cut into small dice into a bowl. Grate the onion (or chop the chives) adding to the tomatoes. Add salt and stir.

With ripe tomatoes there should be about 4 cups of ingredients. Cover bowl; chill for 2 or 3 hours.

Serve in small soup bowls or cups with a big spoonful of yogurt on top, sprinkled lightly with curry if liked. Substitute chopped chervil or parsley or use it in addition. Serves 3 or 4.

Only once have I come across an idea to avoid the sogginess of tomato sandwiches when using fully ripe fruit. It is easy enough when half ripe.

In southern Ontario, where tomatoes were gathered by the basket ripe from field grown plants, the fruit was sliced with a very sharp knife downwards from top to bottom. Some of the softest pulp will drop out, but there will be more of the solid parts uncut. Put aside the pulp to use later.

Spread soft margarine on the bread, filling all cracks and crevices of the bread slices. Leave the crusts on. Not only are they good to taste but they absorb moisture and hold the sandwich together. Leave out masses of mayonnaise; it makes a soggy sandwich.

Stuffed Tomatoes, uncooked, are easily prepared when you have a little cooked rice or spaghetti or other grain food in the refrigerator.

STUFFED TOMATOES
(Uncooked)

4 large tomatoes
1 cup cold cooked brown rice
1 tsp. chopped parsley
¼ tsp. chopped sweet basil
¼ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. grated Cheddar cheese

Serve on green lettuce or young Chinese Cabbage leaves, with thin slices of young zucchini squash sprinkled with grated nuts. Serves 4 as a light lunch. Hard-boiled eggs can be added to the filling.

Next is a hearty supper dish, or for a hot picnic outdoors.

TOMATO-SOY CASSEROLE

2 Tbsp. soft margarine or oil
1 Tbsp. chopped sweet onion
1 cup finely chopped summer squash
2 cups diced ripe tomatoes
1 cup mashed cooked soybeans
1 cup cooked brown rice
1 tsp. dark molasses
1 tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. chopped chervil
½ cup mixed chopped nuts and breadcrumbs

Heat the margarine in a frypan with a cover. Add chopped onion and cook a few minutes until yellow. Add squashe and tomatoes and cook, covered, for about 10 minutes. The squash will be partly cooked.

Meanwhile, into a greased 1½-quart casserole, mix mashed soybeans, rice, molasses and salt. Over this pour the hot tomato mixture. Mix a little. Sprinkle with chervil; then with nuts and breadcrumbs. Bake uncovered in moderate oven at 177 deg. C. for 45 minutes. Top will be a crisp brown and the whole thing tastes superb whether you eat it indoors or out.

Cheese-Pear Mold for Luncheon

Cheese-Pear Mold is an elegant not-to-sweet mold for a luncheon or light supper. Serve it anytime when pears are plentiful.

2 (3-ounce) packages lemon-flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups cold water
3 firm, ripe pears
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3 cups (8-ounce) shredded or Gouda cheese
½ pint whipping cream

Dissolve lemon gelatin in boiling water. Stir in 1½ cups cold water. Chill in refrigerator until very thick. Rinse mold. Core and slice one pear; toss with lemon juice; drain on paper towels. Pour ½ cup gelatin into mold. Arrange pear slices in gelatin. Pour in 1½ cups more gelatin. Reserve 1 cup lemon gelatin. Chill. Sprinkle unflavored gelatin over ¼ cup cold water in a small saucepan. Heat over low heat until dissolved. Beat remaining 1 cup lemon gelatin, unflavored gelatin and shredded Edam or Gouda together. Beat cream until soft peaks form. Fold cream into cheese mixture. Pour into mold on top of pear-gelatin layer. Chill 4 hours or overnight until firm. Unmold onto serving plate. Core and slice remainging pears. Toss with lemon juice; drain. Arrange around mold. Make 8 servings.

Salad Filling

¾ cup finely chopped radishes
1½ cups finely chopped unpeeled cucumber
3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1-3 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
12 slices whole wheat bread, buttered

Combine all ingredients except bread. Spread on 6 slices bread and top with remaining slices. Makes 6 sandwiches.

A Quick Trick For Apple Pies

Here is a quick trick in preparing your favorite apple pies. Wash, peel and slice enough apples to make one pie. Add the usual amount of sugar and one third more thickener. (If you normally use three tablespoons flour, then use four tablespoons in this case.) Mix sugar, fruit and flour until the sugar dissolves. Freeze in aluminum pie plates, cover with aluminum foil and seal. To prepare the pie, do not thaw fruit, place in unbaked pie shell, add spices and dot with butter if desired. Cover with pastry, seal edges and cut steam vents. Bake as usual.

Sauteed Chicken

2 2½ to 3-pound chickens, cut into serving pieces
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon olive oil
3 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
4 to 5 cups loosely packed sorrel leaves
1 cup dry white wine
½ cup plus 1-3 cup heavy cream
1 egge yolk

1. Sprinkle the chicken pieces with salt and pepper.

2. Heat the butter and oil in a heavy skillet with a lid. Add the chicken pieces skin-side down, and cook about five minutes or longer until golden brown. Turn the pieces and reduce the heat. Cook about 10 minutes, uncovered.

3 Meanwhile stack the sorrel leaves and cut them into fine shreds. This is called a chiffonade of sorrel. Set aside.

4. Scatter the shallots around the chicken pieces and cook briefly. Sprinkle the chicken with the chiffonade and add the wine. Cover and cook about five minutes. Uncover and add half a cup of cream. Turn te chicken pieces in the sauce, but leave them skin-side up. Cover and remove from the heat.

5. When ready to serve, uncover. Cook the chicken in the sauce over high heat about five minutes. Blend remaining one-third cup of cream with the egg yolk and stir it into the sauce. Cook just until the sauce bubbles up. Do not cook longer or the sauce may curdle. Serve the chicken with the sauce spooned over.

Yield: Six servings.

Drools Over Special Goulash Recipe

By TINY BENNETT

When our phone rang and an old friend we haven't seen for 20 years told us he was in town, we asked him to dinner. I went into a tizzy.

In my freezer, I had none of those basics that one usually offers special guests — no grand roast, no chops or steaks, and it was that time near the end of the month when strict economy rules.

"What's wrong with goulash?" asked my wife, "don't you have a piece of beef suitable? You know how everybody drools over your special recipe."

Joy was right, as usual, and after checking that I had a very nice piece of lean and well-matured blade of beef, I began to turn what is basically a beef stew into a rather special meal at minimum extra cost. I decided to create a Hungarian evening out of what I had on hand, could pick from the garden and supplement it with a pot of sour cream and a bottle of Hungarian wine locally priced at $2.40 a litre.

My goulash is fairly authentic, so I felt with it as the main course with noodles finished with caraway seeds and with genuine Hungarian wine, I could make up special salad dishes a little out of the ordinary to enhance the effect and round it all off with a good soup, a genuine potato dish and a dessert of fresh, pickled and home-canned fruit with cheese.

My dinner menu finally read:

Bean soup with garlic croutons

Drained sweet pickled baby beets

Fresh picked Roma plum tomatoes, sliced thin with thinly sliced onion rings and marinated in a smidgin of oil, a dash of soya sauce and with ground salt and ground black pepper

Beef goulash with noodles, bacon-egg-potato casserole and a side dish of freshly picked beets, cooked, skinned and simmered whole in butter and then gently tossed in two tablespoons sour cream and served hot

Pickled whole peaches, pickled sweet apple slices drained and put into a bowl with skinned while fresh peaches, peeled and decored fresh apples, pears, and orange segments, a handful of grapes, a cup of sugar, a glass of sweet port, and gently tossed and allowed to blend flavors in the fridge — while chilling.

A cheese tray of fine Old Canadian Cheddar served with plain water biscuits, butter and my Lazy Dill pickle slices.

My soup may not have been authentic Hungarian, but it was there. I'd poached a pork cottage roll earlier in chicken stock and since the remaining gallon of liquor had taken on the fine fatty flavor from the pickled pork, I'd added one tablespoon of dried white pea beans to soak overnight, had brought it to the boil the next day and had skimmed off surface fat, then blended that pot in my blender.

Garlic croutons are easy and worth any trouble.

I take the left-over crusts from the ends of the sliced bread I buy and let them stale in a clean brown paper bag, leaving air in the bag so they don't get moist and begin to grow sour places. I cut them into ¼-inch cubes and keep them in that brown paper bag, getting drier and drier and harder and harder until I need them.

When the soup is simmering, I pour four tablespoons of oil into a heavy skillet, bring it to medium high heat, skin and smash three garlic cloves with the flat of my heavy-bladed knife, toss the garlic into the skillet, toss them until they are browned on both sides and then discard them.

Now the heat is brought high until it is very hot, then I drop in the cubes of stale bread and keep them on the move, constantly turning over and over until they are evenly browned. I drain off the oil. As each bowl of soup is served, I add these garlic croutons . . . they sizzle, if this is done at the table.

Listen, in this piece of mine on entertaining, I'm dealing with concepts, not with the A or the B of how to cook this or that.

Cooking is a thinking-person's joy that is allied to what is in the home, what is available and what one can afford.

Cooking columns that tell me to . . . "take a pound of green shrimp" are not in my field since I know that right there in that pound of green shrimp is a price of purchase of up to $5. And that, the start of the recipe.

I cannot afford that kind of nonsense, nor do I believe that my readers can think in terms of lashing out that money for an ingredient.

Indeed, who needs it?

My "Hungarian" dinner party for eight cost a total of $8.89, including a litre of genuine Hungarian wine costing $2.40.

An Italian dinner, including a fiasco of Chianta, pasta, meat balls, a fine salad, fresh fruit, cheese and bread, cost about the same.

Eight ounces of lamb, lots of vegetables, curry powder, cooking oil, some wholewheat and white flour and a little butter forms the base of an Indo-Pakistan meal — but since the best drink with this is beer, it may cost a bit more if your guests are big beer drinkers.

Entertaining guests at one's table is not predicated upon expensive foods, but upon the loving care and originality of the cook. A perfectly cooked and served beef stew can be heavenly fare.

War Cake, Goodwife's Soup

WASHINGTON (WP) — The press of other matters often nips the sons of Escoffier in the bud, so that potentially fine cooks never have the chance to flower into Sole Marguery, as it were.

In the past 30 years I have not myself cooked a great deal, though my advice and counsel has perhaps improved the food at our house, and I mention this chiefly in the interest of accurate modesty, so no reader will think Brillo Sandyman or somebody is going to share priceless secrets.

But as I look back on a reasonably long career of eating, almost every day for half a century, I may say that my War Cake, Mush and Goodwife's Soup were quite above suspicion and, some might say, rather fine.

War Cake, as I presume we all know, is one of the valuable recipes in M. F. K. Fisher's sound book, "How to Cook a Wolf," and in case anyone does not know this book, its point is that one may dine well without spending a lot of money.

More specifically, it is a book for persons of limited skill and time, and a very moderate budget (distinctively poor).

One recipe I lived on for some months was adapted from a recipe for Sludge. it was, needless to say, quite wholesome and (as the author implied) rather good in a Basic Variety sort of way. You take corn meal and add more water than seems reasonable and cook it slowly for some time, until the teeth stop protesting when you bite into a sample from the pot.

Mrs. Fisher says you can add almost anything to it, in the way of vegetable scraps, except beets which turn it into a ghastly mess because of the color. She is correct, as she usually is.

You can eat it hot or cold. I thought a little bacon grease improved it. Also salt, I did not think of salt at first.

During this Sludge Period, of about seven months, I was working on a cotton farm and the pay was 40 cents an hour, so it was well not to spend too much for food.

The plantation store had chops and so forth, but I could not afford them. I did indulge in Vienna sausages.

The War Cake, which has no eggs, butter or flour—no, I suppose it had to have flour to give it body—was quite economical as cakes go.

My wife has made those little cakes like mounds of Christmas tree balls, only they are puff paste stuffed with sweetened and flavored whipped cream, and the whole monument glued together with a sugar glaze and dusted with powdered sugar. Well, War Cake is not like that and I do not wish to over-sell it to anyone.

The critical elements are the molasses, soda and plenty of nutmeg or other assertive spice which keeps the bacon drippings (as I say, you do not need butter) from flavoring the cake too much.

When I think of the anxiety some cooks go through with the cakes in the oven, I smile, for War Cake is not temperamental.

At another period I used to cook a Biscuit de Savoie, one of Thomas Jefferson's recipes, and the oven was pretty critical. Not so with War Cake. I never knew it to fail.

Mrs. Fisher said it was honest and hearty or something of the sort.

Those who are innocent at heart will not think honest and hearty pejorative words. Mrs. Fisher said you could put raisins in it, if you wished to be extravagant. I so wished, and so did.

What happened to the world when sugar and butter cost less than raisins? For all I know bacon fat now costs more than butter and eggs now, but War Cake was cheap when I made it, and good.

Hunger is not only the best sauce, but the only one. Some gourmet dinners I have been to—where the tenderloin of beef is the only dull and routine things on the menu—have struck me as quite poor. This is only partly because pretentious food should be prepared perfectly (whereas with War Cake some latitude of execution is allowed) but mainly because I was not really all that hungry.

Socred Dissent Predicted

Three ex-Liberal MLAs, who joined the Social Credit party Tuesday will have real troubles trying to fit into the Socred caucus, Tory leader Scott Wallace said in an interview Tuesday.

"And if that party is elected there will be substantial conflicts within a short time . . . just look at what they (the three old Liberals have said over the last 10 years," said Wallace.

But the Tory leader said the defection of Allan Williams, Garde Gardom and Pat McGeer will improve the popularity of the Socreds and perhaps help them win votes from the NDP next election.

He still does not see the Socreds as a "unity party," however, because he says it is "a hodge podge of various political views" and the ex-Liberals have often been at odds with the Socreds 'position.

At his news conference Socred Leader Bill Bennett said the three would be given "very important responsibilities" in his new "shadow cabinet."

New Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, who up until now has been sharing an office with Williams, said the public has been well aware of the "game plan" to join the Socreds ever since the three menturned independent last May.

Gibson said the defection reminds him of the story of a politician who said: "Gentlemen, those are my principles, if you don't like them, I'll change them."

The Liberals will put up a good fight in the two ridings now held by the new Socreds but Gibson said it won't be a vindictive fight.

He said he does not see the defection as helping to defeat the NDP because it will not take away votes from the NDP. Only the Liberals, in a moderate role can do that, he said

"The people will judge whether the move was opportunistic, said Gibson, and will also decide whether the three should have stepped down and run in a by-election.

Both Gibson and Wallace said Williams will never receive the Socred nomination in West Vancouver if former Tory Peter Hyndman continues with his plans to seek the nomination. Hyndman has been working on the nomination for months.

Argentine Lawyers Executed

BUENOS AIRES (AP) Two lawyers for leftist political prisoners were kidnapped and killed Tuesday, apparently by a right-wing execution squad, police reported.

The bullet-ridden and bound bodies of Felipe Rodriguez Araya and Eduardo Luis Lezcano, 42, were found along a road in Rosario, 250 miles north of Buenos Aires, hours after their families, reported they had been kidnapped from their homes by armed bands.

Araya and Lezcano had both defended a number of leftist political prisoners captured under current state-of-siege laws to combat growing terrorism.

Mt. Baker Data Readings 'Contradictory, Confusing'

SEATTLE (AP) — University of Washington scientists have reported slight changes in gravity readings that could be interpreted to mean that Mt. Baker's Sherman Crater is being uplifted, an occurrence that precedes eruption in other types of volcanoes.

But Dr. Steve Malone of the university's geophysics department explained Tuesday that Mt. Baker is different, and data from other instruments on the mountain make the situation "contradictory and confusing."

"There still is no reason to expect that an eruption of Mt. Baker is imminent," Malone said.

When a Hawaiian volcano swells up prior to an eruption, the changes can be detected by tiltmeters on the flanks of the mountain.

Malone added that seismometers on Mt. Baker have indicated no increase in earthquake activity, which might be expected to accompany changes in the mountain's silhouette.

Hawaiian volcanoes are huge, gently sloping masses of lava, tending to "swell up like a balloon" before an eruption. Malone said that cascade volcanoes such as Baker — steep peaks composed of layers of volcanic material — could behave differently.

The summit could be pushed up "like squeezing toothpaste out of a tube" without changing the tilt of the mountain's shoulders, he speculated.

Court Puzzles Pot Varieties

VANCOUVER (CP) — How many species are there of marijuana?

Some botanists doing research in the U.S. say there are at least three — cannabis sativa, cannabis indica, and cannabis ruderalis — and possibly as many as eight.

At county court in Vancouver Monday, Dr. Ernest Small, an Ottawa botanist called by the crown as an expert witness, jumped from one courtroom to another to give testimony at two narcotics trials where the problem of cannabis nomenclature is at issue.

Dr. Small, an employee of the federal department of agriculture who has spent the last six years studying the nomenclature of cannabis, testified at the trial of James Michael Spanks, 27, Stanley Victor Herbert, 25, and Michael Charles Coombs, 31.

The three were charged in December, 1973, with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking. At that time police arrested two men found carrying a trunk containing 50 pounds of marijuana into a Vancouver residence. A third man was the occupant of the residence.

"As the result of my research I am convinced that there is only one species (of cannabis) that merits recognition. That species is cannabis sativa," he told Judge Lee Skipp.

After a full morning and part of the afternoon testifying at the trial of Spanks, Herbert and Coombs, proceedings were adjourned to allow Small to present similar testimony at another narcotics trial being held down the hall.

There, before Mr. Justice William Schultz and a jury, he gave similar testimony at the trial of Nields Anthony Tingskou, Kenneth Roy Simpson, Glen Edward Nikkel and Allan Lawrence Ernewein, all charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Dan Steinberg, Small was asked about research which has supposedly indicated there are more than one species of cannabis.

Small told the court that the conclusion of his research is that both cannabis indica and cannabis ruderalis are "merely varieties of cannabis sativa."

"It's like asking if I have studied collies. Yes, I've studied collies. Some people might call collies a separate species, but any competent taxonomist (the orderly classification and naming of plants and animals) knows that a collie is only one variety of the species dog," he testified.

He said that through the centuries, by selection, man has created artificial variants within the confines of single species.

The physical differences in the plants are among the criteria used by proponents of the three-species theory to support their contentions.

Small told Judge Skipp earlier in the day that the battle over whether there is just one or three species of the drug has resulted in a "travelling circus giving two sides of the question.

NIXON SUCCESSOR IN MID-JANUARY?

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal party sources are predicting a mid-January leadership convention, to choose a successor to Robert Nixon who resigned Tuesday.

Nixon submitted his resignation Tuesday. His five-paragraph letter said he will continue in his leadership duties until a successor is elected. The 47-year-old leader has held the position since 1967.

Olympic Village Buyer Shortage?

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal realtor said Tuesday apartments in the Olympic Village, to be sold as condominiums after the 1976 Summer Games, may find few buyers.

Games organizers have stated the 900 units will carry price tags ranging from $20,000 to as much as $70,000.

"I don't know who is offering them (village promoters) $20,000 to $70,000 for the apartments," Bev Bailey, president of A. E. Lepage-Westmount Realties said.

The Olympic Village is located in the city's east-end near major oil refineries. At times, the rank odor from the refineries is discernible in the vicinity of the village.

There is a housing shortage in the city now, Mr. Bailey noted, but the big demand is for medium-priced units, not for luxury accomodation.

However, condominiums are the way of the future in urban housing, Mr. Bailey said. He attributed this to the frustration felt by real estate companies over rent controls, and the public's desire to own rather than rent accomodations.

"Look at Habitat," Mr. Bailey said, "After Expo '67 you couldn't give those apartments away because they didn't have a school and they were far away from stores. Now there's a waiting list."

"How can you tell about these things?"

Environmental Pacts

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and at least six provinces will sign an environmental agreement next week, an environment department spokesman said Tuesday.

Pierre Nadeau, special assistant to Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve, said the agreement will be a general document designed to promote federal-provincial cooperation and higher standards in the environmental field.

Ontario, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have agreed to sign and negotiations still are

"We hope more provinces will agree," Nadeau said.

The signing will take place at a meeting of federal and provincial environment and resources ministers Oct. 8-10 in Ingonish, N.S., a Cape Breton Island resort community.

Nadeau said details of the agreement will be released when it is signed.

Unification 'Still Not Accepted' in Forces

Canadian Press

Low morale in Canada's armed forces is contributing to the decline in the country's military strength, the national director of the Federation of Military and United Services Institutes in Canada said Tuesday.

Lt.-Col. F. J. Picking said in an interview in Victoria that many experienced and qualified servicemen are dropping out and this means Canadians are not getting the return on the money invested in them.

"The low morale was caused not only by the effects of unification of the forces but also by the lack of manpower and equipment," he said.

Even after 10 years, unification is not accepted by older servicemen, particularly in the navy, Lt.-Col. Picking said.

He also said that if the country had any real threat to contend with it would be in trouble because its forces are spread so thinly.

Reporting on the biennial conference of the federation held here during the weekend, Lt.-Col. Picking referred to a resolution passed by the more than 40 delegates representing 21 military and united services institutes from coast to coast.

"Unilateral decisions by NATO members to reduce their share of the security premium will reduce in like measure the security we enjoy and weaken NATO's bargaining position for the reduction of forces," it said.

The resolution noted the reduction in Canada's expenditures on defence to about two per cent in 1974 from 8.1 per cent of the gross national product after the Korean War in 1954 and the reduction of the regular forces to 80,000 or less in 1974 from 126,474 in 1963.

"Its militia and reserves decimated, its military equipment obsolete or becoming so rapidly and when we hear of a further reduction of those forces, in number and equipment, before a mutual reduction of forces is negotiated between NATO and the Warsaw Pact countries, we regard the situation with great apprehension."

The resolution urges the federal government to:

—Maintain its armed forces at a strength which, properly and adequately equipped, will ensure that the sovereignty of Canada over its own territory is full provided for;

—Honor its obligations under the NATO treaty and its NORAD agreement to the full;

—Continue its support of the United Nations Organization by providing peace-keeping forces on an adequate basis;

—Maintain forces in sufficient strength, properly equipped, to ensure the internal security of Canada, including aid to the civil power if, as and when required by the laws of Canada;

—Bring its regular and reserve forces up to sufficient strength in numbers and effectiveness by the provision of modern equipment . . . and to maintain this strength in personnel and equipment until mutual armed forces and equipment reduction is negotiated and assured between NATO and the Soviet bloc.

Amin 'Spoiled Country'

TORONTO—Denis Hills, the retired British school teacher who almost went before a firing squad for calling Ugandan President Idi Amin a village tyrant, said Tuesday he spoke out against Amin because "he spoiled a country that was learning to be free."

Hills, 61, speaking to about 350 persons at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, said he raised "a very small voice of protest" and was surprised that he became international news.

In his address, Hills said the denial of freedom of speech is the most serious mark against Amin's dictatorship and the official Ugandan newspaper, Voice of Uganda, is nothing more than a "diary of Amin's doings."

Hills said his manuscript was "just a mosquito bite" but that an African "would probably have disappeared" for such criticism.

The 74-year-old actress fractured her leg Monday night in Sydney, Australia when she collapsed on stage at the opening of her show at Her Majesty's theatre.

Insurance on her famed legs — a Dietrich trademark since the days she performed in Germany before the Second World War — had just four more days to run when she suffered her accident, the Lloyds spokesman said.

Dietrich has long been a customer of Lloyds, he said.

"We have insured her legs all along and, although she broke a leg once before, we think that overall we might just have made a profit," he said.

QUEBEC — Former government official Rene Gagnon was fined a total of $700 Tuesday by Sessions Court Judge Anatole Corriveau after pleading guilty to two charges of conspiracy and accepting a bribe. Gagnon, a one-time executive assistant to both Immigration Minister Jean Bienvenue and Former Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, was fined $500 for accepting a $2,000 bribe to influence the nomination of Paul Joyal to a position with the Quebec Minimum Salary Commission.

SAN FRANCISCO — Cabdriver John Ludwig, wounded by a bullet fired at President Ford, says he has asked the FBI to let him have it as a souvenir. Authorities are still holding the bullet as evidence in the case of attempted assassination.

Ludwig, 42, said Tuesday he already had received a note of sympathy from the president, which said:

"You and I, and the others in the crowd in front of the St. Francis (hotel), have a special reason to thank God for watching over us." It was signed "Jerry Ford."

MONTREAL — Gilles Caouette, son of Social Credit party leader Real Caouette, will run as the party's candidate in the Oct. 14 federal by-election in Hochelaga riding.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Al Jackson Jr., a producer for Stax Records, Inc., and a former drummer for the group Booker T. and the MGs, was shot to death during a burglary early today at his home, police said. The musician, 39, who was shot and critically wounded by his wife, Barbara, two months ago, apparently was killed after the burglars became angry when he did not have enough money to meet their demands, the spokesman said.

'I Was Here'— Benevolent Burglar

"Hello," the message said. "I was here last night and I could easily have taken everything. Be more careful in future."

'DIPLOMATIC NIGHTMARE'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William L. Scott, (Rep.-Va.) has labelled as "pure nonsense" a newspaper story quoting a U.S. state department source as saying he insulted almost every country he visited in a recent tour of the Middle East.

"I just can't understand why a reporter would deliberately write a false and misleading story," Scott said on the floor of the senate Tuesday in denouncing a Washington Star story which said the source called Scott's 24-day trip "a diplomatic nightmare."

"I believe it casts doubt on the credibility of the American press," said Scott, a member of the armed services committee.

The story, written by Lisa Myers, quoted a state department spokesman who demanded anonymity as saying of the trip, "it will take us two years to repair the damage Scott did in these couple of weeks."

The star quoted the source as saying Scott confused the Suez Canal and the Persian Gulf while meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat; complained while visiting a Moslem mosque that it wasn't "a Christian building," and asked Israeli Prime Minister Yitzak Rabin, "What's this Gaza stuff? I never have understood that."

Soviets Go All Out To Restore Lake

LAKE SEVAN, Soviet Armenia (WP) — In the name of progress, Soviet authorities decided a few decades ago to empty one of the world's largest and most beautiful mountain lakes. They reasoned that the water could be better used to irrigate the valleys nearby and provide electricity for much of Armenia.

But that challenge to nature proved to be a mistake and now, at enormous cost in money and time, Lake Sevan is being saved.

To offset a loss of water that has already seriously disrupted the ecological balance of the area, the Soviets are building a 30-mile tunnel from the Arpa River to the lake. It is an undertaking so difficult that three deadlines for its completion have been missed and engineers say at least another two years will be necessary to finish the job.

After the Bolshevik revolution in 1917, Lenin offered his now-classic equation for growth: "Communism equals Soviet power plus electrification of the whole country." Reversing any ambitious project towards that end in the Soviet Union is hard enough, but doing so on primarily environmental grounds is a substantial tribute to popular will.

For thousands of years, the clear, cool waters of Lake Sevan, stretching hundreds of miles through volcanic terrain, meant almost as much to Armenians as the snow-capped peaks of Mt. Ararat, the legendary landing place of Noah's ark.

When the modern boundaries were drawn a half-century ago, Ararat ended up on the Turkish side of the frontier and today looms over Aremnia through fluffy autumn clouds as an ethereal presence — of the land, but not in it.

To compound that loss with the demise of Lake Sevan was evidently more than the proud inhabitants of this little Soviet republic could stand. "The lake is one of our miracles," said an Armenian involved in the effort to restore it. "People thought, 'You can't take it from us.'"

They discovered that reducing the size of the lake changed the climate of the region, making it drier despite improved irrigation in some areas. Moreover, the stock of trout that as a major source of food in Armenia sharply dropped when the water turned cooler. The swampy drainage areas proved only marginally useful for crops.

Hydroelectric energy did make an important contribution to Armenia's economy, but large quantities of natural gas found in surrounding parts of the Soviet Union were nearly as effective. Then, new techniques for harnessing water made smaller rivers potential power sources also.

In the early 1960s, the tally was finally drawn and the idea for restructuring the landscape that seemed so promising 30 years earlier was abandoned.

Yet, by then, a full third of the lake's water had been expended on the six power stations constructed along the Razdan River that flows from it, as well as on irrigation systems. Sevan was smaller by some 50 square miles and its water level had fallen by about 52 feet.

From a windswept hilltop peninsula here, where a sturdy 9th century church still stands, Sevan shows the signs of its diminished grandeur in patches of barren shoreline and shallow places.

Although the operation of the hydroelectric stations was cut to a few hours, a new source of water had to be located to prevent further shrinking and, hopefully, to return the lake gradually to something like its former splendor.

The only feasible river was the Arpa, 30 miles away. Engineers decided to dam the waterway and put a tunnel under the rugged Caucasus to Sevan. Early borings led to optimistic estimates that work could be completed in 1970.

That date was twice pushed back and this week project officials said that about 1.5 miles of tunnel still needed to be dug and that large segments of the tubing lack an adequate cover and base. With luck the water will flow in late 1977.

The delays reflect the extraordinary complexity of the undertaking according to engineers, nothing quite like it has ever been done before. The tunnel passes through dense gases, clay, thermal waters and layers of rock that had to be drilled to depths of 1,300 feet.

Even an attempt to use advanced American equipment was unsuccessful, the officials say.

Because the threat to Sevan had grown so great, the project has carried a very high priority. Specialists among the work force of 2,000 were paid large bonuses as an incentive. Experts were recruited from all over the Soviet Union to meet specific tasks.

The over-all cost has not been publicly revealed but it is thought to be well over $100 million.

And when the project is finally completed, Sevan will still be losing water for some years, although at a much lower rate. In a century, perhaps, the level will be back where it was.

"Nature has hit back," one Soviet journalist wrote recently, and finding the proper balance again will be very slow.

Airfield Closings Protested

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Officials of the federal and Manitoba governments are holding talks on a proposal to re-open on a restricted basis a number of airfields in the northern part of the province closed for safety reasons.

The closures, ordered by the federal transport ministry, were protested by residents of northern Manitoba, airline officials, and by Premier Ed Schreyer who argued that the fields were "good enough" for commercial use.

Transair president Arthur Mauro stated earlier this month that Ottawa's action was "a cruel application of bureaucratic power."

A MoT spokesman said Tuesday that the civil aeronautics branch of the federal ministry has opened discussions with provincial officials to examine the possibility of allowing the airfields to be used on a restricted basis.

The proposals being considered would allow use of the fields under certain wind directions, wind speeds, minimum ceilings and only by specified aircraft with a high degree of manoeuverability such as the twin Otter.

The spoksman said the fields were originally built with provincial approval but that a lot of them were not up to standards set by MoT. While Ottawa permitted their use for emergency purposes, some federally licensed operators began using them on a regular basis and the federal government had to order that they be closed to commercial traffic for safety reasons.

Schreyer, in protesting the closures, announced that the provincial government would be prepared to split with the federal government all costs of upgrading the airfields to acceptable standards.

The fields had been used for regular passenger service for the last five years without any accidents being recorded.

JUBA
. . . disturbed

WINNIPEG (CP) — A planned visit to Taiwan by a delegation headed by Mayor Steve Juba has been cancelled on the advice of the federal government.

Mayor Juba said Tuesday the visit was cancelled after the external affairs department expressed concern that it would jeopardize Canada's relations with China.

The delegation, which was to include Manitoba Attorney-General Howard Pawley, was to leave Tuesday night and visit the city of Taichung with which Winnipeg had "twinned" in the late 1960s.

Mayor Juba, upset at the Ottawa directive, told a news conference that acting external affairs minister Allistair Gillespie informed him Monday night that Ottawa "had serious reservations" about the visit.

In a telegram to the mayor, Gillespie said Canada recognizes the "People's Republic of China in Peking as the only legal government of China."

Gillespie said he had to advise the mayor the government would not regard establishment of a friendly city affiliation between Winnipeg and Taichung as "possessing any official status recognized by the government of Canada."

The telegram said any such affiliation "would in no way imply official or defacto recognition of the so-called Republic of China."

Canada officially severed ties with Taiwan in 1970 and extended diplomatic recognition to Peking.

Mayor Juba said he is disturbed by Ottawa's actions because "the twinning of Taichung and Winnipeg was no secret."

In a reply telegram, Mayor Juba said the twinning of cities was encouraged in the late 1960s but the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and as a result "a number of cities were twinned and the people-to-people relationship was enhanced."

"In every case partisan politics were avoided."

He said Winnipeg's twinning with Taichung followed city council's decision in 1971 to authorize him to effectuate such an affiliation.

Gillespie said in the telegram that the visit would likely spark official protest from Peking.

Referring to the visit and twinning plans, Gillespie said:

Gillespie said it is the government's view that the visit will not serve to strengthen Canada's political and commercial ties with the People's Republic of China" with whom we have friendly, normal and mutually beneficial relations."

The minister added that his department will study carefully the question of the advisability of allowing return visits of Taiwanese to Canada.

"Your visit . . . will be portrayed by Taiwanese media as implying an element of official Canadian support."

Juba said he is particularly upset over the statement that a return visit by Taiwanese would be studied. He said it amounted to a "threat of reprisal."

Mayor Juba said he has sent a telegram to officials in Taichung, saying the delegation would not be coming "due to circumstances beyond our control."

TRAPPED WHALES DIE

CHARLESTON, Nfld. (CP) — About 60 pothead whales were towed to deep water by fishermen Tuesday after hundreds of the mammals became trapped in muddy shallows near this Bonavista Bay community 150 miles north of St. John's.

A federal fisheries spokesman said about 40 whales died.

The small whales — ranging up to about 15 feet long — showed up Sunday as they chased squid toward the shore.

Fishermen struggled Tuesday to tie ropes around the wholes' side fins and tow them to deeper water. Some of the mammals were too exhausted to swim away while others turned back from the depths and returned to join their mates in the mud.

Before the federal government banned whaling in Canada three years ago, local fishermen hunted the potheads annually as they came close to shore feeding on squid.

Pothead meat was sold to mink farmers but the federal ban ended the trade.

Explosion In Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A grenade explosion ripped through a protest meeting in Southern Thailand Tuesday, killing 15 people and wounding at least 16, police reported.

The exposion came as a high-ranking police officer sought to negotiate a settlement in a protest against foreign-owned mining companies in the coastal Pang-Nga province.

Four Encephalitis Deaths

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Joseph Jones, medical officer of health for the Windsor area, said Tuesday that two more persons have died because of encephalitis, increasing to four the number of persons killed since last July by the disease.

Dr. Jones said three other persons have suffered brain damage as a result of the disease, an inflammation of the brain, and it might take months before it is known whether they will fully recover.

He said the brain damage resulted in trembling or loss of co-ordination in the hands and some loss of sensation in the fingers.

He said all the deaths — two last Friday and one each in July and August — and brain damage have been among adults.

The St. Louis strain of encephalitis, a disease transmitted by mosquitoes, has been reported in several areas of Ontario but most cases have been found in Windsor.

Stanfield Rebuff Irks Tory

OTTAWA (FP) — The Progressive Conservative party should open its doors wide to all those in Canada who are unhappy with the Trudeau government, Gordon Churchill, of Winnipeg, former cabinet minister in John Diefenbaker's government, said Tuesday in a telegram to Tory Leader Robert Stanfield.

He was irate over Stanfield scoffing in Fredericton at the idea that former finance minister John Turner could be leadership material for the national Progressive Conservative party. Stanfield called on Turner for an explanation of the "economic morass" facing the people of Canada.

Stanfield, speaking at the annual New Brunswick Progressive Conservative Association meeting, discounted suggestions that Turner might be a candiate for the PC leadership. Turner himself has ruled out any possibility of seeking that leadership. He has said he remains a Liberal.

However Churchill, who now resides in Winnipeg, in a telgram to Stanfield said: "You would have pleased thousands of Canadians if you had extended the hand of friendship to such an experienced parliamentarian of ability, integrity and courage.

"You have welcomed Messrs. Wagner, Cossitt and Hellyer, all former Liberals, who have made effective contributions in opposition.

"John A. Macdonald in 1867 and Robert Borden in 1911 and in 1917 set the right example. They joined with former political opponents to work together for the good of our country. Our party should hold the door wide open to all those who are unhappy with the Trudeau regime." Signed Gordon Churchill, 954 Palmerston Avenue, Winnipeg.

Villagers Come to Aid Of Smugglers

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — Smugglers with help from a crowd of 500 villagers fought a customs squad Sunday in a 30-minute gun battle and recaptured a seized truckload of marijuana and other contraband goods.

Several customs agents were wounded when a crowd of 500 joined the smugglers in recapturing an oil tank truck from Afghanistan loaded with marijuana, air conditioners and cloth, officials said.

The smugglers and the crowd attacked the eight-man customs squad with guns, sticks and stones, according to a statement by the directorate of intelligence of customs.

They Turn on Younger . . .

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Young people are turning to illicit drugs at an earlier age than ever, says a U.S. government study released today. Figures also show an increase in usage among girls and whites.

The compilation of four national surveys was released today by the U.S. National Institute on Drug Abuse, whose director, Dr. Robert Dupont, said the findings were "of great concern."

The reports indicated "a disturbing number of people who are heavy users," he added.

Of the 19 million males in the U.S. in their 20s about 950,000 have used heroin, 2,300,000 have used cocaine and between 8.7 and 11.8 million have used marijuana, according to one study.

One consultant Ira Cisin of George Washington University, said 4 per cent of children age 12 and 13 had used marijuana in 1972 and this figure had reached 6 per cent in 1974.

Cisin also spotted two other trends:

—"Males have historically had more experience than females with illicit drug use, but the sex difference is disappearing among teen-agers;

—"Non-whites have historically had more experience than whites with illicit drugs, but the race difference has disappeared — indeed it has reversed — among the teenagers.

Cisin also said "persons in college represent the maximum risk group for illicit drug use."

Dedicated FBI Spirit Lauded by Ford, Levi

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Ford dedicated the FBI's new $126 million headquarters Tuesday by praising the "spirit of the men and women who work for this unique American institution."

"The continued dedication of the men and women of the FBI to the preservation of the rule of law and the protection of citizens' rights will be a monument even more enduring than this imposing building," Ford said.

The president's remarks, and those made by Attorney General Edward Levi, seemed a calculated attempt to dispel some of the controversy and criticism that has swirled around the bureau over the past couple of years.

Ford and Levi undertook this task at the dedication of a building that is named for J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI's director for 48 years until his death in 1972.

Once considered among the most prestigious agencies of the U.S. government, the FBI has suffered a tarnished image by exposure of several of its activities during the 1960s and early 1970s.

These activities include the destruction by former acting director L. Patrick Gray Hoover's successor, of Watergate documents and Hoover's campaign of burglaries, harassment and discrediting tactics against radical and anti-war groups.

Whether the resultant criticism has been diminished noticeably by such successes as the FBI's recent capture of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst remains to be seen.

Following Hearst's arrest two weeks ago, the current director, Clarence Kelley, complained publicly about the widespread tendency to dismiss her apprehension as a "fluke."

Grain Talks Nearing End

MOSCOW (UPI) — Talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on a long-term grain agreement today appeared to be nearing an end, possibly with a wheat-for-oil deal.

Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs Charles Robinson met for a second time today with Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev a senior U.S. official said "all signs look positive" for final agreement this week.

The aim of the talks is to arrange grain purchases by the Soviets at a set rate over a number of years to end the irregular buying pattern that has disrupted the international market and forced up food prices in the United States.

Robinson flew to Moscow Tuesday, accompanied by a high-level delegation and immediately met with Patolichev and U.S. ambassador Walter Stoessel for almost four hours.

Family of Dying Man Quizzed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Family members of a 67-year-old man who is dying of cancer have been questioned by the FBI in connection with the turning off of the man's breathing machine at the Veteran's Administration Hospital here.

At first, authorities suspected the incident was connected to the baffling series of respiratory failures at the hospital during a six-week period this summer.

The FBI has questioned the 78-year-old wife of Jess Brower as well as Brower's stepson, Henry Norton, 42, and Norton's wife, Marian, 40.

Mrs. Brower accused nurses of disconnecting the machine. Hospital officials termed that charge "absurd."

MacArthur Tribute

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito Tuesday made a point of honoring the memory of the U.S. general who accepted the surrender of Japan in 1945 and then helped rebuild the nation he had defeated.

He ordered a wreath of white mums and red carnations placed at the memorial to Douglas MacArthur in nearby Norfolk.

His decision, sources said, was impromptu, but the emperor could not place the wreath personally because of possible political repercussions in Tokyo.

Hirohito and Empress Nagako will receive MacArthur's widow when they visit New York Sunday. They plan to spend today touring some of the relics of Colonial America, including the governor's palace and the house of Burgesses dating from the late 1700s.

Ransom Pay-Off

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A top General Motors Corp. manager, his wife and three sons were released unharmed Tuesday after a reported $54,000 ransom was paid to their abductors, police said.

The funds came from the man's private bank account and not from the corporation.

Three armed men invaded the home of William Schulenberg in an affluent Ann Arbor neighborhood Monday night and held the family captive for more than 13 hours, state police Capt. Walter Anderson said.

Anderson said Schulenberg, 48, a manager for the GM Hydramatic Division, was held in his home by one or two of the abductors.

His family was placed in the trunk of a car and kept there for eight hours, Anderson said. Holes had been drilled in the trunk to make sure they could breathe, he said.

Shovel Sleuths Attempt To Dig Up Hoffa Clues

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Amateur sleuths, armed with shovels and lured by the promise of a $200,000 reward, descended on a field Tuesday to search for the grave of Jimmy Hoffa.

The reward, offered by the family of the missing former Teamsters union president, brought scores of searchers to a 29-acre site northwest of Detroit, identified by an underworld informant as the place where Hoffa was buried.

He was abducted from a restaurant parking lot on July 30.

The tip earlier touched off two days of digging by state police, who found nothing.

"Well," said his wife, "If you think this is it, go put on your old shoes and start digging."

Urbanek stripped off his jacket. Then, without removing his white shirt, tie, business trousers, cuff links or two diamond rings, he started digging. An hour later, he was tired, dirty, and, like the others, empty handed.

Convicts Unable To Find Surgeon

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two convicted sex offenders who asked to be castrated rather than put behind bars have been sent to prison for indefinite terms because they were unable to find a surgeon willing to perform the operations.

"I had no choice," Judge Douglas Woodworth of the Superior Court said Tuesday after sentencing Joseph Alonzo Kenner and Paul De La Haye.

He agreed with defence lawyers in criticizing urologists who refused the castration requests.

"Several (doctors) have told me privately that they would like to accommodate the men, but they're afraid they might be exposed to some crank lawsuit," Woodworth said. "I regard these fears as fanciful, but there's no way of guaranteeing a doctor that some nut won't sue him."

Kenner and De La Haye, both 45-year-old laborers, have spent the last year in San Diego County jail, waiting for a surgeon to volunteer to perform the operation, called a bilateral orchidectomy.

At least four urologists who agreed to do it later backed off.

A third man seeking castration rather than imprisonment, James Wesley Goebel, 38, is being sought by police for failing to appear before Woodworth.

Ottawa Backs CP Bid for Flight

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission struck a blow today for CP Air in the airline's difficult relations with the Japanese government.

The transport commission announced in a statement that it is ordering Japan Air Lines (JAL) to show within 15 days why its licence should not be changed requiring JAL to apply to the commission for permission to operate extra flights between Tokyo and Vancouver.

Under the change, JAL would have to apply at least 10 days before the planned extra flights.

A transport commission spokesman said this follows a refusal by the Civil Aeronautics Bureau, the Japanese regulatory agency, to allow CP Air to operate an extra flight to Tokyo and return from Vancouver on Sept. 17 and Sept. 18. The bureau had said the Canadian airline had filed the notice eight days before the planned flight rather than 10 days.

The commission spokesman said that CP Air complained to the commission because JAL operated five extra flights between Tokyo and Vancouver in August without seeking commission approval.

The bilateral air agreement between Canada and Japan provides for only three return flights a week between Tokyo and Vancouver.

While there is no provision in the agreement for extra flights, there is an understanding that approval will be sought for additional operations, the commission spokesman said.

Chou Misses Banquet

By ROSS H. MUNRO
Special to the Times

PEKING — For the first time in 26 years, Premier Chou En-lai failed to appear at the banquet celebrating the founding of the Peopple's Republic of China.

Chinese officials said the ailing premier could not attend Tuesday's festivities because he is "undergoing treatment," a possibly ominous shift from the usual reference to the premier being "in hospital."

Premier Chou has been living in what is described as a hospital for about 18 months, but has been regularly receiving visitors there.

However, photographs taken this past spring and summer give the appearance of a man who is getting progressively thinner.

Well-informed foreign observers have concluded that he is suffering from chronic cardiac insufficiency and is in very serious condition.

Premier Chou last met foreign visitors Sept. 7. Since then, he sent word to former British prime minister Edward Heath that his doctors had forbidden a meeting with the visiting British leader.

In addition, Premier Chou has not been in even written communication with retired Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning who is currently visiting China at the personal invitation of the premier.

The absence of Premier Chou lent a sobering note to what is normally one of the most festive occasions in the People's Republic of China.

One the eve of China's October holiday, normally dull downtown Peking was aglitter with lines of lights framing major buildings. In a neighborhood park, young children created a happy din of cymbals, gongs, drums and firecrackers.

The Great Hall of the People was jammed with more than 4,000 Chinese officials, foreign diplomats and assorted foreign friends of China visiting or living in Peking.

All three authors are known for their consistently favorable reports on what has been happening in China since 1949.

'NO RIGHT TO HOARD'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Two forestry consulting firms said Tuesday that society has no right to lock up and hoard resources of benefit to mankind.

A brief presented to the Pearse Royal Commission by J. L. Milner Associates Ltd. and Inland Timber Management Ltd., said that it is wrong to lock up large tracts of land for a single use, such as parks.

Within the next 25 years demand may well exceed the ability of the forest to supply, the brief said. Accelerated population will increase pressure to use all forest lands

New-Look MacLean's Appears

TORONTO (CP) — Maclean's magazine hit the newsstands today with a newly-upholstered and streamlined format as Canada's first entirely domestic news magazine.

"I don't think it's a great magazine yet but for a beginning issue, I think it's OK," managing editor Mel Morris said.

If there is a weakness about the magazine, it's that the front of the book is loaded with material that will not grab the buyer. The first four pages of the initial issue are taken up by an interview with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, not exactly an earth-shaking personality in the country where the magazine has to sell.

CONTENT PLAN 'TOO LAX'

TORONTO (CP) — Relaxation of federal legislation regarding content required by a magazine before it can be considered Canadian could bring a flood of magazines offering cheaply-prepared Canadian sections, Lloyd Hodgkinson, publisher of Maclean's magazine, said Tuesday.

Canadian magazines such as Macleans and Chatelaine would then be forced to use cheap foreign content in place of more expensive articles produced in Canada by Canadians in order to compete financially with foreign-owned magazines, he said.

The federal government is considering a recommendation that foreign publishing companies be allowed to sell magazines in Canada with as much as 40 per cent of their material taken from a parent magazine — and still be classed Canadian for tax purposes.

"If the government of Canada wants to see Maclean's go 40-per-cent foreign content, this is the way to do it," Hodgkinson said. "We will have to do it to compete."

The recommendation is unacceptable and a requirement for 80-per-cent Canadian content would be more realistic, he said.

Existing legislation, adopted in 1965, says Canadian magazines have to be 75-per-cent owned by Canadians and their content cannot be "substantially the same" as parent editions.

Time, Reader's Digest and some religious and scientific magazines were exempt from the requirements.

Ont. MDs Consider Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's doctors might strike if they do not receive fee increases of between 35 and 50 per cent in 1976, says Dr. Donald MacNeill, head of the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. MacNeill said doctors submitted fee requests to a joint provincial government-medical committee on physicans compansation 10 days ago.

"I think the government will be very loathe to consider paying an increase of that size," he said in an interview Monday. "But we've just reached the end of our patiences."

Dr. MacNeill said Ontario doctors' fees rose 7.75 per cent last year and four percent this year under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan. But these increases had not kept pace with doctor's rising living costs.

Doctors might opt out of the OHIP plan and bill patients directly at higher than OHIP rates or withdraw their services except for emergencies, he said.

But opinion among doctors is split, Dr. MacNeill added.

At a recent meeting, doctors in northwestern Ontario seemed unwilling to withdraw services. But northeastern Ontario doctors at a weekend meeting in North Bay appeared to support strike action, he said.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Larry Weiss, of Los Angeles, is not only the official photographer of the American Contract Bridge League, but he is also one of our nation's top-ranking players. But just as there are those days when even the best protographer comes up with a bad photograph, so there are those days when even the best players are swindled by an adversary. The latter was the case in today's deal, which came up in the 1975 Life Masters Pairs Championship. Weiss was sitting South.

Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	Dbl.	4 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♦.

A brief word about the bidding. Weiss's opening one-heart bid was what is known as Canape-style bidding: the shorter suit is bid before the longer suit. The rest of the bidding was natural.

The opening lead of the diamond queen was won by dummy's ace, after which the singleton nine of clubs was led. When East played low, South did likewise, hoping that East was dealt the queen. West now made a fine deceptive play when he won the trick with his ace, rather than with the queen. Weiss was now certain that East possessed the club queen. West returned the diamond jack, which South took with his king.

Weiss next cashed the ace of trumps. When West discarded a spade on this lead, the bad trump break was revealed: that East had been dealt the four outstanding trumps.

The king of clubs was then cashed, a spade being discarded from dummy, and this was followed by the ruffing of a third club lead. South returned to his own hand by leading a trump to the jack. When he now led a fourth club, and West put up the queen, Weiss knew that "he had been had." At this point East couldn't be prevented from winning a trump trick by overruffing dummy on the fourth club lead. And since East-West still had two spade tricks coming to them, Weiss suffered a one-trick set.

When Weiss submitted this deal to me, he had just one regret: That when the deal was played, he had failed to compliment the West defender who had made the fine falsecard of the club ace.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Moon aspect highlights travel, study, long-range projects. You get results through advertising, publishing. Stick to principles, organize priorities. One you feared is your corner, working to benefit you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish what you start; leave no loose ends. Money, partnership, tax shelters are likely to be part of picture. Aries, Libra and Scorpio figure prominently. Partner, mate wants to "talk money."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis is on how the world looks to you, responds to you and what you are going to do about it. If single, there is talk of marriage. Married or single, a co-operative effort is indicated that brings results. You get rare "second chance."

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are musical, moody and have digestive problems. October will be one of your most significant months of the year. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You are "getting over" a setback. You'll be stronger, richer in 1976.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"You know something," said Peggy. "You're six times as old as the total of the digits of my age. That makes you quite old, Paul."

Paul smiled. "It all depends," he told her. "And don't forget when you're my age I'll be only three times as old as you are now."

How old was he?

Thanks for an idea to Margaret LaPrairie, Toronto, Ontario.

Mill Shuts for Good

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Clear Lake Sawmills Ltd. has shut down indefinitely, leaving about 130 workers without jobs. Mill manager Wilf Pattenden said the shutdown was due to poor lumber market conditions and the inability to sell wood chips to strike-bound pulpmills.

Enough MLAs, Says Anderson

Victoria MLA David Anderson said Tuesday the provincial government would be making a "serious mistake" if it enlarged the legislature from the current 55 seats representing B.C.

He told the provincial commission of inquiry studying redistribution of electoral boundaries that boosting the representation to handle increases in population "would be a waste of taxpayers' money."

MLAs can easily handle their constituency workloads and any increased representation would make the assembly "less efficient, less sensitive to changing conditions and less able to keep laws up to date," he said.

Anderson's brief was one of three recommendations presented to the commission by Greater Victoria MLAs. The commission is headed by T. G. Norris, retired B.C. Appeal Court Judge and is charged with making recommendations to the provincial government by Oct. 31 for presentation during the fall session of the legislature.

MLAs, he said, do not now work at full capacity.

"I find I can manage it. Politicians, like civil servants and indeed those in the private sector, can always spend more time doing the same amount of work," he said.

Debate time limitations in the legislature are already hampering discussion by the current number of MLAs he said.

The former Liberal leader said there are not enough defects in the two-member riding system to warrant abolition.

He said it is beneficial that Victoria is a two-member riding — also represented by Socred MLA Newell Morrison. "Voters can vote for the party of their choice and use their second ballot to vote for the personality of their choice."

Briefs presented by Hugh Curtis (SC—Saanich and the Islands) and Oak Bay Tory Scott Wallace urged that the districts in the Victoria area more accurately describe the area they represent. Several name changes were suggested.

Norris opened the Victoria inquiry with some harsh words for a Socred MLA who had reportedly belittled the importance of the commission work.

Quoting from the Penticton Herald, Norris said Frank Richter (Boundary-Similkameen) was reported as telling a meeting that the commission was a "whitewash, red herring." Richter reportedly said it would recommend what the government wanted.

"That is stupid, very stupid," Norris said. "We are here to meet with and listen to people and our report will show that we have listened."

The commission is holding an inquiry today in Duncan and it is expected the province-wide tour — which started three weeks ago — will be completed in two weeks.

WORKSHOP SET ON BEETLE

A bark beetle smaller than a housefly wiped out 26 million cubic feet of wood in the last 20 years in British Columbia's interior.

The infestation, which affected 35,000 acres last year alone, is caused by the mountain pine beetle which damages mature lodgepole pine, said a spokesman at the federal forestry research laboratory.

Three scientists at the research laboratory have been working on the problem and have come up with a number of proposed remedies. These will be presented at a workshop-seminar Thursday at 1.15 p.m. in the Newcombe Theatre in the Provincial Museum.

Strikes Hit Addis Ababa

ADDIS ABABA (WP) — The Ethiopian military government Tuesday declared a state of emergency in the capital as thousands of workers in state and private companies walked off their jobs in what could herald the beginning of a general strike.

It was the first time in the recent history of Ethiopia that such an emergency has been proclaimed in Addis Ababa. The measure is seen as a clear indication of the seriousness of the present crisis which has brought the ruling provisional Military Council into direct confrontation with leftist groups seeking establishment of a "people's government."

Western observers here felt the strikes pose possibly the most serious challenge to the 120-man military council since its formation 15 months ago, primarily because of the danger of a split within its ranks that could lead to the overthrow of the present leadership.

Similar strikes in early 1974, combined with discontent within the army, resulted in the downfall of Haile Selassie.

The military council is already beset with rebellions by feudalist elements in four western and northern provinces as well as a secessionist movement in Eritrea.

In a toughly-worded statement and proclamation issued Tuesday afternoon, the military council warned "obstructionist elements" standing in the way of the military-led revolution that they would be brought to trial and severely punished if the strikes continue.

"Our revolution will not be diverted because of the strikes taking place," the statement said. "If we have to shed blood, we will do so to protect the rights of the broad masses."

The proclamation announced that all civil liberties were being suspended immediately and empowered security forces to detain for an unlimited period any Ethiopian without trial and go break into homes without a warrant.

It also prohibits strikes, work slowdowns, leaving work places without permission, public assembly, loitering, speech-making, possession of arms and any kind of agitation or distribution of literature hostile to the government.

At the same time, the statement accompanying the proclamation said the military would return the government to civilian hands as soon as the goals of the revolution were assured and "this promise will definitely be kept."

The state of emergency declaration had little immediate visible effect on the thousands of workers in state banks, insurance companies, the government printing house, and a dozen other private firms who either failed to show up for work Tuesday morning or else left their jobs shortly after arriving.

POINT PLAN CLAMPS SEEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Tighter immigration restrictions because of high unemployment could be implemented through changes in the point system for admitting landed immigrants, an official in Immigration Minister Robert Andras's office said today.

The official said Andras was referring to the point system when he told reporters in Victoria Tuesday that immigration should be reduced now that unemployment has exceeded seven per cent of the work force.

No decision has been made on how tougher immigration restrictions should be, the official said. But the 10-point penalty for not having a prearranged job in the country or a skill in one of 23 designated occupations could be tightened.

Radio Man Appointed PEP Chief

Alan Muir, president of Victoria Amateur Radio Repeater Association, has been appointed chief of communications for the Victoria zone, Provincial Emergency Program.

Zone co-ordinator Doug Rodway said the appointment was based off Muir's background in electronics and amateur radio and the association's involvement with Langford emergency program.

Muir is an employee of the defence department at HMC Dockyard and takes the PEP role on a voluntary basis. He will advise the program on communications matters and will assist Rodway directly in time of emergency.

Rodway said an immediate benefit of the liaison will be the use of VARRA's network covering southern Vancouver Island below the Malahat in case of civil disaster or breakdown of telephone communications.

The association has a VHF network operating on two frequencies which is capable of reaching portable receivers in almost any location in the vicinity of Juan de Fuca Strait, including northern Olympic Peninsula.

Another recent appointment within the zone is that of Bill Perrin as municipal co-ordinator at Ucluelet. Victoria zone covers Vancouver Island and the Powell River-Bella Coola mainland coast.

Search for Man Called Off

SQUAMISH (CP) — An air search for a Vancouver man missing in the Diamond Head area of Garibaldi park, about 45 miles north of Vancouver, has been called off, police said Tuesday.

The man, whose name was not released, has been missing for seven days, said police.

Three aircraft and a helicopter were used in the air search on Monday and a ground search party, made up mostly of the man's friends, was also used.

RCMP here said the man's car was found in a parking lot at the base of Diamond Head.

Anti-Tito Visitor Vanishes in Bucharest

BELGRADE (WP) — A prominent Yugoslav emigre politician with close ties to Moscow has disappeared under mysterious circumstances in what seems to be a case of political kidnapping.

According to diplomatic sources, Vlado Dapcevic, 62, vanished during a week-long visit to Romania last month. He had talked by phone to his Belgian wife in Brussels two days prior to his scheduled Aug. 9 departure from Bucharest to Brussels. Dapcevic did not make the flight nor has he been heard from since.

Responding to diplomatic inquiries, Romanian government officials have said that they had no information about Dapcevic's whereabouts. They said that he had not left Romania unless he had used a false passport.

Western analysts with long experience in Romanian affairs have discounted the Romanian explanation. Romania is one of the toughest police states in Europe and Romania police keeps all foreign visitors — and especially someone like Dapcevic — under constant surveilance.

Dapcevic was one of a few prominent Yugoslavs who sided with the Russians during the Belgrade-Moscow feud in 1948. Subsequently, he and two army generals, including the chief of staff of the Yugoslav armed forces, Arso Jovanovic, made an abortive attempt to escape to Romania by car. Jovanovic was killed by Yugoslav border guards while Dapcevic was captured and tried. He was sentenced to 20 years in jail.

Following a thaw in Yugoslav-Soviet relations, Dapcevic was released from jail in 1956. Three years later he and six other pro-Moscow Communists staged a dramatic escape by shooting their way across the border into Albania and then flying to Moscow. He lived in the Soviet Union until 1968 when, again under obscure circumstances, he moved first to Paris, then to Brussels, where he married and settled down.

Dapcevic has consistently opposed President Tito's regime. His name was linked to the establishment last year in Yugoslavia of a clandestine, pro-Soviet Communist party.

According to Yugoslav press reports in the wake of the discovery of the clandestine organization, Dapcevic had been elected secretary general of the party at a Congress held secretly in Montenegro in April 1974.

Diplomatic speculations about Dapcevic's disappearance focus on his suspected kidnapping by either Soviet or Yugoslav intelligence agents. Another possibility is that he may be preparing a fresh move against the Tito government.

Dapcevic is known as a tough, extremely intelligent and orthodox Marxist. The reason for his visit to Romania is not known. He had been granted Belgian citizenship recently and the incident has caused some tension in Romanian-Belgian relations on the eve of an official visit to Bucharest by the Belgian foreign minister.

He is known to have been accompanied on his trip to Romania by two Yugoslav emigrees, who also have disappeared. They were staying at Dorobanti Hotel, a new, modern establishment in downtown Bucharest.

JOHNSONS' FATE MAJOR TOPIC

OTTAWA (CP) — A visiting South Vietnamese official was asked by Ottawa yesterday to urge his government to re-examine the case of two Canadian missionaries detained in that country sinee last March.

An external affairs department spokesman said Truong Tan was asked to bring up the case of Norman Johnson and his wife to the Provincial Revolutionary Government in Saigon.

The missionary couple, from Hamilton, Ont., has been held by the PRG near Ban-Me-Thuot since the fall, last spring, of the South Vietnam government to revolutionary forces.

Tan, an official of the PRG external affairs department, met yesterday for about an hour with R. L. Rogers, head of the external affairs department's Asian bureau.

"The major topic of discussion," the spokesman said, "was the safety of Canadians in Vietnam, especially the Johnsons."

He said Canada has received no explanation from the PRG as to why the Johnsons are being detained, although reports were that they were being well treated.

He added that earlier reports that Tan was a minister in the PRG were wrong; he was officially "a councillor in the South Vietnamese embassy in Moscow."

Tiny, Cheap Computers For Cars and Kitchens

TORONTO (CP) — Computer engineers say they are developing small, inexpensive computers that can be used to run sewing or washing machines, stoves, cameras or to display road maps in cars.

Engineers at an international electronics conference Tuesday discussed applications of micro-processors — computer systems not larger than a shoe box.

"Every time you turn a dial or press a button, you can put a micro-processor there if it's low enough in cost," said Joe Cohen, applications engineer of Intel Corp. of Boston, Mass., a maker of micro-computers.

He said computer technology has developed to the point where electronic circuits can contain thousands of transistors on silicon chips less than one-quarter-inch square.

Cohen said one United States sewing machine company already plans to produce a machine with a micro-processor that could be programmed with special stitching patterns.

The micro-computers might also be used to control washing machine cycles or both the temperature and cooking times for several pots on a stove.

He said when micro-computers are mass produced, units should be available for between $75 and $350.

M. I. Elmasry of the University of Waterloo's engineering department described an electronic map reader that might be used in cars, aircraft or in the classroom.

"Map information can get quite complex and people have experienced difficulty reading maps while driving," he said. "An electronic way of storing map information and displaying it presents an advantage to the consumer and to the professionals who use maps regularly."

He said studies show map information can be stored in a micro-computer and the information displayed on a small screen when needed.

Dr. Elmasry said in an interview the device might be of special interest to car rental agencies or travelling salesmen who could buy special magnetic tapes of maps.

One of the engineers attending the conference was Thomas Stockham, a University of Utah computer expert who was a member of a panel of experts called to study the Watergate tapes.

Dr. Stockham said in an interview the panel's work was done in 1973 and early 1974, before the resignation of former president Richard Nixon.

The panel members determined that 18½ minutes of tape had been erased on a tape recorder used by the president's office and that the erasure had involved manual operation of the tape recorder's controls.

Dr. Stockham said the panel also studied the possibility of trying to restore the erased voices but decided this would be impossible.

He said the analysis of the tapes took nine months of "exciting and wearing" work. "I know nothing like it is likely to happen to me again."

Seagram Ban Called for In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Federation of Labor Tuesday called for a province-wide consumer boycott of all Seagrams distillery products.

Harry Kosituk, the federation's assistant executive secretary, said that more than 160 members of the New Westminster Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union have been illegally locked out since Feb. 28 in what he described as a deliberate attempt to deny Seagram employees their rights to collective bargaining.

Kostiuk said in a prepared statement that "Seagrams refuses to comply with the British Columbia Labor Relations Board order reinstating these workers and this order has been upheld by the B.C. Supreme Court."

"The Alberta Federation of Labor is requesting the Alberta Liquor Control Board to remove Seagrams products from the shelves until the dispute is settled."

Kostiuk said a large percentage of Seagrams products ordinarily supplied to Albertans from British Columbia have been redirected through Seagrams' Manitoba distillery.

Kostiuk said the essence of the problem is that 160 men and women stand to lose their jobs through the completely arbitrary and economically unexplained actions of a very large conglomerate.

HEARING DELAYED

LADYSMITH — Preliminary hearing for William Rosebleff on two counts of attempted murder has been rescheduled for Nov. 24 and 25.

He was to have appeared in Nanaimo provincial court Tuesday.

Rosebleff, 25, a native Indian, was charged following a fight outside the Sportsman Hotel Aug. 17 in which two non-Indian men were shot.

Bradley Lockhart, 23, of Ladysmith, was released from Nanaimo General Hospital last Wednesday following treatment for arm and stomach wounds.

Robert Lamontagne, 24, also of Ladysmith, was grazed by a bullet but did not require hospitalization.

Rosebleff was refused bail and remains in custody at Wilkinson Road Jail. He is represented by Victoria lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood.

DRUG-ANDERSON PLAN ADMITTED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Convicted Watergate burglar Howard Hunt says he once explored the possibility of drugging columnist Jack Anderson, but never contemplated murder, as was reported last week.

In an interview in the current issue of Time magazine, Hunt said former White House aide Charles Colson once suggested that Anderson might be discredited if he appeared on his live radio program under the influence of a drug.

Hunt and Gordon Liddy, another convicted Watergate burglar, discussed the means for doing this with a former CIA physician, Time reported.

Among the possibilities that the three considered were placing a drug that enters the body through the skin on the steering wheel of Anderson's car, slipping a hallucinogen into a medicine bottle that Anderson used and dropping a drug into Anderson's drink at a party, Hunt told the magazine.

Hunt said each of the schemes was discarded as impractical.

"It was just another wild idea that never got beyond the proposal stage," Hunt told a Time reporter at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, where he is serving a prison term for his role in the Watergate break-in.

The Washington Post reported last week that Hunt told some of his former CIA associates that he was ordered to assassinate Anderson, who was disclosing information on Nixon administration policies obtained from national security leaks.

In the interview with Time, Hunt denied that action as serious as murder was ever contemplated, but revealed the drugging plot.

Free Drug Care

FREDERICTON (CP) — The Pharmacare program, giving senior citizens in New Brunswick free prescription drugs, went into effect today.

Cost of the program is estimated at $600,000 for the balance of this fiscal year and about $3 million a year when in full operation.

Vietnamese Refugees Cleared to Go Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Ford's approval 1,541 Vietnamese refugees now on Guam will be sent home aboard a Vietnamese ship to an uncertain fate.

U.S. officials said the refugees, who appealed persistently for repatriation, turned down advice that they wait until it was clear they would be accepted by the Communist regime in Saigon.

Several had threatened immolation if they were not put aboard the Vietnamese ship now docked in Apra Harbor.

The UN high commissioner for refugees, Prince Saoruddin Agha Khan, and his special assistant, Zia Rizvi, have just completed a mission in Hanoi. They reportedly advised U.S. state department officials to try to delay the return of the refugees until acceptance was certain.

Because of adamant refugees leadership, a decision was made to send the refugees home, hoping they would be taken in as were two other shiploads from other countries.

Some 130,000 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees were evacuated by U.S. forces last spring as the Communists took control of Saigon and Phnom Penh.

Although tens of thousands have resettled in the U.S. many others have had severe difficulty adjusting. In California, for instance, 9,000, or more than half of the 17,000 in that state, are on welfare.

Several hundred Vietnamese in the U.S. also will be repatriated if the shipload from Guam is accepted in Saigon, U.S. officials indicated.

In Agana, Guam, acting governor Rudy Sablan announced to a cheering crowd of refugees that President Ford has approved a plan to send them back home.

However, Sablan said it would be about three weeks before the 2,500 passenger Thong Tin can receive the necessary repairs to make it seaworthy.

More Slick Data Sought

WASHINGTON (WP) — Oil is polluting the world's oceans at such a rising rate that the U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration has directed its 25 ships to monitor and sample the slicks to identify where the pollution is coming from.

At the same time, NOAA has contracted with the Exxon Corp. to have its tanker fleet do the same thing along tanker routes from the Persian Gulf to the United States and Japan and from the North Sea and the Norwegian Sea to the oil-importing countries of Western Europe.

"Most people feel the oil pollution of the oceans is getting worse, but the data is not available," said Robert Junghans, deputy director of NOAA's Oceanographic Services Office, "That's one of the purposes of this project . . . to get the data."

The project was triggered by numerous reports of oil slicks at sea, starting five years ago when Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl sailed from Africa to the West Indies in the Ra and saw huge slicks of oil all along the way.

More recently, French oceanographer Jacques Cousteau witnessed oil spreading through the world's oceans and has warned that if the pollution continues at its present rate,, the oceans will be dead in 25 years.

Cousteau has urged that fish farms be set up in every one of the world's oceans and put off limits to any ships but fishing fleets.

A study by the Office of Technology Assessment for the Senate Commerce Committee concluded last month that the world's tanker fleets dump about 1 million tons of oil a year into the oceans just through normal tanker operations, like washing oil out of the ships' cargo tanks and shifting their ballasts around at sea.

The same study said that tankers spill an additional 209,000 tons of oil every year from accidents, such as groundings and collisions.

Another 250,000 tons of oil leaks into coastal waters when the tankers are drydocked, then washes out with the tides into the sea.

"The general agreement," the study said, "is that oil spills must be reduced from their present level."

The NOAA project is the start of a worldwide effort to find out how much oil pollutes the oceans and to identify where it is coming from.

It is also the first in a multi-national effort supported by the United Nations under a program called Integrated Global Ocean Station System.

The NOAA fleet will cover parts of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the Gulf of Mexico and the Bering Sea.

The ships will log visual sightings of oil slicks and gather the tar balls that collect in the midst of oil slicks.

The Exxon tanker fleet will take water samples along its routes from the Persian Gulf, then turn the samples over to NOAA analysts to see how much oil is dissolved in ocean water that cannot be seen as slicks with the naked eye.

Another part of the project will be to sample the sands along selected beaches on all three U.S. coasts, especially the beaches that don't get much foot and small-boat traffic.

This part of the project will be done by NOAA, the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Parks Service.

Children Don't Want To Return

MANILA (AP) — Five children refuse to leave their Filipino father's northern Philippine town to return to their Canadian mother who has appealed to the Philippines' First Lady for help, says the newspaper Bulletin Today.

"We do not like to go back to Mommy or elsewhere outside the country," the children were quoted as saying in an interview in Echague, Isabela Province, 150 miles north of Manila. The children, ranging in age from one to seven years, all are Canadian citizens.

Their mother, Mildred Clark, 29, was reported last week in Mission, as saying she had won a Canadian court order awarding her custody of the children. She said they were smuggled out by their father, Eduardo Gomez, 51, with whom she had been living.

Assault Testimony In Court

A 17-year-old girl told B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday that Martin John Kellington, 25, ordered her into his car at gunpoint March 20 and forced her to have oral intercourse with him.

The girl, a high school student, was testifying in the second day of Kellington's trial before Mr. Justice Craig Munroe and a jury at the fall assizes.

Kelllington, formerly of 741 Violet and now living in Kamloops, is accused of attempting to forcibly seize one girl, taking another girl against her will with intent to have illicit sexual intercourse and indecently assaulting the second girl.

The girl in the second two charges said she was jogging with a friend on Tillicum Road when a red Toyota pulled over. The driver pointed a gun at her and told her to get in.

At first she refused but when she saw her friend had left she got in. They drove to a high school parking lot where "he asked if I'd rather him rape me or kill me." She said she didn't want him to kill her.

He attempted to have sexual intercourse but didn't succeed. "I was very frightened. I wasn't consenting at all," she said.

They then went to an elementary school parking lot where he again tried, and failed, to have intercourse.

He told her to have oral intercourse with him after which he'd let her go. "So I did have oral intercourse . . . I was sick."

She identified a pair of men's black shoes in court as the ones she saw in the car, a point on which she, was pressed by defence counsel Mike Hutchison.

She admitted she told police the shoes were brown but added "I could see how I could be mistaken" because only the dome light was on in the car when she saw the shoes.

She also admitted changing the color of a blanket in the car from beige to "peachy-pink" but again attributed this to the difference in lighting conditions.

Asked it it wasn't possible she didn't want to admit mistakes in identification, she replied "No. I'm positive. I didn't make a mistake."

Earlier, she said she was "sure" Kellington was the man in the car.

Sgt. David McGregor of the Saanich police said he and Det. William Hillcoat went to Kellington's home April 1 to arrest the man for abduction.

"He (Kellington) said what's this about, that thing on Tillicum Road? I replied yes. He said I've been expecting you."

As they were getting into a police car, McGregor said Kellington said "my wife knows all about this."

Hillcoat supported McGregor's testimony about the first Kellington comment and Const. Robert Love supported the second comment.

Under cross-examination, McGregor agreed he was responsible for newspaper publicity that police were seeking brown square-toed shoes.

And when you went to Kellington's home you picked up a pair of black round-toed shoes?

Yes.

McGregor agreed he came to the conclusion a gun was used in the offences, that police searched Kellington's home and did not find a gun.

Hutchison told the jury that the issues are identification and alibi and called Kellington to the stand. His testimony continued today.

SOLO GUNPLAY FATAL

Patrolman Francisco Plando, 28, had been assigned to guard Frazier's room after the fight.

Patrolman Henry Paguntalan said he was at the door of the dressing room when the incident happened.

"I saw him twirling his gun when it went off," Paguntalan said. The bullet pierced Plando's chest and he slumped dead.

Hunger Toll Set At 15,000

WASHINGTON (WP) — At least 15,000 Cambodians died of starvation or malnutrition-related diseases in territory held by the U.S.-backed government in Phnom Penh in the last four months of war, according to a private study released this week.

It attributed the deaths to U.S. policy that favored efforts to sustain the Phnom Penh government militarily over food relief for refugees who poured into the beleaguered capital before it fell to Communist attackers April 17.

The 67-page study issued by the Indochina Resource Centre, a non-profit organization that often has criticized administration policies in Southeast Asia, also challenged official assertions that the mass evacuation of the capital ordered by the Communist victors was an "atrocity" with a potential for causing widespread famine.

"A study of the available evidence shows that the evacuation was ordered in response to certain urgent and fundamental needs of the Cambodian population and that it was carried out only after careful planning for provision of food, water, rest and medical care," it said.

U.S. rice shipments to the capital in the final days fell far short of requirements, and food was diverted from the neediest, it asserted.

State Department officials, who said they would have to study the documents before commenting on details, took issue with most of its main conclusions.

While conceding that rice played a major role in the outcome of the war, they placed much of the blame for the starvation and misery on the Communists, who blocked rice shipments to the capital in the final stages.

The report's authors, Gareth Porter and G. C. Hildebrand, said they relied on data supplied by private relief agencies and clinics for their estimates of starvation in the capital.

Dr. Gay Alexander, medical director for Catholic Relief Services in 1974 and 1975, declared shortly before the collapse that "hundreds are dying of malnutrition every day."

At the Catholic Relief Services children's clinic, 20 to 25 per cent of the children admitted died there because their conditions already were so poor, the report says.

"But these deaths were only the smallest tip of the iceberg of death by starvation and associated illness," it adds.

State Department officials said 30 per cent of the capital's requirements were met by a U.S. rice airlift in the final weeks, and the rest was covered by rice brought in from the government-held rice-producing province of Battambang.

The officials said malnutrition had increased and resistance to disease had lowered in the final months but the number of deaths could not be determined.

In August, the State Department reported there was a "growing shortage of food in Cambodia," whose main new rice crop will not be harvested before November.

The report, called The Politics of Food: Starvation and Agricultural Revolution in Cambodia, asserts that the State Department ignores evidence of an "agricultural revolution" in the countryside that has made possible some planting of a second, irrigated rice crop during the dry season.

Salvage Of Barge Nears End

Salvage of several million dollars worth of machinery, general cargo and the barge Koko Head is expected to be completed by Victoria-based Sudbury II within a week or 10 days.

The barge overturned off Prince Rupert in mid-August as it was being towed to Alaska by the tug Polar Nomad from their home port of Seattle.

Salvage operations were undertaken by Seaspan International, which said much of the cargo had been raised from the shallows or the cargo house through the efforts of Sudbury's diving team and a log carrier equipped with two cranes.

A spokesman said the cargo included mobile homes and machinery such as fork lift trucks and front end loaders, plus lumber and various types of cargo carried into the north every summer by the owner Northland Marine.

CRIMINALLY-INSANE

Indefinite Incarceration Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The system under which people judged criminally insane can be incarcerated indefinitely under a Lieutenant-Governor's warrant was attacked Tuesday by a city lawyer, active in patients' rights.

Blame for the warrant system, according to Robert Gardner, can be laid on judges and lawyers.

"In this country people don't know what goes on, the courts don't want to know what goes on and the patient is left to bureaucracy . . . to be never seen again," Gardner said.

Courts, he said, should tackle first whether or not there was a case against the accused before the person's mental state was considered.

It is well known that charges such as violence left on the record without the true facts being ascertained strongly influence subsequent psychiatric reports, he claimed.

Gardner also criticized the method of insanity hearings, which are usually conducted before a provincial court judge "who may never have heard psychiatric evidence before.

"There are no checks or balances to review the medical evidence properly."

The hearings can, within a couple of days, result in someone being "put away for life, or letting a dangerous person go," he said.

"This is the most critical type of trial you can have in this country today, more critical than a murder trial," he said.

Findings of a review board are kept secret and the recommendations go to Victoria to be "sat upon by some faceless bureaucracy . . . the most horrendous system imaginable."

Richard, a patient at Riverside, the maximum security wing for criminal-mental patients at Riverview, the provincially-operated hospital for the mentally ill, said the most demoralizing aspects is the indefinite length of stay.

"No matter what one's crime may be the length of stay is indefinite," Richard said. "Most patients are ill only a few months, then wonder about getting out."

He thought there was a lack of space, physical fitness programs, team sports and vocational training opportunities at the hospital, he said.

Another patient, Art, said there was a lack of staff and vocational training.

Barrett Urges Savings Backing

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — His plans for a B.C. Savings and Trust Corp. are not getting as much backing from credit unions as he would like, Premier Barrett said Tuesday.

"I am chagrined to find some people within the Credit Union movement who do not know its history, based on loving, sharing co-operation between people," he said.

"The credit union movement sprang from a philosophy based on 'we are our brother's keeper.' It is an alternative to a jungle, ruthless, competitive approach to using money for profit rather than as an economic tool to provide better social security for our people."

Within the last year 125 new co-operatives have been started in B.C. because people are learning to come together to share and build together, he added.

"It is good for those people and it is good for the total community because people through this experience build roots in the community . . . and give social and economic strength to a more stable environment."

The premier attacked chartered banks for what he called usury that has led to scandalous profits from high mortgage interest rates. He also said the chartered banks have shown no responsibility for the way they have been "creaming off the small loan market."

DEATH PLOT REVEALED

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A 21-year-old youth told a British Columbia Supreme Court Tuesday details of a scheme to lure a man to his death — a man shot to death with a crossbow.

Howard McInroy, 26, and Edward Rouse, 23, are charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the death of Garnet Cameron, 19, of Vancouver, whose body was found in a water-filled ditch last February in nearby Burnaby.

The trio went to Cameron's house where Jordan told Cameron that he had been beaten by Cameron's brother, Donald Jordan testified.

As they walked to the scene of the alleged beating, McInroy stepped out of an alley, pointed a crossbow at Cameron and ordered Cameron into the car.

Jordan said they then drove to where Cameron's body was found and Cameron, clad only in undershorts and pair of socks, was ordered to lie on the ground.

McInroy then shot cameron once in the head and once in the side with the crossbow. The trio then got back in the car and drove away while Cameron was stumbling around, Jordan said.

He later took police to where the crossbow had been thrown and to where Cameron's shirt was found, he added. The trial continues.

Ceiling Put On Buildings

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday approved a zoning bylaw which limits downtown buildings to 450 feet and provides bonuses for developers who provide residential accommodation in downtown developments.

The bylaw makes all downtown development subject to approval by a new board which will judge proposals according to a set of design guidelines.

Alderman Darleen Marzari failed in an attempt to reduce the maximum height to 300 feet.

Alderman Fritz Bowers said the bylaw would allow high buildings only if a large amount of open space is provided at the base.

Planning director Ray Spaxman said the figure of 450 feet was chosen because it was about the level buildings have reached in the city and the bylaw would ensure that no buildings would go any higher than ones that now exist.

Hostage Claims Not Settled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damage claims filed by some of the 14 surviving hostages who were held captive at the British Columbia penitentiary last June remain unsettled, a spokesman for the Public Service Alliance of Canada said Tuesday.

Al Hadvick said the hostages have not complained about the government's slowness in processing the claims, but the matter has been taken up by PSAC's national office in Ottawa.

Most of the claims are for relatively minor amounts to cover loss of and damage to clothing, jewellery, money and eyeglasses in the 41-hour period when the hostages were held by three knife-wielding prisoners at the institution.

Nolan Hembruff, acting regional penitentiary director said everyone eventually will be paid but addiditional information is needed and required procedures must be completed.

Some payments already have been made but additional documentation is required to substantiate others, he added.

The 13 Northwest International Horse Show finished its' run Saturday night at Vancouver's Agradome. Probably the most sensational moment of the show was when John Simpson from Calgary rode his horse Texas over the six-foot three-inch wall to tie with his other horse Commander Jack for the lead in the Puissance Jumping Stake.

Simpson rode Commander Jack to a clean performance in the third round and then equalled this performance with Texas.

Mrs. "Bo" Mearns riding The Flying Nun took the third ribbon behind Simpson's pair having taken a slab off the top of the wall.

Tom White of Wiliams Lake rode R. J. Bennet's Stock Broker to a fouth ribbon, a placing that produced an ovation for White who had a poor first round on his own horse, Goldfinger.

The International was extremely well supported with entries from Alberta, Washington, Oregon, California and B.C. with more than 450 horses entered. The box office seemed to be a different story if the number of empty seats Friday night, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night is any criteria.

While in the past Saturday night has been a standing-room-only sell-out this year a party of three could have found seats in any section.

This drop-off in attendance should be of some concern to the organizers who put a tremendous amount of effort into the production of the show, with all proceeds going to charity.

Patterned after the horse show at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto the Vancouver production has all the trimmings with no expense spared. Judges for each division, hunters and hacks, western classes, dressage and a jury of three for the jumping event were on hand.

Ring masters, announcers and other minor officials, many brought in from out of this province, were all active in keeping the show on the road. A nice touch is provided by the four uniformed trumpeters who called each class into the ring with a fanfare.

It is apparent the PNE who control the Agradome, have a problem probably created by the high cost of labor. Every car bringing people to the horse show must pay one dollar to enter the grounds and then park up to half-a- mile from the Agradome. The seating area of the Agradome was filthy, perhaps not having been cleaned since the end of the Exhibition.

Those riders who have been preparing their horses for the Garden City Horsemen's Club Endurance Ride should now be doing some hard riding every day to have their horses ready for the ride Oct. 12.

Any horse that has not been subjected to conditioning for the last six or seven weeks is not likely to be in suitable shape for such exertion the endurance ride demands. A horse can suffer permanent damage through being ridden until it can no longer go on from fatigue.

Seldom does a horse give any indication it is at the end of its endurance but simply suddenly refuses to go, stands with its head down and its tail raised. Tack should be removed and a few sips of water with the chill taken off given when this happens.

Water should be given in small quantities, about three swallows, until about a gallon has been consumed, then not moved for 10 or 15 minutes when five swallows should be given and the process repeated with the horse being walked around slowly in the meantime.

When the animal is fully cooled, a light feed of sweet hay should be given followed a few hours later by a bran mash with carrots and a little grain.

IT'S —30— FOR THRU

So is tho, altho and thoro, though cigaret and dialog will continue in Tribune pages.

The newspaper announced Monday that it has revised its stylebook and abandoned such simplified spellings as "thru," "tho" and "thoro."

The simplified spellings were initiated in 1934 under the guidance of the late Tribune editor Col. Robert McCormick in an effort to correct what McCormick felt was an "unspeakable offence to common sense."

But after more than 40 years, the Tribune is ending many of its unique spellings.

"Regretfully we concede they have not made the grade in spelling class," the newspaper said in an editorial. It said that the "og" words, like epilog, dialog and synagog seem to be gaining in acceptance and will be retained in their simplified form.

"From now on," the editorial said, "Webster's Third will be our guide, first variants preferred.

... BUT SEX WON'T ROT YOUR TEETH

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Delegates to the annual convention of the California Dental Association have been given a report which says middle-aged persons are enjoying better sex lives.

Asked by reporters what the report had to do with dentistry, a CDA spokesman said:

"Dentistry is trying to consider the whole person. Dentists are developing an interest in a patient's health.

PROMOTION CURB

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal Public Service Commission has ruled that some public servants who win a promotion should not be allowed another within a year of their move, it was announced Monday.

The 168,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada says it is opposing the ruling —which applies to the three highest occupational categories in the federal service— because it interferes with the merit system.

The commission recently amended its selection standards so that an employee must spend at least a year in a job or in a position at an equivalent level before being eligible for appointment to another job with a higher maximum rate of pay.

At present, federal employees must serve a one-year probation period after taking on a job. Commissin officials are said to be concerned about cases in which federal employees do not serve out their probation times.

The new rule would apply to senior executives and employees in the generally higher groups such as actuaries, architects, scientists, social workers, statisticians, economists, program administrators, information officers and foreign service officers.

Indians Suing to Halt Oil Sands Development

EDMONTON (CP) — The Indian Association of Alberta is launching legal action aimed at gaining "full and total control" over the Athabasca oil sands, association president Harold Cardinal announced Tuesday.

The move is being taken to allow natives to benefit from the province's natural resource wealth, he told a news conference.

"Our participation in Alberta's boom (is) the last item, if it ever was an item, in the list of priorities held by governments and industry."

Cardinal said the association would use any legal instrument to stop development activity in the oil sands. However neither he, nor Calgary lawyer Bob Young, legal adviser for the association, would specify what the claim's legal basis would be.

Young would only say that the claim would likely be a class action—not a band action—on behalf of Indians who have rights in Alberta's north.

"Whether it will involve aboriginal claims, broken treaties or unfulfilled treaty entitlements is something that we are looking at now."

Young said the Indian association would be advised, within a week to 10 days, of "the most advantageous way to proceed."

Olive Linklater, vice-president of the National Indian Brotherhood, told the news conference the association's action was "welcomed by all Indians across the country."

He said he hoped it would act as a "legal jolt" to government and industry, as had the recognition of Indian land claims in Quebec and the Northwest Territories.

Georgina Blondin of the Northwest Territories' Indian Brotherhood also expressed support for the Alberta claim, saying it was similar to the struggle of territorial Indians against the Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline.

"For far too long we have depended on the handouts of white society," said Ms. Blondin., "We need political and economic power of our own."

The federal government's Indian land claims commissioner Lloyd Barber, said it was "somewhat unfortunate" the Alberta matter had to go to court.

But he acknowledged that Indians had not been given a fair shake in Canadian society and "for the last 150 to 200 years . . . the spirit of treaties have not been honored."

Cardinal said that four years ago the Indian association began meetings with government and industry in an effort to involve natives in Alberta's natural resource development.

Up to a year ago, a buoyant economy encouraged government and business leaders to commit themselves to native participation in the resource sector.

But the commitments, such as for substantial training programs by oil sands developers, have not been implemented and the economy has generally taken a turn for the worse, said Cardinal.

"While (Indians) are the last to benefit from a surge in the economy, they are the first to feel its effects during recession. Consequently the investment required for development will not be available from government or industry."

Unless the Indians take things in their own hands, "the majority of our people will continue to face a horrendous future filled with the carcasses of broken dreams and faced by the reality of a cruel and vicious cycle of poverty," he said.

He pointed to statistics released recently in a survey by the Alberta Native Development Corp. which indicated unemployment among treaty Indians or northeastern Alberta exceeded 90 per cent.

The resources in the oil sands area "legally belong to our people," said Cardinal.

"The value of these resources are more than enough to pay for the cost of our development."

The Indian leader declined to say how much land would be affected by the claim but stated the association's aim was "total control over fiscal and human resources."

"We're not prepared to go hat in hand each fiscal year to beg from bureaucrats to get our needs met."

Oil Price Increase Cheered

FORT McMURRAY (CP) — The latest increase in oil prices announced by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has created a rosier future for Alberta's oil sands, Carl Nickle, president of Conventures Ltd., said Tuesday.

Nickle, in a telephone interview from Calgary, said the OPEC announcement provided "new encouragement" for companies engaged in developing the oil sands.

Since Syncrude Canada Ltd. was staggered by constructin cost increases last winter, other firms have delayed plans to construct plants in this area 250 miles north of Edmonton.

Shell Canada Ltd., Home Oil Ltd., and Petrofina Canada Ltd. all shelved plans to develop oil sands extraction plants in the Athabasca Oil Sands near here until the economic situation improved.

But OPEC's decision to raise prices 10 per cent effective Wednesday may have changed that, Nickle said.

"I would say that if Ottawa would give further confirmation of its intentions (to lift domestic oil prices near the world figure), this would be new encouragement for companies to commit capital to new development in the oil sands."

He said he expected the government to provide confirmation because OPEC's action left Ottawa "in a hell of a spot."

So far Ottawa has used the export of western Canadian oil to the United States to subsidize imports of Venezuelan oil to eastern Canada.

But Ottawa's policy to gradually pare exports to the U.S. will decrease revenue.

That policy, Nickle said, plus the increasing costs of imported world oil will cost Canadian taxpayers "several hundred million dollars this year."

He said that within seven years the Canadian trade deficit on energy alone will zoom to $5 billion. This would hold true despite Ottawa's announced intentions to increase the domestic price of oil from the current level of $8 a barrel to the world price, $11.51 a barrel, in two to four years.

Nickle said that with great pressure on the government to rapidly reduce the two-level price system for domestic and foreign oil "the odds are that by the time Syncrude comes on stream in 1978 the economic situation of oil-sands plants willl be improved."

Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd., the only producting oil sands plant, has rejected a basic expansion of its plant on the grounds of costs.

GREXTON — In cherished and loving memory of mother, Mrs. Lily Grexton, who passed away Oct. 1, 1958.
A heart of Gold stopped beating,
Hard Working hands at rest,
God broke our hearts to prove to us,
He only takes the best.
The leaves and flowers may wither,
The golden sun may set,
But the hearts that loved so dearly,
Are the ones who won't forget.
Sadly missed, The Family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING-DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Compost Heap Easy, Effective

It is puzzling when anyone having a piece of ground, however small, says they have no way of making fresh soil because they have no compost heap. They even add "of course" to the statement which makes it all the more confounding.

Any soil that grows plants grows a certain amount of weeds. Seeds are brought in by wind and birds; weeds lie dormant in the lower soil for years until cultivation brings them nearer to the surface where they have conditions suitable for germinating. Even though shrubs are the only cultivated plants on the lot, there are likely to be weeds, plus the trimming of spent flowers and fallen leaves — and there lies the beginning of a compost heap.

A garden with a few herbaceous perennials and a patch of vegetables will have enough compostable material to replace the used soil each year.

Early fall is the time when most of us find masses of discarded plant parts to add to the summer heap of waste vegetable and fruit scraps, tea leaves, eggshells, coffee grounds and other odds and ends from the house.

By vegetable sowing time next spring there will be a good quantity of soil in the middle and bottom of the heap, enough at least for spreading along the rows when they have been prepared and marked out.

A beneficial result from growing vegetables quite apart from food values for health and enjoyment is the plant residue which accumulates after nearly every crop.

Probably only young lettuce plants have no leftovers except the rootstock in the soil, for often the seed leaves are still green, crisp and edible after six or eight weeks of growing to a nice size.

Pea vines are good compost makers as are bean plants. They have plenty of leaves and sturdy stems. You can cut off the plants at soil level if you want to leave the nitrogen-making root nodules in the ground.

Early sowings are already pulled and are decomposing with soil and a little fertilizer scattered throughout to aid the working while there is warmth in the sun's rays.

Any day now we expect to have squash plants to pull up. Small fruits will do very little more growing so those are what I use now. The more mature will be left until that inevitable morning of frost. Then all will be carefully gathered and stored for later use. The plants will go to the compost heap, after stripping even the tiny fruits for soups and salads. No waste here.

Tomato vines are usually a bit scruffy by the time we pick the last fruits, but every bit helps to make humus.

Potatoes will have little residue when we dig them, though peelings go back to the heap later except those we enjoy eating while they are still "new."

Chrysanthemums, dahlias, begonias, and whatever annuals you grow will ultimately be fodder for the compost heap, as will the last lot of grass clippings.

Remember to add the scattering of good soil throughout the heap and a sprinkling of balanced general fertilizer alternated with a sprinkling of lime and the just-as-important soaking of water.

You are then assured of an actively working compost heap, sweet smelling, and an asset to any garden.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads are where you find the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

Oilers, Bubba Come to Terms

HOUSTON (AP) — Bubba Smith, a former all-pro defensive end and an older brother of Houston Oiler defensive end Tody Smith, has agreed to terms with the Oilers and was to begin working out with the team this week.

Smith, 6-7, 265, released earlier this year by Oakland Raiders, was an all-pro in the National Football League with Baltimore Colts from 1967-71.

He missed the 1972 season at Baltimore because of knee surgery and then was traded to Oakland for tight end Raymond Chester.

Lions Give Ivan Another Chance

VANCOUVER (CP) — Place-kicker Ivan MacMillan has been placed on a five-day trial by British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

MacMillan was released by the Lions before the start of the regular season.

Saskatchewan Roughriders used MacMillan in one game this season and he kicked three field goals in three attempts. He was good on 18 of 42 attempts last season.

The Lions began the season with rookie John Wintermeyer as their place-kicker, but released him three weeks ago and used backup quarterback Eric Guthrie.

Nigeria Out In Protest

LAGOS (CP) — Nigeria has withdrawn from next year's Davis Cup tennis draw in protest at South Africa's involvement in the competition, an official of the Nigerian Lawn Tennis Federation said last week. Nigeria, to meet Iran and Britain in the next elimination series, withdrew because of South Africa's apartheid policies, the official said.

SAILOR SETS SPEED MARK

Merritt Gains Division Lead

PENTICTON (CP) — Merritt Centennials took a 3-1 lead in the first period then hung on to defeat Penticton Vees 4-2 in the only British Columbia Junior Hockey League game played Tuesday.

The win moved Merritt into sole possession of first place in the league's Interior Division, two points ahead of Kelowna. Penticton remains tied for last with Vernon.

Refugee In Big Bilk?

TORONTO (CP) — A former South Vietnam banker and hotel owner, now a refugee living in Montreal, participated in $6 million worth of frauds from his bank and observed heroin trafficking in his hotels, according to the CBC program Fifth Estate.

In a program broadcast Tuesday, The Fifth Estate said Nguyen Tan Doi made loans to his servants from his bank, funds from which were then transferred to his own bank accounts, according to the program.

It claimed $6 million was missing from the bank.

He returned to Saigon and was imprisoned on charges involving frauds from his bank shortly before the fall of Saigon to Communist and Viet Cong forces.

After his release, he went to Bangkok where he was joined by his Montreal lawyer, Harry Blank, who is deputy speaker of the Quebec National Assembly, the program said.

Nguyen Han An, who was chief inspector of the South Vietnamese banking system, told The Fifth Estate of the alleged fraudulent loans made to the servants.

An headed a 40-man study group which was reported to have uncovered evidence of bank fraud used to jail Doi.

Doi said on the program he did not directly manage the affairs of the bank, adding he had two assistants. He is the victim of rumor and Vietnamese politics, he claimed in his first interview since his return to Canada.

Col. Thornton Ireland, former chief provost marshal of United States forces in Vietnam, said on the program he observed heroin transactions in two of four Saigon hotels which were owned by Doi.

Doi denied any knowledge of the transactions.

"I am not aware of these activities," he said through an interpreter, "because there is no benefit to me. I'm very busy in my business."

Winchester/Clegg Now Arbor Dale?

It used to be Winchester and then Clegg Street. Now Saanich council is considering calling it Arbor Dale.

At the request of the fire department, Saanich in 1974 changed the name from Winchester, which is also the name of another section of the same road further west.

Saanich agreed to a request from the Clegg family, who lived on that part of Winchester to call it Clegg but the family has since moved away. The new residents want it called something else.

They were given a choice of several names and opted for Arbor Dale.

Municipal Clerk Gordon Hayward said the name had never been officially changed to Clegg by council, although it had been recommended by committee.

This time around the lands, planning and housing committee will refer its recommendation to council to make Arbor Dale official.

In other matters at the committee meeting Tuesday night, the committee voted to send an application for a revised land use contract for a warehouse near the Tolmie school site to a public hearing. The date has not yet been set.

The warehouse would be between Davidson and Whittier Avenues and between Cluduthel and Boleskine Road.

The committee received letters from 11 residents in the Colvelly Terrace area, expressing concern about a possible subdivision of land between Tattersall and Clovelly. However, there has been no application from the owner of the property to subdivide the land. Council would consider the objections of residents if an application were made.

The committee rejected a request to subdivide a lot at 3980 Locarno. The council had rejected the same request in previous years on the grounds the lot is too small to subdivide.

Saanich Shaves $100,000

About $100,000 has been shaved from Saanich's garbage collection costs, municipal engineer Cliff Warren reported Tuesday.

He told council's environment committee that in addition to bi-weekly pickups, rerouting of trucks and a staff cut of about 10 men, the municipality could save more money by starting a curbside garbage pickup service.

But the suggestion prompted a long harangue from Ald. Sandy Noel who reiterated his stand that Saanich would not replace its backdoor pickup without taking the issue to the people.

Noel said he was "unalterably opposed" to the measure when backdoor service only costs about $12-$15 per family and "I'm going to demand that any recommendation to that effect go to referendum."

But Ald. Mel Couvelier said that cost-saving figures would have to be worked out to obtain a firm cost figure to take to the electorate. "It's a pig in a poke otherwise."

Warren was instructed to study other measures and report to the committee again on further savings.

In the meantime letters from residents on the subject will be filed along with one from Mr. and Mrs. Graham Stallord, 3942 Braefoot, read to the committee:

"The idea of curbside garbage would be fine if we had a curb."

MASON, Ohio (AP) — A trained lion cub grabbed a 13-month-old West Chester girl in his mouth at a Mason bank building, but the child escaped without a scratch, said the animal's handler.

Handler Steve Clark of the Lion Country Safari at nearby Kings Island Amusement Park said he stopped by the First Mason Bank on Tuesday after entertaining children at a nearby school with a nine-month-old lion named Bwana.

Clark was standing in the lobby for a visit with bank vice-president Donald Williams when the child, Meredith McDevitt, broke away from her mother and ran toward the lion.

"The lion grabbed the girl and they both fell to the floor," Clark said. "Bwana is used to children, but I think the cub didn't know if the little girl was playing or not. Bwana knew he was in trouble but just didn't know how to handle it."

ADVERTISERS DO YOU HAVE AN IMAGE?

• I DON'T KNOW. WHAT DO YOU MEAN — "DO I HAVE AN IMAGE?"

A good advertising image is a mental picture that reflects the kind of merchandise or service being offered for sale. For example: A quality furniture store should LOOK like a quality furniture store, not a bargain hunter's paradise. And a budget priced store should always look like what it IS — so that it attracts the kind of people who are looking for the kind of merchandise it sells.

• YOU MEAN THE RITZ SHOULDN'T LOOK LIKE JOE'S DINER?

• HOW DO I GET AN IMAGE?

Well, first, you decide what kind of store you are — what sort of people you're appealing to, and then you design all your advertising to fit. You stick to the same style, so that people recognize your ad as YOURS as soon as they see it.

• WHAT'S THE ADVANTAGE?

Well, like we said — you attract the right kind of customer to begin with. You're not going to sell a $900 dining suite to someone who's looking for a 79.95 kitchen set anyway, so why waste your advertising dollars? And people who want elegant dining facilities are going to be disappointed if all you serve is chili-burgers for 1.69

• ANYTHING ELSE?

Yes. By seeing your company advertise in a consistent manner, the public learns to gain confidence in YOUR firm. It establishes YOU in the mind of the people as a reliable, ongoing firm that knows its business — one that is going to be there to stand behind what it sells for years to come.

• BUT I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT DESIGNING ADS. THEN WHAT?

That's what your two daily newspapers can do for you. We have a team of sales people who've been in the business a long time. They are trained to advise you on your budget. And, backing them up, is a team of artists and copy-writers who are trained to design an advertising campaign that will reflect your image and up your profits by increasing your business at a sure, steady rate.

• WHAT IS AN ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN ANYWAY?

That's a planned series of advertisements designed to do a specific job. It's the only way to advertise effectively. You establish your goals; our account representative brings them to the creative people, who work out the best way to reach your target. They use their imagination and their knowhow to think up something especially for you.

• HOW DO I KNOW I'LL LIKE IT?

You're given an artist's rough of your ad campaign so you can discuss it with others in your firm, and with your account rep. before you start the series. And re-vamp if necessary. Then, you get proofs of your ads after they've been typeset and the art is in place.

• HOW DO I KNOW I CAN AFFORD IT?

Because your account rep. knows your business; he knows what your advertising budget should be, based on your volume and what your cost-to-sell figures should be. So, when the creative department designs your ads, these figures are borne in mind so that the amount of space you buy fits in with what you can afford.

• BUT ISN'T IT EXPENSIVE TO HAVE THIS SPECIAL TREATMENT?

It costs no more than just buying space. Our creative team has books and books of headings, borders, drawings, sketches, and many different type styles to utilize. They are creative people who can put these things to good use for your benefit at no extra charge. They'll make up a series of ads that reflect the image you want to create, so that your ads are YOURS and YOURS ALONE.

Sunday Selling Ban Endorsed by Council

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria city council is going ahead with its long-discussed never-on-Sunday ban prohibiting the Sunday retailing of a wide range of commodities which aren't considered basic necessities.

An amendment to the city's trades licence bylaw, to be introduced at the regular council meeting on Thursday next week, would prohibit the sale on Sundays and statutory public holidays of the following items:

The draft bylaw, endorsed by council in caucus Tuesday, will become effective when it is given final reading at the Oct. 23 council meeting.

There was no immediate reaction from Victoria's business community today, but Victoria Chamber of Commerce called a meeting for this afternoon to discuss the bylaw changes.

President Jack Hutchins said he could not speak for the chamber until after the meeting but he believes hours of sale should be decided by merchants and not by city council.

He said most large stores elect to close on Sundays and holidays but it should remain a voluntary policy.

Andrew Glecoff, manager of Zeller's department store in the Hillside shopping centre, which for some years has opened on statutory holidays with the exception of Good Friday, Christmas Day and New Year's Day, said holiday opening is a public service and customers have shown that they like shopping on those days.

The store's hardware and home improvement sections are the busiest of all departments on holidays, he said, indicating that "the breadwinner wants to get jobs done around the house" and needs tools and materials.

As for staff, "no one is ever forced to work on holidays — it's strictly voluntary," Glecoff said.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said he is opposed to the principle of councils ordering business closures on Sundays and holidays, and he has no plans to initiate such restrictions in Saanich.

Beer Flow Cut Off

Victoria's already-dwindling supply of beer was cut back to only a trickle today as a picket line around Labatt's brewery halted delivery of kegs to local pubs.

Empress Hotel manager Ted Balderson said at opening time today the hotel's Beaver pub had only one and a half kegs of beef left, which will probably last to about 5 p.m. "depending on how thirsty everybody is."

The picket line, supposedly only for informational purposes, was set up Tuesday monring by about 40 up-island hotelmen and hospitality industry workers who were protesting the cut-off of beer supplies to the Nanaimo area.

Labatt's manager Ken McNamara said today delivery truck drivers were not crossing the picket line and beer parlors which have their beer delivered directly from the brewery "should feel the effect of it today."

McNamara said he had been out early today to talk to the hotelmen on the picket line and said he understood that the line would stay up until "they achieve their objective and that's to get back to work."

A strike in late August by employees of the beer distributing company in Nanaimo has closed down all beer parlors in that area.

The only beer parlors left open in the city, until now, were the ones which got their beer supplies directly from Labatt's, but those will be closed soon too if the picket line continues

TLR OFFER ON PROPANE REJECTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The union negotiating committee rejected Tuesday the latest offer in the propane distributors dispute while a company representative said he will not accept appointment of an industrial inquiry commission.

Carl Anshelm, Transport Labor Relations spokesman, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he would not consider a non-binding industrial inquiry commission because ti would take two or three weeks for such a commission to report.

Doug MacLeod, union spokesman, said that the negotiating committee will not present the offer to its members but wants to meet with TLR to discuss a counter-offer made Tuesday. He said TLR has refused to discuss the counter-offer.

Details of neither offer were released.

OIL TAX UP

OTTAWA (CP) — The export tax on oil shipped to the United States will go up Nov. 1 as a result of the 10-per-cent rise in world oil prices, a spokesman for the National Energy Board said Tuesday.

The amount of the increase will be determined later in the month when the board has a clear picture of what new prices will be in the United States market, the spokesman said.

Air Crash In Interior Kills Seven

The plane, owned by Northern Thunderbird Air of Prince George, was on a scheduled flight to Dease Lake, about 450 miles northwest and about 160 milses south of the B.C.-Yukon border.

It crashed and burned about 360 miles northwest of Prince George in the Klua Tan Tan area. Aboard were two crew members and five passengers.

Jack Sellfox, a spokesman for Northern Thunderbird, said the company flies a five-times-a-week service out of Prince George, which goes as far as Dease Lake Tuesday and Thursdays.

It mainly carries construction workers and railway officials who are employed on British Columbia Railway's Dease Lake extension.

Killed were Ed Dyck, the pilot, Dick Iverson, the co-pilot, Ken McRae and Donald Long, provincial highways department employees, Mr. and Mrs. Robbert McColl and an as-yet unnamed man.

Consumers To Pay —Beryl

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board, citing the B.C. supermarket dispute as a potential inflation factor, said in its third quarterly report Tuesday that "in the end, it will be the consumer who will pay."

The board reiterated its belief that the demands of both the food industry unions and the offer by B.C. supermarkets exceed what it would regard as a responsible increase.

The board, which has appealed for restraint on income demands in every quarterly report in the last 12 months, said that "in spite of this, B.C., which is already faced with the highest urban-area food prices in the country, is on the verge of yet another rise in food industry labor costs. It may well be that this could have an inflationary impact on the food industry and other labor settlements in the country."

"It is evident . . . that labor costs are now an important factor influencing the rise in food prices."

Board Chairman Beryl Plumptre has pursued this theme in several recent speeches.

The board said that substantial increases in oil and gas prices should have only a slight impact on food prices.

"The share of total food costs made up by the direct cost of energy is not likely to exceed five per cent, even in 1975. As a result, it would appear that an increase in the prices of fuel and power by 20 per cent would result in a direct increase in food prices of no more than one per cent."

Airlines Push 3% Fare Hike

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Executives of the world's airlines today recommended a 3 per cent fare increase on all international flights beginning Dec. 1 to offset the rise in oil prices.

Terrorists Kill Police As Million Cheer Franco

MADRID (UPI) — Bands of terrorists armed with sawed-off shotguns killed three Madrid policemen and critically wounded a fourth today while an emotional crowd of a million persons celebrated the 39th anniversary of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's rise to power.

Franco, angered by widespread European and world reaction to Spain's execution of five terrorists Saturday for the slaying of other policemen, said the violent anti-Spanish reaction was a foreign plot against Spain by Free Masons and Communists.

The almost simultaneous attacks on policemen in different parts of Madrid was the largest guerrilla operation of a wave of political violence that has hit Spain in recent months. It brought angry roars from the crowd, of 500,000 persons jammed into 25-acre Plaza de Oriente square who shouted, "the army to power!" and "terrorists to the wall!"

Many western diplomats earlier boycotted a reception marking the 39th anniversary of Franco's proclamation as Spain's caudillo (leader) during the civil war. At least 15 nations have recalled their ambassadors from Spain in protest against the execu-

Labor unions across western Europe today called a series of trade, transport and communication boycotts against Spain to protest the executions.

The European Common Market, in one of its strongest political actions in recent years, said it was suspending trade talks with Spain. The talks, which have been going on for two years, were to have resumed this month and there had been hope that the agreement would be completed by the end of the year.

The European Trade Union Confederation designated Thursday as a day of solidarity with opponents of Franco's regime and urged unions to take measures to isolate Spain economically and politically.

The European Co-Operative Association with 45,000 member stores in 10 European countries said they were suspending purchases of fruits and vegetables in Spain.

Belgium's two largest unions, the Socialist and the Christian, said all travel and communications between Belgium and Spain would stop for 36 hours beginning at 1 p.m. EDT today.

Responding to an appeal by the International Transport Workers' Federation, Austria's transport union called a two-day halt in road, rail and air traffic with Spain beginning today.

In Britian, workers at London's Heathrow airport said they would begin a boycott on all flights by the Spanish airline Iberia today and Thursday.

Dockers in Hull, England, refused to handle cargo going to or from Spain and Belgian union officials said dockers in Antwerp would boycott Spanish ships.

In Ottawa members of the International Association of Machinists (IAM) have been asked to participate in a 48-hour boycott of Spanish goods and transport companies to be held Thursday and Friday.

SHORT-MEASURE DRINK ANGERED WEE MICHAEL

GLASGOW (Reuter) — A German Shepherd named Michael lapped up three pints of beer in a Glasgow tavern, then jumped on the bar and frightened customers and staff, a court was told.

However, Michael's owner, 50-year-old Gilbert Toner, told the court Tuesday that the dog wasn't drunk, just angry because he had been served a short-measure scotch.

Toner said he started a row with barman Eugene McBride over the whisky and remarked that the dog had not been drunk as it was used to downing 11 pints in a session.

Toner was fined $45 for refusing to leave the pub, assault, and causing a breach of the peace.

POISON ANT SNACK KILLS 13 CHILDREN

SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI) — Thirteen children died after eating fried ants that had ingested insect poison, a detective said Tuesday.

Moises Gomes Mustar, a detective investigating the deaths of the children in the impoverished town of Ibirapua in Brazil's northeast region, said they were fond of eating fried ants.

He told the Bahian health ministry that nearby fruit growers had sprayed their trees with insecticide. He said the custom of the children was to eat the ants that fell from the trees.

Mining Revenues Make Up For Losses in Woods Tax

By AL FORREST

Premier David Barrett insists that revenues in the present fiscal year will be high enough to balance his budget — and the latest government figures indicate he just might do it.

The numbers, for the fiscal year ended March 31, show the expected drop in revenues from the forest industry.

But they also show revenue gains on a number of fronts.

Total revenue in the fiscal year hit $2.6 billion, up from $2.1 billion the previous year.

Forest revenues were down $96 million but this was offset by $92.6 million in revenue from the British Columbia Petroleum Corporation, which markets natural gas in B.C. and Washington State.

Total revenue from minerals hit $168.8 million, up from $65 million a year ago. Despite the total collapse of the copper industry, the revenue from natural gas and crude oil is keeping B.C. on an even keel.

The numbers vividly reflect a comment made in Victoria by William Pickett, president of American Motors of Canada Ltd., who said Canadians do not realize how wealthy they are as an oil producing nation. B.C. is not a major oil producing region but even minor oil and natural gas producers are making big money at this time.

Other major gains by the province in the fiscal year ended march 31 were in corporation and personal income taxes.

Taxes from corporations increased $130 million to $267 million while personal income taxes were up $111 million to $522 million. The increase in personal income taxes reflects the beneficial effects of inflation upon the provincial treasury.

The increase in the five per cent sales tax revenue was only $60 million for a total of $400 million. Premier Barrett has complained that the sales tax hits the poor man more than the wealthy — but he has not yet made any move to reduce the burden.

Motor fuel taxes rose $15.5 million in the year to be an added source of revenues.

O'Grady Opens Lawsuit Against ICBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Terence P. O'Grady, who until Aug. 31, 1974, was secretary and general counsel of the Insurance Corporation of British Coumbia, said Tuesday he was not permitted to attend ICBC board meetings.

O'Grady was testifying at the opening day of his civil action against ICBC which is being heard by Mr. Justice Richard Anderson of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

He is suing the corporation, which operates the province's compulsory automobile insurance plan, for alleged breach of contract and wrongful dismissal.

He said the executive structure of the Crown corporatin was closely controlled by its vice-president and general manager, Norman Bortnick.

O'Grady said that being barred from board meetings created a problem because he received expurgated minutes and was unable to verify their accuracy before affixing the required corporate seal to legal documents.

He testfied that until joining ICBC he had been solicitor for the City of Victoria — a contract which was worth an estimated annual gross revenue of $60,000 to his practice. He also handled legal work for other clients.

O'Grady told the court he accepted the $35,000 per year job with the corporation primarily because of the challenge the new job offered and because of the fringe benefits such as use of an automobile and pension plan.

His lawyer told Mr. Justice Anderson:

"It was a gradual erosion of the position of secretary. By August, 1974, he had lost half of his staff, both of his titles and was off in thin air. The only thing that remained constant was his salary."

ICBC's lawyer said O'Grady had been offered — and refused — the most senior legal position in the corporation and that only nominal damage could have been possibly been done to him.

O'Grady has since returned to private practice in Victoria. The case continues.

Waterfront Highrises Ruled Out

He was commenting on an announcement by Gordon Head Developments that it would wait until after the November election before resubmitting its plan for a 122-suite condominium development at 2282 Arbutus. It would include two 12-storey buildings and a 9-storey building.

Lum said he is totally opposed to the development. If re-elected in November, he said, he would give the company the courtesy of listening to its proposal but he would vote to have it rejected.

He said his opposition to the Arbutus plan applies to any high-rise development on Saanich waterfront.

He said that if developers have plans for high-rise projects they should be warned in advance they must be located elsewhere in the municipality than on the water.

"I will do everything in my power as mayor to prevent high-rise development along our shores. It really doesn't belong there."

He said the project was particularly out of place on Arbutus, an area of quality single family homes worth about $250,000.

The same principle would apply to protecting the interests of residents in other areas along the water in Saanich.

The proposal for the nine-acre former Ker property was first submitted to the Saanich planning department last January but council was not informed of the proposal until summer.

Saanich's planning committee (of aldermen) has refused to consider the project because it has not gone through the usual preliminary channels, including obtaining the informal endorsement of the mayor.

The property originally was up for sale at a price tag of $1.35 million but is no longer on the market because the owners wish to develop it themselves.

A spokesman for Gordon Head Developments said the company is optimistic it will receive council approval after the November elections.

Province May Buy Priory

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The Society of the Love of Jesus has offered to sell the 94-bed hospital it operates at St. Mary's Priory in Langford to the provincial government.

Gerald Sullivan, lawyer for the Roman Catholic religious community, said today a letter offering the hospital and grounds to the province went to Health Minister Dennis Cocke Tuesday.

The offer includes hospital buildings, the old priory and close to eight acres on the south side of Goldstream. It does not include St. Anthony's rest home and a new residence the society has on the other side of Goldstream.

If the sale can be negotiated, likely with regional participation, it will probably be the first step in renovating and expanding hospital facilities on the property.

Sullivan declined to say anything about the price being asked. But another source said it was rumoured to be about $200,000.

At present the priory hospital is providing long-term care for elderly women.

Sullivan said there are only three sisters remaining in the operation and the offer to sell results from the "attrition of time ... the members are dwindling and they're getting older." The sale would not mean the society itself would be disbanded. Its future has yet to be decided, he said.

Control of the society, with assets estimated close to $2 million, has generated a bitter interal feud over the past decade which resulted in a Supreme Court action last year.

The court dismissed a claim by Mother Cecilia Mary and four other plaintiffs that they were the only legitimate members of the society and confirmed that control lay with the present prioress, Leonette Hoesing, and the sisters associated with her.

Mother Cecilia founded the society and was prioress for 39 years before moving to Mill Bay to operate a shelter for animal waifs. In 1973 the Roman Catholic church dismissed her and the other plaintiffs as religious sisters.

John Clark, director of regional hospital planning, said today that earlier proposals for the priory hospital, if and when it became a regional hospital, called for removing the old buildings and putting up a new 150-bed extended-care hospital. Consideration was also to be given to expanding the operation, possibly adding intermediate and personal-care facilities for the elderly.

If the priory hospital is bought by the province and region in partnership, administration of it will likely be turned over to the Juan de Fuca Hospital Society.

Name Changes Irk Residents

The Chandlers, and the Heywoods

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Long-time residents of Heywood Way are grumbling this week ... and so is the area postman.

For the most part, residents are annoyed because they have to take on the gigantic task of advising bureaucrats of a variety of government departments that their street address will be changed Oct. 6.

City council has notified them that the short block between Heywood Avenue and Vancouver Street near Beacon Hill Park will become an extension of Southgate, a logical extension, residents agree, but irksome.

"I've got a colossal job facing me," says W. H. Chandler, who retired from Ottawa to his apartment at 999 Heywood House, soon to become 999 Southgate.

Chandler is currently collecting change of address slips — "trying to beg, borrow and steal them from the postman" — and working his way through a long list of people who have to be notified of his new address.

There's the superannuation pension people, the Old Age Pension people, banks, insurance companies, Medicare, pharmacare, a whole crowd of private friends and family to tell all of which "constitutes a lot of unnecessary work."

On top of that list, Chandler is a stamp collector with accounts in Edinburgh, Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea and a variety of other locations, which have to be informed of city council's decision.

"Residents are quite upset about it," said Mrs. Chandler. "We were quite comfortable with the old way."

Residents in eight locations will also be affected by council's "streets change of name" by-law:

Southgate between Vancouver and Rupert will be known as Convent Place;

Collinson between Rupert and Blanshard changed to Fairfield Road;

McClure, between Blanshard and Penwell, to Fairfield Road;

Perhaps the most succinct sentiments, however, were uttered by the Heywood Way postman during his morning rounds today.

Swamped by requests for change of address cards, the young man told Mrs. Chandler that the least city council could have done was wait until after Christmas to switch street names — as a present to mail deliverers.

BLOOD BLITZ OF APARTMENTS

A new effort to encourage enough blood donors to meet the needs of Victoria hospitals will be mounted for the next Red Cross clinics in this area Oct. 20-24.

Rick Stanger of the Provincial Ambulance Service is coordinating a donor competition among 20 of the larger businesses and institutions and taking part in a blitz of apartment buildings to encourage individual donors.

"The hospitals need about 10,000 pints of blood a year, but the clinics here only provide about 8,300. The rest comes from Vancouver," Stanger said.

He thinks there are enough people in apartments and major business buildings to donate a full year's supply for the surgical requirements of Royal Jubilee and Victoria General hospitals.

The 60 Victoria employees of the ambulance service will blitz all Greater Victoria apartment buildings of 12 suites or more the nights of Oct. 18 and 19, inviting tenants to volunteer.

Empty House Catches Fire

Fire which broke out early today in an unoccupied house being demolished at 510 Dunedin was apparently deliberately set, Victoria deputy fire chief R. J. Coates said this morning.

The fire, reported at 2:15 a.m., originated in a second floor hallway and spread to the attic and roof.

WINDOW BARS were installed today at the operator's cabin on the Johnston Street Bridge to secure it during non-operating hours. Twenty-four hour service on the bridge was discontinued today as part of Victoria's cost-saving scheme. Mondays through to Fridays, the bridge can be raised from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to midnight; and on Saturdays and Sundays, it can be raised between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Anyone wishing to have the bridge raised at any other time must arrange this by giving 24-hour notice by personal application to the city engineer's department.

SEPTEMBER SUNSHINE A RECORD

Victoria enjoyed the sunniest September on record and October promises to be almost as warm and pleasant, the Victoria weather office reports.

But rain may come in deluges in November to make up for the dry and sunny weeks, according to the Pat Bay weather office.

Hours of sunshine in September numbered 286.8 — a record for the Victoria area. The previous record was in 1935 when 270.4 hours of sunshine was recorded.

The temperature reached 25.3 Tuesday — the highest for that date. The high for the month was 27.3 recorded Sept. 11.

Despite the sunny and warm weather, the average rainfall was heavier than for the same period last year. It was 4.9 millimeters compared to 3.1 mm. in 1974.

Patricias Show Rights

Freedom of the City of Victoria ceremonies will be conducted by the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry on Friday as battalion members prepare to depart for United Nations peacekeeping duties.

The ceremonies will be conducted at 2 p.m. on the front lawn of the Legislative Buildings where Mayor Peter Pollen will give a farewell address on behalf of the city. Lt.-Col. H. (Greg) Leitch, battalion commander, will reply on behalf of 3 PPCLI.

This freedom allows the battalion to march through the city with "drums beating, bayonets fixed, and colors flying."

Some 430 men stationed at Work Point Barracks will be airlifted to Cyprus from Canadian Forces Base Comox between November 7-11 by three Air Transport Group special flights.

The 3 PPCLI will replace the 2nd Battilion, Royal 22 Regiment ("Van Doos") of La Citadelle, Quebec City.

"UN peacekeeping in Cyprus is a long and often hazardous job requiring courage, patience and skill on the part of the soldiers involved," said Leitch. "Unlike most other peacekeeping operations, the battalion in Nicosia routinely places itself between the two armed factions in an area where they are only separated by the width of a single narrow street."

The "Green Line," as the demarcation line is called, is dotted by UN Observation Posts (OPs) and constantly patrolled by UN vehicles. Often it is a lone Canadian soldier manning an OP in no-man's land that prevents further outbreaks of violence, he said.

The 3rd Battalion was originally formed as part of the UN force in Korea where it added to the reputation of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, a regiment privately raised in August 1914 to fight for the allies.

The Patricia's, accompanied by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regimental Band from Calgary, will march along Government Street, turn right on Wharf to Douglas, and then along Douglas to Chatham and finish at Memorial Arena.

Dry Cleaner Robbery

Four youths were charged in Victoria provincial court today with breaking into the One-Hour Cleaners, 1939 Fort, early this morning and stealing a small amount of cash.

Gary Warren LeBreeque, 18, of 1754 Lee; Gavin Robert McMillan, 17, of 2628 Shelbourne; Paul Brecken Paine, 18, and Hartman Tillein, 17, were remanded in custody to Friday for election of trial and bail application.

An employee of the store said the break-in occurred at about 3 a.m. when a back door was rammed open. A cash drawer containing about $20 change was taken.

Police arrested the four accused a short time later as they walked along a nearby street.

Touch of Humor Passes from the Bar

ERIC WINCH . . . forced out

Humor, Aristotle once said, was the only test of gravity.

And gravity was the only test of humor. For a subject which would not bear good-natured ridicule was suspicious; and a jest which would not bear a serious examination was certainly a false wit.

Now, rather sadly, Vancouver Island has lost one of its most well-known judges — a man who not only had new and exciting ideas on sentencing, but who also helped bring a touch of humor into the gravity of the courtroom.

For Eric Winch has retired.

Not that he wanted to, mind you.

"I was retired — I'm not old enough to retire," Winch says openly in an interview in Parksville, where he has lived for the last 26 years.

"I was caught by this new Provincial Court Act, saying all part-time judges must retire."

Born in Vancouver and brought up in Burnaby, Eric Winch became a social worker for the provincial government after graduating from the University of British Columbia.

"It was a rugged deal in those days," he grins. "The government had a boat — a 42-foot converted tug — and we had to visit places like Port Hardy and Port Alice."

Then, after spending 10 years with his father-in-law's logging firm in Parksville, Winch became a magistrate in Nanaimo in 1963.

"I went to law school and first became a part-time magistrate because no one else would take it, if you want to know the truth," he insists.

When that well-known up-Island character Lionel Beaver Potts retired in 1965, Winch became district magistrate, with an area stretching from the Malahat to the north of the Island and also taking in the Sunshine Coast and the Pemberton Valley on the Mainland.

"There were far more lay judges than lawyer judges then and I was often called on to sit in places like Prince Rupert and North Vancouver," Eric says. "As the judges say, 'have gown, will travel.'"

A full-time judge until 1972 and since then a part-timer working on call, Winch at the age of 52 is finished with the courts. But he doesn't see the reasoning.

"The government is still going to have part-time judges; they will be called supernumary judges and will be chosen from those who have worked full-time for the last 10 years and have reached the age of 60. But they will be doing exactly what we were doing — so wherein lies the difference?"

Ex-judge Winch, who has three grown children, has no plans for the future. At least none for the next six months. But he does have a trailer and he and wife Bobby hope to do a little travelling around.

And the ex-judge is quite modest when it comes to talking about his famed sentencing techniques, saying "it's not necessarily one person who starts them" and adding that he got a lot of the ideas from Campbell River judge, author and naturalist Roderick Haig-Brown.

But Winch hit the headlines for his refusal to stick to what he calls the "buck" sentencing.

"You know," he smiles, "I once took a break from the courts for a few months and ran in a federal by-election and was beaten by Tommy Douglas. Then I came back and what appalled me was that when I looked at the court lists and saw who was appearing and what for, it was as though I'd never been away a day. It was the same people up on the same offences."

"I knew something had to be done. It's not a case of a small fine which dad pays or which they'll laugh at."

Winch made those who appeared in court DO something.

People caught littering were ordered to clean up both sides of the highway for a mile.

Minors caught in licensed premises were made to visit every licensed outlet in Nanaimo, show their ID cards, explain that they were not allowed to drink there, and get a form signed by the proprietor to show they'd called.

Car and motorbike offenders were similarly punished and Winch felt this had far more of a long-lasting effect than a straight fine.

"It didn't make them big tippers to their friends, because it's no big deal washing police cars or raking parking lots," he explained.

"I can't take the credit for this," Winch says modestly, "but we (the other part of the "we" is Judge Stan Wardill of Nanaimo) have helped get it started."

Now, he says, others are starting to see the logic.

"The Alberta government, for one, has just begun a scheme where criminals must compensate their victims and that's a good step."

There is, says the former judge, always a certain amount of humor, "and a certain amount of humor — as long as it's not at the expense of anyone — has its place in court, for court is such a heavy thing."

Once, recalls Winch, a young man appeared in court charged with stealing a dozen donuts. When the case came up months later, he was told:

"Okay, you wanted them, you eat them!"

"And he did and they were as hard as hell," laughs Winch.

Waterfront Highrises Ruled Out

Mayor Ed Lum said today he will oppose any proposed high-rise waterfront development — no matter where it is in the municipality.

He was commenting on an announcement by Gordon Head Developments that it would wait until after the November election before resubmitting its plan for a 122-suite condominium development at 2282 Arbutus. It would include two 12-storey buildings and a 9-storey building.

Lum said he is totally opposed to the development. If re-elected in November, he said, he would give the company the courtesy of listening to its proposal but he would vote to have it rejected.

He said his opposition to the Arbutus plan applies to any high-rise development on Saanich waterfront.

He said that if developers have plans for high-rise projects they should be warned in advance they must be located elsewhere in the municipality than on the water.

"I will do everything in my power as mayor to prevent high-rise development along our shores. It really doesn't belong there."

He said the project was particularly out of place on Arbutus, an area of quality single family homes worth about $250,000.

The same principle would apply to protecting the interests of residents in other areas along the water in Saanich.

The proposal for the nine-acre former Ker property was first submitted to the Saanich planning department last January but council was not informed of the proposal until summer.

Saanich's planning committee (of aldermen) has refused to consider the project because it has not gone through the usual preliminary channels, including obtaining the informal endorsement of the mayor.

The property originally was up for sale at a price tag of $1.35 million but is no longer on the market because the owners wish to develop it themselves.

A spokesman for Gordon Head Developments said the company is optimistic it will receive council approval after the November elections.

MOONMAN TO SPEAK

Capt. James Lovell, deputy director of the U.S. space program and one of three men to first circumnavigate the moon, will speak at University of Victoria Thursday noon.

He is one of a series of speakers sponsored by the student Alma Mater Society and his talk on Apollo 13 will be at 12:30 in the old gymnasium.

Priory Hospital for Sale

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The Society of the Love of Jesus has offered to sell the 94-bed hospital it operates at St. Mary's Priory in Langford to the provincial government.

Gerald Sullivan, lawyer for the Roman Catholic religious community, said today a letter offering the hospital and grounds to the province went to Health Minister Dennis Cocke Tuesday.

The offer includes hospital buildings, the old priory and close to eight acres on the south side of Goldstream. It does not include St. Anthony's rest home and a new residence the society has on the other side of Goldstream.

If the sale can be negotiated, likely with regional participation, it will probably be the first step in renovating and expanding hospital facilities on the property.

Sullivan declined to say anything about the price being asked. But another source said it was rumoured to be about $200,000.

At present the priory hospital is providing long-term care for elderly women.

Sullivan said there are only three sisters remaining in the operation and the offer to sell results from the "attrition of time — the members are dwindling and they're getting older." The sale would not mean the society itself would be disbanded. Its future has yet to be decided, he said.

Control of the society, with assets estimated close to $2 million, has generated a bitter internal feud over the past decade which resulted in a Supreme Court action last year.

The court dismissed a claim by Mother Cecilia Mary and four other plaintiffs that they were the only legitimate members of the society and confirmed that control lay with the present prioress, Leonette Hoesing and the sisters asssociated with her.

Mother Cecilia founded the society and was prioress for 39 years before moving to Mill Bay to operate a shelter for animal waifs. In 1973 the Roman Catholic church dismissed her and the other plaintiffs as religious sisters.

John Clark, director of regional hospital planning, said today that earlier proposals for the priory hospital, if and when it became a regional hospital, called for removing the old buildings and putting up a new 150-bed extended-care hospital. Consideration was also to be given to expanding the operation, possibly adding intermediate and personal-care facilities for the elderly.

If the priory hospital is bought by the province and region in partnership, administration of it will likely be turned over to the Juan de Fuca Hospital Society.

Name Changes Irk Residents

The Chandlers, and the Heywoods

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Long-time residents of Heywood Way are grumbling this week — and so is the area postman.

For the most part, residents are annoyed because they have to take on the gigantic task of advising bureaucrats in a variety of government departments that their street address will be changed Oct. 6.

City council has notified them that the short block between Heywood Avenue and Vancouver Street near Beacon Hill Park will become an extension of Southgate, a logical extension, residents agree, but irksome.

"I've got a colossal job facing me," says W. H. Chandler, who retired from Ottawa to his apartment at 999 Heywood House, soon to become 999 Southgate.

Chandler is currently collecting change of address slips — "trying to beg, borrow and steal them from the postman" — and working his way through a long list of people who have to be notified of his new address.

There's the superannuation pension people, the Old Age Pension people, banks, insurance companies, Medicare, Pharmacare, a whole crowd of private friends and family to tell all of which "constitutes a lot of unnecessary work".

On top of that list, Chandler is a stamp collector with accounts in Edinburgh, Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea and a variety of other locations, which have to be informed of city council's decision.

His wife Kay feels it's unnecessary, as do Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hackney in the apartment above and a variety of other residents in the 32-suite block named Heywood House.

"Residents are quite upset about it," said Mrs. Chandler. "We were quite comfortable with the old way."

Residents in eight locations, will also be affected by council's "streets change of name" by-law:

—Southgate between Vancouver and Rupert will be known as Convent Place;

—McClure, between Blanshard and Penwell, to Fairfield Road;

—Superior Street, between Douglas and Rupert, to Southgate Street;

Perhaps the most succinct sentiments, however, were uttered by the Heywood Way postman during his morning rounds today.

Swamped by requests for change of address cards, the young man told Mrs. Chandler that the least city council could have done was wait until after Christmas to switch street names — as a present to mail deliverers.

BLOOD BLITZ OF APARTMENTS

A new effort to encourage enough blood donors to meet the needs of Victoria hospitals will be mounted for the next Red Cross clinics in this area Oct. 20-24.

Rick Stanger, of the Provincial Ambulance Service is coordinating a donor competition among 20 of the larger businesses and institutions and taking part in a blitz of apartment buildings to encourage individual donors.

"The hospitals need about 10,000 pints of blood a year, but the clinics here only provide about 8,500. The rest comes from Vancouver," Stanger said.

He thinks there are enough people in apartments and major business buildings to donate a full year's supply for the surgical requirements of Royal Jubilee and Victoria General hospitals.

The 60 Victoria employees of the ambulance service will blitz all Greater Victoria apartment buildings of 12 suites or more the nights of Oct. 18 and 19, inviting tenants to volunteer.

Empty House Catches Fire

Fire which broke out early today in an unoccupied house being demolished at 510 Dunedin was apparently deliberately set, Victoria deputy fire chief R. J. Coates said this morning.

The fire, reported at 2:15 a.m., originated in a second floor hallway and spread to the attic and roof.

WINDOW BARS were installed today at the operator's cabin on the Johnston Street Bridge to secure it during non-operating hours. Twenty-four hour service on the bridge was discontinued today as part of Victoria's cost-saving scheme. Mondays through to Fridays, the bridge can be raised from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to midnight; and on Saturdays and Sundays, it can be raised between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Anyone wishing to have the bridge raised at any other time must arrange this by giving 24-hour notice by personal application to the city engineer's department.

SEPTEMBER SUNSHINE A RECORD

Victoria enjoyed the sunniest September on record and October promises to be almost as warm and pleasant, the Victoria weather office reports.

But rain may come in deluges in November to make up for the dry and sunny weeks, according to the Pat Bay weather office.

Hours of sunshine in September numbered 286.8 — a record for the Victoria area. The previous record was in 1935 when 270.4 hours of sunshine was recorded.

The temperature reached 23.3 Tuesday — the highest for that date. The high for the month was 27.3 recorded Sept. 11.

Despite the sunny and warm weather, the average rainfall was heavier than for the same period last year. It was 4.9 millimeters compared to 3.1 mm. in 1974.

Patricias Show Rights

Freedom of the City of Victoria ceremonies will be conducted by the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry on Friday as battalion members prepare to depart for United Nations peacekeeping duties.

The ceremonies will be conducted at 2 p.m. on the front lawn of the Legislative Buildings where Mayor Peter Pollen will give a farewell address on behalf of the city. Lt.-Col. H. (Greg) Leitch, battalion commander, will reply on behalf of 3 PPCLI.

This freedom allows the battalion to march through the city with "drums beating, bayonets fixed, and colors flying.

Some 430 men stationed at Work Point Barracks will be airlifted to Cyprus from Canadian Forces Base Comox between November 7-11 by three Air Transport Group special flights.

The 3 PPCLI will replace the 2nd Battilion, Royal 22 Regiment ("Van Doos") of La Citadelle, Quebec City.

"UN peacekeeping in Cyprus is a long and often hazardous job requiring courage, patience and skill on the part of the soldiers involved," said Leitch. "Unlike most other peacekeeping operations, the battalion in Nicosia, routinely places itself between the two armed factions in an area where they are only separated by the width of a single narrow street."

The "Green Line," as the demarcation line is called, is dotted by UN Observation Posts (OPs) and constantly patrolled by UN vehicles. Often it is a lone Canadian soldier manning an OP in no-man's land that prevents further outbreaks of violence, he said.

The 3rd Battalion was originally formed as part of the UN force in Korea where it added to the reputation of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, a regiment privately raised in August 1914 to fight for the allies.

The Patricia's, accompanied by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regimental Band from Calgary, will march along Government Street, turn right on Wharf to Douglas, and then along Douglas to Chatham and finish at Memorial Arena.

Dry Cleaner Robbery

Four youths were charged in Victoria provincial court today with breaking into the One-Hour Cleaners, 1939 Fort, early this morning and stealing a small amount of cash.

Gary Warren LeBrecque, 18, of 1754 Lee; Gavin Robert McMillan, 17, of 2628 Shelbourne; Paul Brecken Paine, 18, and Hartman Tillein, 17, were remanded in custody to Friday for election of trial and bail application.

An employee of the store said the break-in occurred at about 3 a.m. when a back door was rammed open. A cash drawer containing about $20 change was taken.

Police arrested the four accused a short time later as they walked along a nearby street.

Touch of Humor Passes from the Bar

ERIC WINCH . . . forced out

Humor, Aristotle once said, was the only test of gravity.

And gravity was the only test of humor. For a subject which would not bear good-natured ridicule was suspicious; and a jest which would not bear a serious examination was certainly a false wit.

Now, rather sadly, Vancouver Island has lost one of its most well-known judges — a man who not only had new and exciting ideas on sentencing, but who also helped bring a touch of humor into the gravity of the courtroom.

For Eric Winch has retired.

Not that he wanted to, mind you.

"I was retired — I'm not old enough to retire," Winch says openly in an interview in Parksville, where he has lived for the last 26 years.

"I was caught by this new Provincial Court Act, saying all part-time judges must retire."

Born in Vancouver and brought up in Burnaby, Eric Winch became a social worker for the provincial government after graduating from the University of British Columbia.

"It was a rugged deal in those days," he grins. "The government had a boat — a 42-foot converted tug — and we had to visit places like Port Hardy and Port Alice."

Then, after spending 10 years with his father-in-law's logging firm in Parksville, Winch became a magistrate in Nanaimo in 1963.

"I went to law school and first became a part-time magistrate because no one else would take it, if you want to know the truth," he insists.

When that well-known up-Island character Lionel Beaver Potts retired in 1965, Winch became district magistrate, with an area stretching from the Malahat to the north of the Island and also taking in the Sunshine Coast and the Pemberton Valley on the Mainland.

"There were far more lay judges than lawyer judges then and I was often called on to sit in places like Prince Rupert and North Vancouver," Eric says. "As the judges say, 'have gown, will travel.'"

A full-time judge until 1972 and since then a part-timer working on call, Winch at the age of 52 is finished with the courts. But he doesn't see the reasoning.

"The government is still going to have part-time judges; they will be called supernumary judges and will be chosen from those who have worked full-time for the last 10 years and have reached the age of 60. But they will be doing exactly what we were doing — so wherein lies the difference?"

Ex-judge Winch, who has three grown children, has no plans for the future. At least none for the next six months. But he does have a trailer and he and wife Bobby hope to do a little travelling around.

And the ex-judge is quite modest when it comes to talking about his famed sentencing techniques, saying "it's not necessarily one person who starts them" and adding that he got a lot of the ideas

max low

But Winch hit the headlines for his refusal to stick to what he calls the "buck" sentencing.

"You know," he smiles, "I once took a break from the courts for a few months and ran in a federal by-election and was beaten by Tommy Douglas. Then I came back and what appalled me was that when I looked at the court lists and saw who was appearing and what for, it was as though I'd never been away a day. It was the same people up on the same offences."

"I knew something had to be done. It's not a case of a small fine which dad pays or which they'll laugh at."

Winch made those who appeared in court DO something.

People caught littering were ordered to clean up both sides of the highway for a mile.

Minors caught in licensed premises were made to visit every licensed outlet in Nanaimo, show their ID cards, explain that they were not allowed to drink there, and get a form signed by the proprietor to show they'd called.

Car and motorbike offenders were similarly punished and Winch felt this had far more of a long-lasting effect than a straight fine.

"It didn't make them big timers to their friends, because it's no big deal washing police cars or raking parking lots," he explained.

"I can't take the credit for this," Winch says modestly, "but we (the other part of the "we" is Judge Stan Wardill of Nanaimo) have helped get it started."

Now, he says, others are starting to see the logic.

"The Alberta government, for one, has just begun a scheme where criminals must compensate their victims and that's a good step."

There is, says the former judge, always a certain amount of humor, "and a certain amount of humor — as long as it's not at the expense of anyone — has its place in court, for court is such a heavy thing."

Once, recalls Winch, a young man appeared in court charged with stealing a dozen donuts. When the case came up months later, he was told:

"Okay, you wanted them, you eat them!"

"And he did and they were as hard as hell," laughs Winch.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My sister, Jane, was widowed after 45 years of marriage to Joe Smith. When Joe died, she bought a double plot with a big single grave stone with "SMITH" across it. She put his name on one side of it, plus the date of his birth and date of his death. The other side was for her when her time came.

Well, she ups and marries Chester Lind, who was never married before. Chester has expressed a wish to be buried side by side with my sister, Jane, and he has two plots to accommodate them in his family gravesite.

My sister is no longer a Smith, so how can she be buried with Joe Smith in the Smith family plot even if she wanted to?

DEAR CONFUSED: It's up to your sister to make her wishes known soon. If she wants to be laid to rest beside her first husband, she should so advise her present husband. Her marker would then read, "JANE SMITH LIND." If she doesn't make her wishes known, my guess is that if she outlives Chester, she'll join the Smiths. If not, Chester will bury her with the Linds.

DEAR ABBY: I feel sorry for the Sunday school teacher who has a discipline problem with the pastor's 6-year-old son and doesn't know what to do. Being a pastor myself, I know that every Tom, Dick and Harry threaten to quit the church if they don't get their way.

I've heard everything from "If my daughter doesn't get to play the organ," to "If my grandfather doesn't get to preach his own funeral service, I am going to quit this church!"

When anyone tries to blackmail me in this manner, I simply get out my pen and note pad and ask them to put it in writing. And I hold them to it afterwards, too!

No church needs members like those I have lost. If it weren't for the bad language, I'd tell them all to go to hell. — PASTOR.

DEAR PASTOR: And if it weren't for your restraint, you'd be looking for a new pulpit.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, but I look much younger. My husband is 30, but he looks older. (He's losing his hair fast.) The problem is that everybody thinks I am his daughter, and this irritates us. In fact, we almost hate to go any place where people don't know us because everybody makes that mistake.

Have you any suggestions on how I can look older without dressing like an old lady? — LOOKS LIKE A KID.

DEAR LOOKS: The solution to your problem could be to get your husband to look YOUNGER. Has he thought of a hairpiece? That would help. In the meantime, enjoy looking "like a kid." Too soon will come the day when time, the subtle thief of youth, will change all that.

A Haunting Headstone Hassle

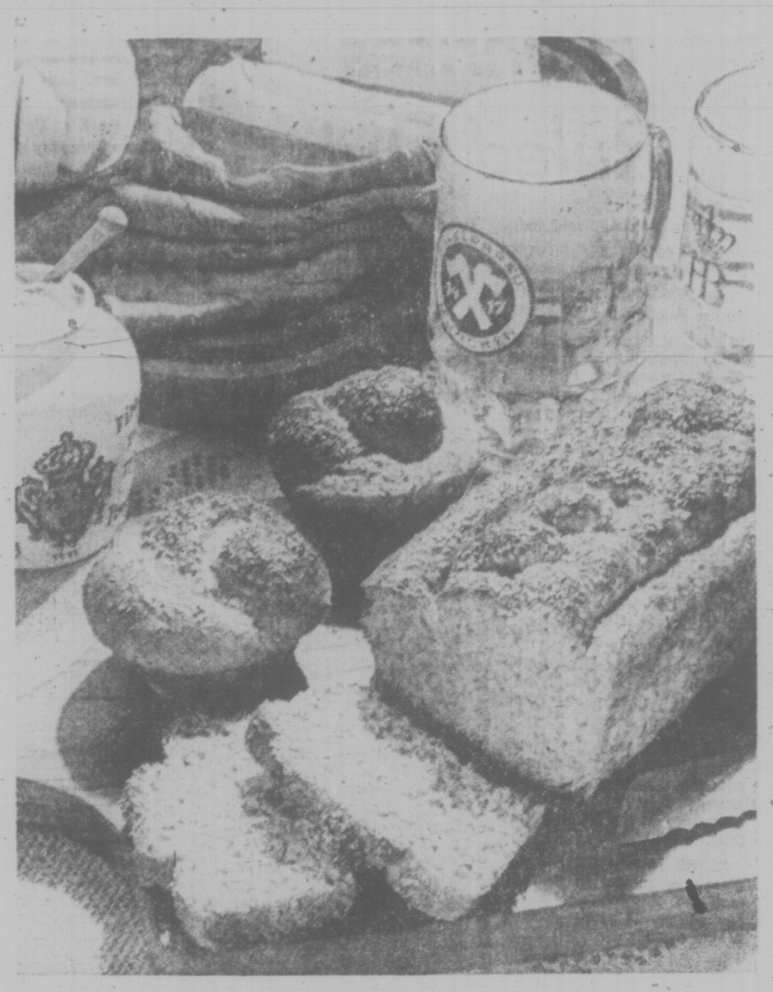
By MARY MOORE



The flavor of Shirriff Bread is going to convert white bread eaters into Shirriff Bread makers. I cut off a crust and ate it five minutes after it came from the oven.

I have a notion that Bob, who is my son's friend, and Peter are competing slightly in their bread products. Each one is packing their dough with nutrients. Examine the ingredients below.

Bob Shirriff has introduced some innovations so please follow the recipe. I want you to enjoy Bob's creation as much as I do. I have four loaves stowed away in my freezer.

NOTE: To readers whose doctors advise them to eat foods containing iron: whole wheat flour is high in iron content.

SHIRRIFF BREAD
(courtesy of Bob; 3 loaves)

¼ cup honey
1 cup hot water (first amount)
2 tbsp. granular yeast
3½ cups hot water (second amount)
¼ cup molasses
2½ tsp. salt (preferably sea salt)
5 cups stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
5 cups whole wheat flour
¾ cup cracked wheat
1 cup wheat germ
1 cup bran
½ cup flax seed (health food store)
½ cup sesame seed (health food store)

Into a clean dishpan measure the honey and 1 cup hot water. Stir to mix until just above lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over and let stand 15 minutes.

Meanwhile in a bowl combine the 3½ cups hot water, molasses and salt. Stir. When cooled down to just above lukewarm add to risen yeast liquid.

In a very large bowl MIX TOGETHER the whole wheat flour, white flour, cracked wheat, wheat germ, bran, flax and sesame seeds.

Now scoop out and add 4 cups of the flours to the liquids in dishpan. Stir for 5 minutes. Add 2 more cups and mix very well.

Tip ALL remaining flours out on kneading board and pat to about ¾" thickness. (Bob called it a "flat bed.") Tip all of dough out on it. Pick up some loose flour from edges and sprinkle over top and begin kneading almost all of this flour in. It took me about 10 minutes but this is your major kneading step. Leave just a little flour on board for shaping loaves later.

Return to dishpan. Oil top. Cover with doubled big tea towel, place under light and let rise until doubled — about 1¼ hours. Turn dough out on kneading board again. Knead 25 times. Shape into roll. Cut into 3 pieces. Shape into loaves and put in well-oiled loaf pans. Oil tops. Cover with damp cloth and let rise under light, until above rims of pans — about 1 hour. DO NOT PREHEAT OVEN. Put loaves in cold oven, turn on heat to 360 deg. Fahr. and bake 35 to 45 minutes. Test for doneness by tapping top with fingertips. It will sound hollow if done. Cool on racks. Slice and pass around to everybody handy while it is still warm. A great success and thanks Bob.

'Impulse' Buying Almost Extinct

The subject of food prices has become such an important issue in everybody's life that it is now a rare occasion for people to shop randomly — that is without a well thought out plan for the week or the month and not without a carefully planned shopping list. The day of "impulse" buying has almost disappeared.

Looked at from one angle the rising costs are almost a blessing — and before every reader has a fit — I should clarify that, by saying it has made everyone more aware and more careful of every cent they spend on food. It has cut down on the consumption of "empty calorie" foods, broadened the knowledge of nutrition and made the recognition and use of lower cost alternatives a day-to-day reality.

Seafoods fit well into these categories and are being discovered and used more by people who used to think of only meats as a good source of protein. Fish is categorically lower in cost — lower in percentage of waste — lower than most meats in percentage of shrinkage — and as high of higher in food values — so it becomes a "natural" when people are looking for value in their food alternatives.

CURRIED HADDOCK FLIP

Heat 3-4 tbsp. oil in skillet at 350 deg. F. or medium heat. Add 2 chopped green onions and 2 tsp. curry powder. Stir for 1 minute then add frozen haddock fillets and fry for 4 minutes each side. Move the fillets around gently to help pick up flavor of onions and curry. Serve with parslied long grain rice, peach chutney and frenched green beans with mushrooms.

TUNA CRANBERRY COCKTAIL

1 7-oz. can solid white albacore
1 cup grapefruit sections
¾ cup whole cranberry sauce
Salad greens
¼ cup whipped cream, whipped
1 tsp. prepared horseradish
1 tsp. lemon juice

Drain tuna and break into large chunks. Cut grapefruit sections into bite-size pieces. Lightly toss tuna, grapefruit and cranberry sauce together. Whip the cream, and blend in horseradish and lemon juice. Arrange salad greens in cocktail glass, place about ½ cup tuna mixture in each and top with a dollop of spiced cream. Garnish with a mint leaf. Serves 6.

Burma Jails Black Market Profiteers

RANGOON, Burma (UPI) — A Burmese special criminal court sentenced eight wholesale traders to 12 to 17 years in prison for selling peanut oil and onions at higher than official prices, officials said Monday.

The specific charge was "opposing socialist construction" of the government.

The action by the speical criminal courts has led to the disappearance of peanut oil from the market and the government is striving to issue bigger rations of groundnut oil—a staple in Burma—through co-operatives.

Buildings Closed

The legislative buildings will be closed Oct. 13 because of Thanksgiving Day. The Provincial Museum, however, will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Cheddar Origins Lost But Still the Champ

Cheese is without a doubt one of the oldest foods prepared by man and it is difficult to date its origin. French settlers were the first to bring the art of cheese making to Canada. Later the United Empire Loyalists introduced cheddar cheese, which was developed in the village of Cheddar in England.

Although there are many other types of cheese made in Canada today, cheddar is still the most popular—in fact consumption has doubled in the last 20 years.

Cheddar cheese is made form whole milk. It is ripened under controlled temperature and humidity. It is stored for different periods of time and at different temperatures to produce the desired flavor.

Cheddar is the only cheese that is graded, and practically all that is made is Canada First Grade quality. It is graded according to flavor, texture and color and must conform to standards for fat and moisture content.

Cheddar cheese is classed and sold according to the length of time it has been held to ripen or age. "Mild" cheddar is held for 2 to 3 months. "Medium" cheddar is moderately aged to develop a medium flavor at about four to five months. "Old" cheddar is aged to maturity and may be kept from nine months to two years.

The color of cheddar cheese varies from cream to deep orange but as a rule "old" cheddar cheese does not have coloring added.

Packages of cheese show the type, the net weight, and the address of the manufacurer, packer, wholesaler or retailer. Cheddar cheese is labelled Mild, Medium or Old and the grade may be given. Mild and medium cheddar may sell for several cents less per pound than old cheese, which is stored longer.

Cheddar will keep for several months in the refrigerator if stored in a covered container or wrapped in thick waxed paper or aluminum foil. When cut, it should be over-wrapped in foil or plastic. If a large piece is to be kept for a long period, the cut side should be protected with a coating of melted paraffin. Cheese that becomes dry and hard may be grated and stored in a tightly covered jar.

You may wish to freeze cheese that is left over. Cut it in small pieces, weighing no more than a pound and not more than an inch thick. Wrap in aluminum foil or plastic material, excluding as much air as possible, freeze and store 3 months or more at 0° F.

Always thaw cheese in the refrigerator. Thawed cheddar may become crumbly or mealy but it may be used in cooking where texture is not important.

Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada suggest a delicious "Mushroom and Cheese Pie". This could be your way of participating in the October cheese festival. Look for special cheese displays in the stores this month.

Socred Dissent Predicted

Three ex-Liberal MLAs, who joined the Social Credit party Tuesday will have real troubles trying to fit into the Socred caucus, Tory leader Scott Wallace said in an interview Tuesday.

"And if that party is elected there will be substantial conflicts within a short time . . . just look at what they (the three old Liberals have said over the last 10 years," said Wallace.

But the Tory leader said the defection of Allan Williams, Garde Gardom and Pat McGeer will improve the popularity of the Socreds and perhaps help them win votes from the NDP next election.

He still does not see the Socreds as a "unity party," however, because he says it is "a hodge podge of various political views" and the ex-Liberals have often been at odds with the Socreds 'position.

At his news conference Socred Leader Bill Bennett said the three would be given "very important responsibilities" in his new "shadow cabinet."

New Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, who up until now has been sharing an office with Williams, said the public has been well aware of the "game plan" to join the Socreds ever since the three menturned independent last May.

Gibson said the defection reminds him of the story of a politician who said: "Gentlemen, those are my principles, if you don't like them, I'll change them."

The Liberals will put up a good fight in the two ridings now held by the new Socreds but Gibson said it won't be a vindictive fight.

He said he does not see the defection as helping to defeat the NDP because it will not take away votes from the NDP. Only the Liberals, in a moderate role can do that, he said

The people will judge whether the move was opportunistic, said Gibson, and will also decide whether the three should have stepped down and run in a by-election.

Both Gibson and Wallace said Williams will never receive the Socred nomination in West Vancouver if former Tory Peter Hyndman continues with his plans to seek the nomination. Hyndman has been working on the nomination for months.

Argentine Lawyers Executed

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Two lawyers for leftist political prisoners were kidnapped and killed Tuesday, apparently by a right-wing execution squad, police reported.

The bullet-ridden and bound bodies of Felipe Rodriguez Araya and Eduardo Luis Lezcano, 42, were found along a road in Rosario, 250 miles north of Buenos Aires, hours after their families reported they had been kidnapped from their homes by armed bands.

Araya and Lezcano had both defended a number of leftist political prisoners captured under current state-of-siege laws to combat growing terrorism.

Mt. Baker Data Readings 'Contradictory, Confusing'

SEATTLE (AP) — University of Washington scientists have reported slight changes in gravity readings that could be interpreted to mean that Mt. Baker's Sherman Crater is being uplifted, an occurrence that precedes eruption in other types of volcanoes.

But Dr. Steve Malone of the university's geophysics department explained Tuesday that Mt. Baker is different, and data from other instruments on the mountain make the situation "contradictory and confusing."

"There still is no reason to expect that an eruption of Mt. Baker is imminent," Malone said.

Malone added that seismometers on Mt. Baker have indicated no increase in earthquake activity, which might be expected to accompany changes in the mountain's silhouette.

Hawaiian volcanoes are huge, gently sloping masses of lava, tending to "swell up like a balloon" before an eruption. Malone said that cascade volcanoes such as Baker — steep peaks composed of layers of volcanic material — could behave differently.

The summit could be pushed up "like squeezing toothpaste out of a tube" without changing the tilt of the mountain's shoulders, he speculated.

Court Puzzles Pot Varieties

VANCOUVER (CP) — How many species are there of marijuana?

Some botanists doing research in the U.S. say there are at least three — cannabis sativa, cannabis indica, and cannabis ruderalis — and possibly as many as eight.

At county court in Vancouver Monday, Dr. Ernest Small, an Ottawa botanist called by the crown as an expert witness, jumped from one courtroom to another to give testimony at two narcotics trials where the problem of cannabis nomenclature is at issue.

Dr. Small, an employee of the federal department of agriculture who has spent the last six years studying the nomenclature of cannabis, testified at the trial of James Michael Spanks, 27, Stanley Victor Herbert, 25, and Michael Charles Coombs, 31.

The three were charged in December, 1973, with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking. At that time police arrested two men found carrying a trunk containing 50 pounds of marijuana into a Vancouver residence. A third man was the occupant of the residence.

"As the result of my research I am convinced that there is only one species (of cannabis) that merits recognition. That species is cannabis sativa," he told Judge Lee Skipp.

After a full morning and part of the afternoon testifying at the trial of Spanks, Herbert and Coombs, proceedings were adjourned to allow Small to present similar testimony at another narcotics trial being held down the hall.

There, before Mr. Justice William Schultz and a jury, he gave similar testimony at the trial of Nields Anthony Tingskou, Kenneth Roy Simpson, Glen Edward Nikkel and Allan Lawrence Ernewein, all charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Dan Steinberg, Small was asked about research which has supposedly indicated there are more than one species of cannabis.

Small told the court that the conclusion of his research is that both cannabis indica and cannabis ruderalis are "merely varieties of cannabis sativa."

"It's like asking if I have studied collies. Yes, I've studied collies. Some people might call collies a separate species, but any competent taxonomist (the orderly classification and naming of plants and animals) knows that a collie is only one variety of the species dog," he testified.

He said that through the centuries, by selection, man has created artificial variants within the confines of single species.

The physical differences in the plants are among the criteria used by proponents of the three-species theory to support their contentions.

Small told Judge Skipp earlier in the day that the battle over whether there is just one or three species of the drug has resulted in a "travelling circus giving two sides of the question.

NIXON SUCCESSOR IN MID-JANUARY?

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal party sources are predicting a mid-January leadership convention to choose a successor to Robert Nixon who resigned Tuesday.

Nixon submitted his resignation Tuesday. His five-paragraph letter said he will continue in his leadership duties until a successor is elected. The 47-year-old leader has held the position since 1967.

Olympic Village Buyer Shortage?

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal realtor said Tuesday apartments in the Olympic Village, to be sold as condominiums after the 1976 Summer Games, may find few buyers.

Games organizers have stated the 900 units will carry price tags ranging from $20,000 to as much as $70,000.

"I don't know who is offering them (village promoters) $20,000 to $70,000 for the apartments," Bev Bailey, president of A. E. Lepage-Westmount Realties said.

The Olympic Village is located in the city's east-end near major oil refineries. At times, the rank odor from the refineries is discernible in the vicinity of the village.

There is a housing shortage in the city now, Mr. Bailey noted, but the big demand is for medium-priced units, not for luxury accomodation.

However, condominiums are the way of the future in urban housing, Mr. Bailey said. He attributed this to the frustration felt by real estate companies over rent controls, and the public's desire to own rather than rent accomodations.

"Look at Habitat," Mr. Bailey said, "After Expo '67 you couldn't give those apartments away because they didn't have a school and they were far away from stores. Now there's a waiting list."

"How can you tell about these things?"

Environmental Pacts

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and at least six provinces will sign an environmental agreement next week, an environment department spokesman said Tuesday.

Pierre Nadeau, special assistant to Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve, said the agreement will be a general document designed to promote federal-provincial cooperation and higher standards in the environmental field.

Ontario, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have agreed to sign and negotiations still are

"We hope more provinces will agree," Nadeau said.

The signing will take place at a meeting of federal and provincial environment and resources ministers Oct. 8-10 in Ingonish, N.S., a Cape Breton Island resort community.

Nadeau said details of the agreement will be released when it is signed.
